

inflammatory character. It should be read by every unregenerate man and the truly good physician.

The Philadelphia Item speaks thusly of the author: "We give Edward Noyes Westcott his true place in American letters—placing him as a humorist next to Mark Twain, as a master of dialect above Lowell, as a descriptive writer equal to Bret Harte, and, on the whole, as a novelist on a par with the best of those who live and have their being in the heart of hearts of American readers. If the author is dead—lamentable fact—his book will live."

The Boston Literary World says that it is "true, strong, and thoroughly alive, with a humor like that of Abraham Lincoln, and a nature as sweet at the core. . . . The book adds one more to the interesting list of native fiction destined to live portraying certain localities and types of American life and manners."

---

"PROGRESSIVE MEDICINE."—The following announcement should have appeared in our last issue: Messrs. Lea Brothers & Co. announce for publication in March, 1899, the first volume of Progressive Medicine, a new annual which will be issued in four handsome octavo, cloth bound and richly illustrated volumes of about four hundred pages each. The several volumes will appear at intervals of three months. In this age of unusual progress, so rapid is the advance in all departments of medical and surgical science that the need for condensed summaries which shall keep the practitioner up to date at the least possible expenditure of valuable time has become imperative. What the busy physician needs to-day is a well-told tale of medical progress in all its lines of thought, told in each line by one well qualified to cull only that matter worthy of his attention and necessary to his success. He needs material which shall teach him all that the master of his specialty knows of the year's work. To insure completeness of material and harmony of statement, each narrative will receive the careful supervision of the general editor, Dr. Hobart Amory Hare. Those associated with Dr. Hare in the production of Progressive Medicine include a brilliant gathering of the younger element of the profession. With the appreciation of the self-evident utility of such a work to all practitioners, the publishers are enabled to ask the very moderate subscription price of ten dollars for the four volumes. The publishers offer to send full descriptive circulars and sample pages to those applying for them.