The New Paper.

Here we are. Now say it to our face.

You wonder why a weekly paper is called the "MORNING TIMES." We've been in the town for three weeks, fiddling around getting our type in shape, and have never seen the sun two hours high yet. Many a day we have missed our dinner waiting for the sun to get overhead. We get the impression somehow that Dawson is the town of perpetual daybreak, and we can't resist the temptation to call this a morning paper.

We don't like to begin apologizing for the appearance of this sheet, but it is due our readers to say that we hope to be able to print on white paper next spring. The Indian who tried to carry our paper over Chilkoot Pass had the misfortune to stub his toe which started him tobogganing down a declivity seven miles into Death Canyon. He did not rejoin the party.

We are indebted to Soapine Sam, our genial grocer, for the loan of a ream of wrapping paper on which to print this issue. We request our subscribers to return this paper to Sam after reading it as he needs it for wrapping canned peaches, of which he has a very fine brand for sale at remarkably low prices.

PERSONAL NUGGETS.

Yesterday's dog mail brings a letter from Clarence Barry, who went home in June to blow in his $136,000. He has sold an option on his claim to a New York syndicate.
