Mr. Speaker: I declare the amendment lost.

Mr. Tucker: Mr. Speaker, I was paired. Had I voted, I would have voted against the amendment.

Mr. Herridge: Mr. Speaker, I was paired with the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources. Had I voted, I would have supported the principle, purpose and spirit of the amendment.

Mr. Speaker: The house will now revert to the business interrupted at six o'clock.

Some hon. Members: Question.

Mr. Speaker: Order, please. The suggestion being made by hon. members is that the question on third reading of the bill be put, but I suggest that it would require the unanimous consent of the house to put the question at this time.

Some hon. Members: Agreed.

Mr. Howard: Mr. Speaker, this is far, far too important an item to rush through at this moment.

Some hon. Members: Oh, oh.

Mr. Speaker: The house will now revert to the business interrupted at six o'clock.

BANK ACT

DECENNIAL REVISION AND EXTENSION OF CHARTERS

The house resumed consideration in Committee of Bill No. C-222, respecting banks and banking—Mr. Sharp—Mr. Batten in the chair.

On clause 2—Definitions.

Mr. Otto: Mr. Chairman, this debate started off surprisingly harmoniously with the hon. members of all parties on the opposite side of the house being rather complimentary to the minister and the committee in connection with this bill and the amendments proposed in committee. There were some suggestions made by the hon. member for Victoria-Carleton. He said: I think the main question is, is this bill going to meet our banking and credit requirements for the next ten years? But he did not answer that question.

The hon. member for St. Paul's made several suggestions and indeed pointed out the incongruity of our banking system as it relates to our banking requirements; but he was very polite about it and tried to slay the
