Strange filk Trees of Panama.

One of the greatest curiosities of the Panama ishmus is the vegetable silk tree. It is a plant that grows from fiften to twenty feet high, and in appearance does not differ greatly from other trees, but the inner bark is a perfectly silky fiber, long, smooth and strong. The natives separate it by some method best known to themselves, the process somewhat resembling that of beating flax. When once it is separated and spun into threads it can be weven into a fabric so closely resembling silk that it is difficult for anyone not familiar with it to distinguish between the two. This species of silk goods is in high favor on the isthmus, and a Columbian belle is never happier than when she is arrayed in a gayly colored dress made from the trees in her father's yard.—Globe-Democrat.

"That was Mr. Skidds who called on you last night, wasn't it, Amy?"
Amy nodded, and Mabel went on,
"I was sure of it."
"What made you sure?"
"Because when I went into the parlor this morning the two armchairs were in front of the fireplace and just as close to gether as they could be."
"Well, I think you are real mean." Amy declared, "but I just know that it was Mr. Spatts who spent Monday evening in your company."

A Democratic Duke.

The will of the late duke of Marlborough contains the following characteristic clause: "I particularly dislike the exclusiveness of family pride and desire not to be buried in the family vault at Blenheim, but in such convenient place as others of my generation and surroundings may equally use."

Kicked to Death.

STRATHROY, June 3, —Yesterday as William McGurn and Pavid Watson, employes of Scott. Gillies & Co., produce dealers, were returning to the warehouse with a load of empty egg boxes, one of the boxes on the waggon slipped, precipitating them between the whipple trees and the horses, causing them to dash forward, one of them kicking the unfortunate man McGurn in the head, smashing the skull and allowing the brains to exude. Watson got off with a few bruisse, McGurn died within a couple of hours. Deceased was a single man, about 34 years of age.

The Next War,
Frankfort, June 5.—In an interview given in Metz yesterday Herr William Liebknecht, the leader of the Social Democrats, said that in the next war between France and Germany France undoubtedly would win. Throughout Alsace and Lorraine the authorities have forbiddon the use of public halls for Socialist meetings, and have ordered the withdrawal of licenses from all public houses which violated the order. Socialist meetings in the open air have been ordered not to drink in beerhouses frequented by Socialists.

BARRIE, June 3.—Rev. Thos. McKee, public school inspector of South Simcoe, officially visited S. S. No. 14, West Gwillimbury, where Mr. Joseph Agnew wields the birch. It is alleged that because the inspector entered uncermoniously he was at once ordered out, the command being emphasized by the epithet "tramp" from the teacher. An altercation took place, during which the inspector received a dislocated nose and was otherwise so badly abused that he has since been confined to his son's residence at Bradford, where he is under medical treatment. The puglistic pedagogue is under arrest.

LONDON, June 12.—The lungs of the suspected Canadian animal are still under veterinary inspection. The Canadian Government is submitting all possible evidence to prove the freedom from disease of the district from which the animal came. A decision is not expected for a week. Meanwhile Mr. Chaplin is keeping a close watch. He elicited in the House of Commons last night from President Gardner that the lungs of five Canadian animals have been subjected to special examination. All passed except the present case. seem to be her favorité flower. She listened carefully to the evidence, speating cocasionally to her counsel and sometimes smiling. When Mr. Morse was giving evidence her attitude was one of perfect indifference.

New BEDDOEN, Mass., June 9.—At the continuation of the Bordem murder trial. Abraham G. Hart testified that he talked with Mr. Borden at 9.30 on the morning of the murder, and by other witnesses his movements were traced up to 10.30.

John Fleet, assistant marshal of Fall River, was the next witness. He detailed the story, told him by Lizzie Border. Fleet also, fold of the finding of the axes and hatchets. The broken hatchet was found in the cellar. When found it was covered with either dust or sahe, he could not tell which. The break in the handle was new. The manner in which the ashes or dust appeara like an old one. The hatchet was in a box in the cellar.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., June 10.—The first witness called was Assistant Marshal Fleet, and his cross-examination by Governor Robinson was resumed. Mr. Robinson made a skilful and long sxamination of the officer, and disclosed the fact that other hatchets than the handless hatchet were found in the box by the chimner and that there were piles of ashes in the place. The handless hatchet was found on the witness' second visit to the cellar on the day of the murder. Mr. Robinson led Fleet into a contradiction of yesterday's testimony that the broken part of the hatchet handle was covered with ashes like the blade. He also said he put the hatchet back where he found it, that it was not produced at the premise he motive was not robbery, as everything was all right about the house. evidence in the Borden trial yesterday was chiefly corroborative of prior testimony, and not of great value to either side. One witness was badly confused on cross-examination, and others admitted several facts of some importance to the defence.

The first thing was the testimony of Officers Edson and Mahoney that they tried on Friday night to search the Borden cellar for the hatchet handle about which Mullally testified on Friday, but were not allowed to enter.

State Detective Geo. F. Seaver then testified to an examination of the handleless hatchet, corroborating the other witnesses as to its appearance and the dust on it. He also testified to his search for the dresses in the house. He also described the character and location of the blood spots found in the rooms where the murders were committed.

On cross-examination he became badly confused, and was unable to tell the age of the break on the hatchet handle or about the character of the dresses which he examined.

The court at one o'clock adjourned till Monday.

Et. Paso, Texas, May 29.—A haggard-looking man giving the name of Edward Pike, gave himself up to the police here to-day. He said he was guity of embezzling $100,000 at Toronto, Canada. The chief of police supposed he was a lunatic, but telegraphed to ascertain if his statement was true. The chief constable of Toronto wired that Pike was wanted, and an officer is now on the way with the necessary papers. Pike is a wreck, but is well dressed, and is thought to have a large amount of money in his possession.

IMPORTANT BUSINESS CHANGE

On July 1st we will close our books, and adopt the cash system, selling only for spot cash or farm produce. This change in our method of doing business has not been decided upon without due consideration of the interests of our customers as well as our own. "We find that in the credit system long accounts and bad debts, with the consequent loss of interest and capital, necessitates charging more for goods than the cash customer should pay. We believe that a business conducted on a strictly cash basis will prove to be mutually beneficial to buyer and seller. During the past week we have marked every article in all lines down to the lowest possible figure for a spot cash consideration, and will be glad to have you call, inspect our goods, and learn the prices. From this date cash customers will be given the benefit of the big reduction, and after July 1st no goods will be sold on any other terms than cash or its equivalent. All book accounts due and current must be paid in full during month of July, either by cash or note.

We return thanks to the many customers and friends who have favored us with their trade under the old system, and feel assured that under the new, they will find it very much to their advantage to continue their patronage. J. H. MCLAUGHLIN
