LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CUCND

The opponents of nuclear disarmanent have adopted the phrase "Better dead than Red," as their slogan. We feel this phrase provides an excellent starting point on which to base an explanation of the aims of the CUCND.

Our viewpoint is quite as realistic and rational as that of our opponents, if not more so, for we do not advocate the ruthless slaughter of millions of innocent people. We fully realize the fool-ishness and impossibility of complete western unilateral disarmament. We have never advocated such a policy. We do, however, advocate a complete renunciation by Canada of the use, possession or storage of nuclear weapons. We feel that, by such a refusal, Canada can lead the way for a similar most everyone in Russia. The U.S. ada can lead the way for a similar refusal by other curbing the weapons; she can act as a buffet state ie. "a small state between two larger ones, diminishing the weapons by Canada going to have chance of hostilities" (Concise Oxford Dictionary); in short, she can lead the way in a race to-

RACIALISM

Sir: In a recent letter to the Gazette, William H. James imputes to me the notion that I distinguish between the moral and factual wrongness of racial discrimination. The absurdity of this conclusion derives from the poverty of Mr. James' logic as applied to my statement

In this statement, I drew a distinction between the possible evil of a man's ideas, and the evil of a man himself. I reaffirm the validity of this distinction and I would remind Mr. James that it is a distinction recognized by all the major religions. This, of course, says nothing in respect of the rightness or wrongness of the distinction, but it does at least reality that good and ever, and kindness are not the exclusive monopoly of any particular race, but are apportioned in a strange variety of ways throughout human kind. This, I feel, might be a more reasonable position than the inverted sense of injustice from which Mr. James presently seems which Mr. James presently seems which Mr. James presently seems invariably thoughtful and well presented comments and unfortunate inote of uncompromising stridency.

Sincerely, A. St. G. Abbott

A LAWYER REPLIES

Sir: I respectfully submit, at the risk of being somewhat harsh, that the letter headed "Lawyers" written by Peter Green in the January 10 issue of the Gazette is a blatant example of fuzzy thinking that should be remedied. It is replete with biased and unsubstantiated opinion. I should like to call attention to only a few of the more glaring errors of fact and students are in other student orillogical presentation of ideas.

I measurement of importance is a merely wish to point out that Arts nice task, but what does Mr. nice task, but what does Mr. Green use as criteria? He says that undergraduates should be given special recognition especially as being the sole candidates for class executive positions, because they are undergoing the shock treatment of being forced to think on a university level which heightens their insecurity. If this is the case I would suggest that the insecure students see a psychiatrist rather than run for class

Mr. Green's other pre-requisite or student importance is that nebulous commodity known as SPIRIT. But is it fair to deprive someone of a chance to compete for a student position mainly because he doesn't cheer as loudly and wildly as some eager-eyed freshmen? It may be true that most law students are too apathetic to chant jingles at football and hockey contests, but there is always a large proportion of professional students attending varsity sports events. For the past three seasons the quarter-back of our football team has been a law student, the captain of the hockey team is a law student as are several other memstudent as are several other members of these and other university athletic teams. The chairman of WUSC is a law student and the president of Sodales also attends Law School. The Apartheid policy advocated by Mr. Green is not only unrealistic but adversely prejudicial to an even greater participation of professional and graduate students in campus life.

BOUQUET

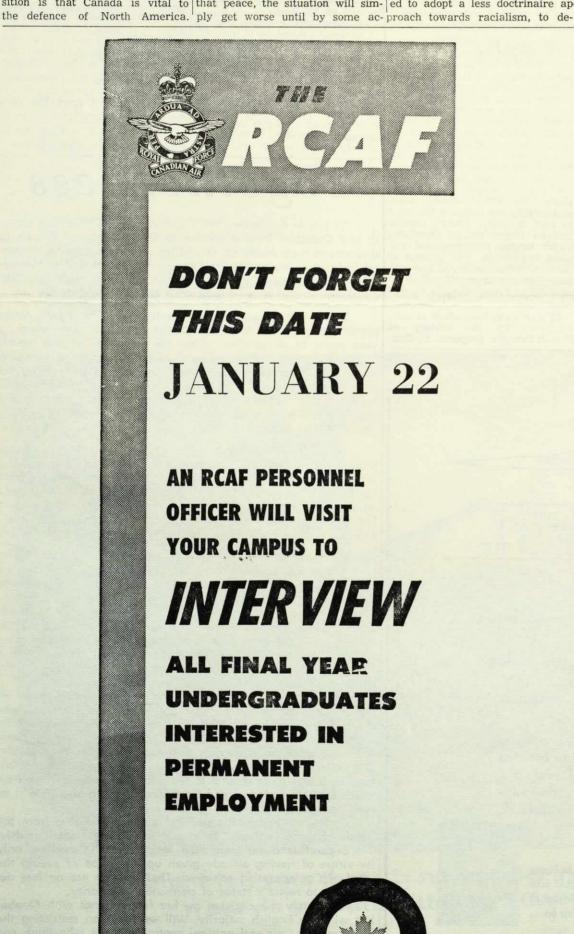

Sir: A bouquet to the Gazette for printing the article on prostitu-tion. Perhaps the Gazette in cooperation with the Students' Health Service, would like to initiate the proposals set forth in the last paragraph on a trial basis here at Dalhousie?
