

CONTENTS.

ix

CHAPTER XV.

PAGE

Preparing the Chi-cha-cha, or Killikinnick—Attack on Captain Fisk's Emigrant Train—Fourteen Whites Killed—A big Haul of Whisky—A Drunken Debauch—I write a Letter to Captain Fisk under dictation—Poisoned Indians—The Train saved by my Clerical Strategy, . . . . . 147

CHAPTER XVI.

Scenes on Cannon Ball Prairie—Reflections, . . . . . 154

CHAPTER XVII.

A Prairie on Fire—Scenes of Terror, . . . . . 159

CHAPTER XVIII.

Last days with the Ogalalla Sioux—Massacre of a Party returning from Idaho—A Woman's Scalp—A Scalp Dance—Suspicious Circumstance—Arrival of Blackfeet Indians—Negotiations for my Ransom—Treachery, . . . . . 164

CHAPTER XIX.

Indian Customs, . . . . . 175

CHAPTER XX.

An Indian tradition—Arrival at the Blackfeet Village—An offer to purchase me indignantly rejected—A Yankton attempts my Capture, . . . . . 191

CHAPTER XXI.

Appearance of Jumping Bear—I prevail on him to carry a Letter to the Fort—A War Speech—Intended Treachery—Resume our Journey to the Fort—Singular Meeting with a White Man—"Has Richmond Fallen?"—Arrival at the Fort—I am Free! . . . . . 199

CHAPTER XXII.

Retrospection—A Border Trading post—Garrison Hospitality—A Visit from the Commandant of Fort Rice—Arrival of my Husband—Affecting Scene, . . . . . 212

CHAPTER XXIII.

Sad Fate of Little Mary, . . . . . 218