Paralysis and Locomotor Ataxia
The most dreaded results of neglected nervous diseases—Study this chart and the symptoms stated here to learn if you are in danger—
DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD will cure you.

To understand paralysis and locomotor ataxia, which is paralysis of the limbs, and their causes, it is well to remember that every movement of the body or its members is due to the contraction of muscle, which can only take place under the influence of nerve force. As this all-important nerve force is taken in the form of a...

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food
acts on the system in an entirely different way to ordinary medicines. It is neither a stimulant to whip tired nerves to renewed activity, nor a narcotic, or opiate, to deaden the nerves. On the contrary, it is a food cure, which forms new, red corpuscles in the blood and creates new nerve cells. Every day it is bringing back health, strength and vitality to scores and hundreds who have become discouraged through the failure of doctors and other treatments to cure them. Why not get started on the way to health at once by using this great food cure? Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50. At all dealers, or EDMANSON, BATES & CO., LIMITED, Toronto.

Friendships.

If you prove a friend, there are friends for you who will brighten your onward way. There are hearts that are tender and strong and true.

If you seek them here to day, but beware of the false friends who beguile. When you say they are true, they will laugh and guff with alluring smiles, but they fall you one by one.

One by one, should misfortune come, will they falter and fade away. For their hands grow cold and their lips are dry.

When they think it will not pay, Ah! then does the true friend prove his worth. With his strong arm to the end, if a glimpse of heaven be found on earth 'Tis the smile of such a friend.

Buttermilk as a Life-Saver.
Prof. Metchnikoff, of the Pasteur Institute of Paris, says the longevity of the Bulgarian, and some other Oriental people, is due to their continued and free use of sour milk. He is well as Prof. Masoof of Geneva, and other European authorities, state that for diseases of the intestinal tract, buttermilk is a valuable remedy. As a medicine, the lactic acid of buttermilk retards the growth of putrefactive and pathogenic organisms and its use as a curative agent, in digestive disorders, dates back for several centuries. These medical proportions are due to the fact of the presence of the strong lactic acid bacteria in the buttermilk being able to overcome the harmful bacteria, these bacteria having been the cause of diseases of the body. Prof. Metchnikoff states further: 'by the simple process of drinking a glass of buttermilk you allow an enormous fighting army of good microbes well trained and thoroughly equipped for war, to enter your body, they know no enemy but the bad microbes and they proceed to slaughter these before they can do you any more harm.'

As a food, sour milk has been used since the beginning of history and has the advantage over sweet milk in that its casein is so changed and subdivided as to produce a smaller curd, therefore, more easily digested, and if properly prepared, free from harmful bacteria. Buttermilk has also proven useful in the modified feeding of healthy infants and in adults as an addition to the diet in exhausting illness. In typhoid fever it is both a food and a medicine, furnishing energy and retarding the intestinal putrefaction which adds so much to the toxemia of the disease. A glass of buttermilk contains as much nourishment as half a pint of oysters, two ounces of bread or a good-sized potato.

Looking into the composition of buttermilk we find that it contains about eight per cent, solids, composed of sugar of milk, a trace of butter-fat, casein and albumen and some ash and mineral matter. When buttermilk is allowed to stand for a day or the usually almost all the casein and albumen settles to the bottom of the per cent, water which the buttermilk contains and the milk, sugar, fat and ash rise into the upper strata of the liquid, forming a transparent liquid on top and a white liquid below. In other words, the buttermilk wheys off.

Now, you might pour off this transparent liquid from day to day until you have nothing left but one or three per cent, of caseous matter originally contained in the buttermilk. In other words, you have thrown away nearly all of your sugar, nearly all your mineral matter, all of the fat and some of the casein. You have poured off the most easily digested, the part that contains the lactic acid bacteria and all of the medicinal properties of the buttermilk, and have retained only a part of the casein. While the casein is of food value, it has no medicinal value. To make the point still stronger, the casein is extensively used for the manufacturing of cottage cheese, cheap skim milk cheese, buttons, combs, paper sizing, etc., while out of the whey, sugar of milk, that we use for the sweetening of infant foods is extracted. Unless your buttermilk becomes too sour, do not pour off the whey or watery appearing liquid which forms on the top of the buttermilk, but 'shake well before using.' Buttermilk would not be buttermilk if it were not for the fact that the lactic acid of the whey is present.

A Noble Woman.
A noble woman does not descend to sarcasm, hints, insinuations nor any speeches of covered poison. She unconsciously tries to render herself agreeable to whomsoever she is with.

She is polite to her own children. She never makes a weapon of her power to be disagreeable in order to gain her own way.

She never reads the letters of other people, nor repeats what she has heard of other people's affairs.

She is true to her convictions, firm in her self respect, faithful and unchanging in her love, gentle in her manner, unobtrusive in her relations to others, and the more intimate one becomes with her the more one esteems her.

In a word the false aristocrats are they among whom familiarity breeds contempt; the aristocrats of the spirit are they who the nearer you come to them, and the more closely you know them, the more highly you hold them.

Work might be more to our liking if we didn't have to do it.

Educational Advantages.
None of the advantages that women enjoy to-day were won without a struggle. At the beginning of the 19th century a married woman could not hold any property or make a will; no woman could go to college and industrial pursuits outside of the home could not collect their own wages. Though many supported prodigal husbands. Married mothers had no legal rights to their own children. (Are these the facts that supply the basis for the sometimes heard assertion that the 'law favors woman'?)

Toward the end of the first quarter of the century higher education had taken a firm hold upon the imaginations of the more advanced women of the country. Mrs. Emma Willard opened the first female seminary in this country in 1821. Ridicule and contumely were the fortune of the woman who dared to study geometry and Latin. A few years later Boston had a temper of opposition and against a high school for girls. It was not until fifty years later that the great movement for women's higher education was reached. The sciences were fruitful years in this country and in England. To day opposition to the idea of woman's education has betaken itself into other channels. Ministers, who thirty years ago were thundering denunciations from the pulpit, are preaching baccalaureate sermons. Mothers who went to college as the Crusaders went to Palestine, a holy war fire in their veins, forget their piety and peacefully with their own daughters at Alma mater reunions.—New
