

hang the feet up to a tree for good luck. They believe a partridge must be picked while warm and hung to the belt by the wing as soon as killed, or they would be unlucky.

On killing a porcupine, they tie a string to one fore and one hind foot, and so carry it home on their back. As soon as they get home, the women sharpen a stick and put it through up to the nose, then they blow up the animal with wind, singe the hair off, and hang him up over the fire so that he will turn round and round until cooked. Then, for good luck, they hang up a "green brush" in the same way and leave it until all the "green things" are burned off by the fire.
