NATURAL GAS.

As previously announced exclusively in The Planet, Mr. Brown, of Buffalo desires to secure a franchise for piping Chatham for natural gas. He made his formal request to the City Council last evening along the lines this great home journal announced, and his communication was referred to the Industrial committee.

The securing of natural gas for Chatham would be a great boon and the matter should be looked into very

A GOOD MOVE.

Ald. Arch. McCoig and his colleagues at the City Council took a most progressive step last evening when they decided to seek the cooperation of the Public School Board in petitioning the Legislature to abolish the ward system of electing the school trustees.

This move has been vigorously advocated by The Planet for some time and will prove a distinct benefit to educational interests in our city.

The abolition of the ward system has been beneficial to the work of Council-it will prove equally beneficial to the work of the School Board. It does away with petty ward influences and jealousies and would make each trustee responsible to the ratepayers of the city at large.

By all means let everyone co-operate to secure this end.

ANOTHER TRIBUTE.

While this great home journal has no desire or intention to be dragged into a childish controversy with a contemporary whose angry utterances are, we fear, prompted merely by uncontrollable jealousy; a passing word concerning yesterday's outbreak in the News (erstwhile Banner-News, etc., et al) is, perhaps, due our readers.

The Planet is always prepared to stand or fall by its utterances upon any question, but it respectfully declines to have words thrust into its mouth. It is, of course, needless to tell our readers that the comments which appeared in a contemporary last evening, credited to The Planet, never appeared in this journal - nor anything like them. They were as purely the result of acute and welldeveloped imagination as the wonderful oil gushers which have been from day to day "exclusively discovered" by that paper for the past two months.

But there is one point of interest in the outbreak of our contemporary. It is definite in announcing this particular-that the News on Nov. 11, 1902, gave its initial information to its readers of the striking of the Gurd gusher. If this is true, then, of course, The Planet was mistaken in saying the News was only about a week behind this great home journal in publishing the facts. The Planet of Oct. 29th, some thirteen days previous, gave the information which the News says appeared in its paper for the first time on Nov. 11th. On Oct. 31st The Planet again gave further facts apparently, too early for our slothful contemporary.

For years past The Planet has been the recipient of continued kindly congratulations on its prompt, efficient and unrivalled local news service. it is with pardonable pride that this journal has the pleasure of now placing before the public this new evidence-strikingly strong in that it is given gratuitously by a would-be rival-that no other local paper can approach within two weeks or so of its wonderfully rapid and enterprising record.

And The Planet will continue to supply all oil and other news in a full, authentic and unbiased manner with the same promptness and precedence over all contemporaries as was characteristic in the discovery of the Gurd

THE FIRST LIVE NEWS

Wireless Messages Sent During a Blizzard —Interesting Experiments by Marconi.

The first real live news transmitted by wireless telegraphy across the Atlantic was sent by Mr. Marconi late on the night of the 6th of Jan., 1903, from the Table Head station to The London Times during a violent storm. About 10 o'clock it because the storm of th n to snow hard, and a northeast ad arose shortly afterwards, and 11 o'clock the worst blizzard of at 11 o'clock the worst bitzzard of the year was raging around the Tab-le Head station. The snow came down thick and fast, the wind blew at a velocity of sixty miles an hour, and, strange to say, there were in-termittent flashes of lightning, and the faint rumbling of thunder was heard. When the storm was at its height Mr. Marconi decided that he had an opportunity to test the pow-er of his wireless station under the most adverse conditions. He wished most adverse conditions. He wished to see if a violent storm had any ef-fect on the transmission of the mes-sages, and more than that, he wish-ed to ascertain also what effect, if any, an electrical storm had on wirecommunication. Like all young Italian's undertakings, this one was a complete triumph, and he demonstrated conclusively that the demonstrated concusively that the elements, such as gales and light-ning, could not in the least interfere with wireless telegraphy. The first message was sent to The London Tin.es. It read.

'Times. It read.
"Times, London: Please insert following in birth column: "Third January, the wife of R. N. Vyvian, chief electrical engineer, Marconi Canadian station, of daughter.' (Signed.) Marconi.

The next message sent was to Mrs Frawler, mother of Mrs. Vyvian. It read:— 'Frawler, Weymouth: Daugh-ter born, 3rd January. Both well, (Signed) Vyvian."

Both messages went through with out the slightest hitch, and Marconi declared that not the slightest diffi-culty will be encountered in sending messages during a storm. There was also a severe storm raging in Eng-and at the time.

Mr. Marconi was asked to give name to the wireless message. replied that he had given some con sideration to the matter, but had determined on a suitable He did not like the name gram," because it brought name. He di. his own personality too prominently to the fore. "Wireless messages' was too lengthy a nomenclature, and he thought the word "ethergram" would not prove popular. we will have some difficulty in finding a suitable name," answered Mr. Marconi.

The inventor stated that the wireless line between Cornwall and Cape Cod passed directly over Sydney. He added that he could send a wireless message now as easily to Vancouver from Table Head as to Cornwall from Table Head. In fact, a message ould now be sent to any part of the

After the establishment of opera tions between North America and Great Britain Mr. Marconi will turn attention to establishing a line between Italy and South America.

A Gigantic Meteorite. Prof. Henry A. Ward, the veteran neteorite hunter, recently found a neteorite of tremendous size. It has a length of thirteen feet and one inch, a length of thirteen feet and one inch, width six feet and two inches, thickness fine feet and four inches, and weight fifty tons. Prof. Ward has named it Bacubirito, after the mining town near which it was unearthed, and which is situated on the Rio Sinaloa, Mexico. It took twenty-eight able-bodied peons one entire day to uncover its upper surface, making an excavation thirty feet on a side, with the great meteorite lya side, with the great meteorite ly-ing within. At the end of the sec-ond day they were able to bring the huge mass to a semivertical position, the Mexicans standing aghast at the revelation of their work.
