THE weekly market reports and doings of Farm Conventions are two things that every farmer should, in his own interest, read carefully. To the farmer it is worth many times the subscription price.

THE second of the series of concerts under the auspices of the Presbyterian church was held in the Lyceum on Sat-urday evening where a good audience listened to the impersonations of John B. Ratto and were much pleased with the evening's entertainment. Mr. Ratto makes his changes on the stage in view of the audience and it is certainly marvellous how rapidly he changes his make-up from one character to another. His delineations are exceeding realistic, and it would be hard to improve upon them.

MR. OLLERHEAD, of the Post Office Inspector's office, London, was here on Tuesday looking over the ground with a view to the re-arrangement of the Walnut and Sutorville mail routes and the probable establishing of new routes to be operated from the Watford office. In the new arrangement there will likely be a route along the 4th and 6th line to townline; one on 2nd line and Main Road, and one on 10th and 12th lines, but nothing definite will be known for some time as the matter will be looked into thoroughly by the Department and arranged so as to serve the greatest number of people. The adding of new outes will no doubt cause the closing of some of the smaller offices and larger staff will be required at the Wa ford office as the work here will be much heavier than at present.

A CORRESPONDENT writes :- Another nth of the school year has passed, but not the result of your boy's or girl's faithful endeavor. The fruit of one month's honest study will strengthen the wall between knowledge and ignorance, provided that a clear and definite aim has been cherished in the pursuit of one's study. Without purpose, how-ever, the month's work has not the same ever, the month's work has not the same value. The pupil who, after the age of 14, attends school because forced to do so, is as useless at school as at home. Far better see your child learning a trade than mere dabbling at books. The boy or girl who cannot be induced to prepare his or her homework at night, comes to school the wart der with comes to school the next day with a mind as empty as a last year's nest, (that is with respect to the day's work) and about as useless. And again the pupil who will not listen to, or respect the wishes of the parent, is not likely to obey the teacher, and his or her influence upon the class is far from elevating. Do not burden the teacher with the added load of a child who refuses to obey at

The corporation expresses itself willing to meet a committee from the council or board of trade at any time to talk over matters.
