DECISION TODAY IN AMBERG CASE

Some Comment on Cases of Liquor Stealing at This Port

Joseph Amberg, charged with stealing a case of liquor from the C. P. R. while in the company's employ, pleaded nolo in the police court this morning and the preliminary hearing was concluded. E. S. Ritchie, counsel for the prisoner, said that while he thought the evidence sufficient to have his client sent up for trial, the crown witnesses were also guilty and he did not see why Amberg should be made an example of and the others go free. He stated that if Amberg be sent up for trial he is admitted to bail as he was a married man and had eight children to support.

E. C. Weyman, representing the C. P. R., said he had nothing to say except to remind the magistrate that Mr. Ritchie for the prisoner had admitted that the evidence was sufficient to have Amberg committed for trial. The magistrate reviewed the evidence which showed that the men had been drinking before it occurred to them to tamper with the liquor being shipped. He remarked upon liquor cases which had come before him in which longshoremen were involved and said that it was in the interests of their association that the drinking of liquor should not be allowed upon the premises where they were employed and that the men themselves should see that this was enforced. If the longshoremen wished it, he would be only too glad to address them and point out how they could benefit by keeping sober on the work. He also remarked that they would be giving the port a bad name by their actions as well as hurting their own reputations. In this case he was acting ministerially and not judicially and he could only commit the prisoner for trial or dismiss him according to the evidence. "When I speak of acting judicially at some times and ministerially at others," said the magistrate, "there are many persons outside the rail who will not understand what I mean, there are those inside who will not understand, lawyers sometimes do not know the difference and there are even judges who do not understand the distinction."

As another case was coming on, decision was reserved until this afternoon.

THE NOON TRAIN IS RESTORED

Gutelius Decision Received Today—The Evening Service

At last the news has come! After some days of anxious waiting the suburbanites along the line of the I. C. R. have heard from Manager Gutelius, through L. R. Ross, criminal agent, who has received instructions to have the noon train restored. This will be cheerful news to all concerned, but was not unexpected, because in view of the many strong arguments presented at last Saturday's meeting, and since advanced by suburban residents, it was difficult to understand how any other decision could be reached, than that concerning the restoration of the noon train.

FOR PROTECTION OF THE FERNHILL PROPERTY

Legislature to Be Asked For Power to Eject Unpleasant Visitors From Cemetery

The Fernhill Cemetery Company is seeking from the legislature an amendment to their charter to secure power to eject undesirable persons from the cemetery grounds. At present the cemetery is regarded almost as public property and the company and its officials have no authority for keeping anyone out or ejecting anyone from the premises. This has been found inconvenient at times, as some persons have been guilty of damaging the monuments as well as the trees and flower beds. When the desired amendment is secured the caretakers will be able to deal promptly with any further cases of this kind.

MONEY GAINED BY THEFT USED FOR EDUCATION OF ENGLISH ORPHAN GIRLS

George Gunning, Through With One Sentence, Faces Charge of $20,000 Diamond Theft

Philadelphia, Feb. 12—George Gunning, who the police say has an international reputation as a "society" thief, has been taken by police at Portsmouth, N. H., where he is wanted to answer a charge of stealing $20,000 worth of diamonds while serving a term for Mrs. George H. Studenaker in June, 1912.

He was released from the county prison here after serving a term for stealing diamonds valued at $2,500, from a physician in this city, by whom he was employed.

Gunning said that the proceeds of his recent robberies have been used to educate two orphan girls who befriended him in England. He said the girls do not know their benefactor is a thief.

BURST OF FLAME SENDS FIRE CAPTAIN FROM HIGH LADDER TO THE STREET

New York, Feb. 12—Hurled to the street from the top of a thirty-five foot ladder by a wall of flame which broke through a window which he was trying to open, Captain John Corley, of Engine Company No. 129, narrowly escaped death while fighting a fire in a loft building in Warren street.

A little while before Captain Corley was injured, members of his company chopped their way through a heavy door and rescued Mrs. Margaret Shorter, eighty years old, whom they found unconscious in the ground floor hallway of the building adjoining.

How the fire started was not known. It originated in the quarters of Galewski & Co., manufacturers of paper bags, on the second floor of the five story loft building. When the firemen arrived the flames had spread through the third and fourth floors, occupied by the Sumeka Novelty Co. and were eating their way up to the top floor of the building in which Mrs. Shorter has lived for forty years.

The aged woman hurried down stairs as soon as she saw the flames, but her way to the street was barred by the closed door and she finally was overcome by the smoke. She was revived by an ambulance surgeon.

Captain Corley, thrown to the pavement by a fierce blast of flame, suffered bruises and a badly wrenched side. He was removed to the company's quarters.
