'And I don't want any cats around.' 'That's just like you! Its a wonder to me the brute creation doesn't fly when you step out doors. I wouldn't have as hard a heart as you for all the

'And as for pigs, Mr. Bowser, I hope you won't think of 'em. The neighbors haven't yet got over your last adventure in the pig line.'

'My adventure!' he shoated. You teased me to buy a pig and build a pen. I wanted to gratify you, pumpkin-head that I was and I bought a pig. What did I have to do with his caling the whole 24 hours? What did I have to do with his getting out of the pen a dozen times per day?'

'Oh, well, let's not have any more cows or pigs or hens or dogs. We don't seem to understand them.'

'Don't we! We don't if we don't and like to make a home of a home, but others think of nothing but dressing and gadding the streets.'

He didn't reply to that, and next morning when he opened the back door the same three boys were waiting for tied with ropes, and the boys kept a vigilant eye on him besides. That's what Mr. Bowser was up to, and as I knew he had set his heart on it, I said are seen in Paris millinery and Paris never a word. He sneaked out to the barn, came to terms with the boys, and the goat was turned into the back yard. When we had finished breakfast Mr. Bowser placidly inquired:

'Mrs. Bowser, do you know that there is money in goats?'

'Yes but you never will. You can't expect to. You were not born that way. However, I have a surprise for you and the child I have just made purchase of a goat. 'A real goat?'

'Certainly. Some folks deal in the imitation. I never do. Come out into the back yard.'

We went out. William had just finished eating the last of the kitchen towels the girl had on the grass, and he acted like a goat that wanted something more solid to finish upon. Mr. Bowser took baby in his arms and started down the steps, and William lowered his head and struck out with his foot.

'He may be dangerous, Mr. Bowser. 'Dangerous! so is a canary bird. You will see him take to the child like a fly to sugar. See how stately he stands. I'll have a photographer up here this afternoon.

He was advancing as he talked, and he was not half way across the yard when I saw a streak of goat shooting across the grass. A duil thud followed and baby flew over the clothes line and Mr. Bowser went to grass. How I got 5,000 Rolls, English, American and Canadian Ha the child into the house I can't remem ber, but I guess the goat was too busy with Mr. Bowser to notice me. They rolled over and over. They rose up and went down again. Sometimes Mc Bowser was on his hands and knees, and again he was boudled up on the grass. I screamed for the cook, and with great presence of mind she seized a couple of iresh sheets off the clothesbars, and ran out with them as an offering. The goat preferred sheets to Bowser, and as he turned away and began to devour them; my husband ty. He had been hit in what they call the 'bread basket,' and in the small of the back and between the shoulders, and indeed, the goat had neglected no opening. He uttered a groan and crept into the house and tumbled on the lounge It took me an hour to get the grass and sand out of the baby's hair and ears, and I had just finished when Mr. Bowser rolled off the lounge, ran down stairs for the snow-shovel, and a minute fater he appeared in the back yard and made a rush for the goat. He hit the one Hundred Bbls AMERICAN giuthes-reel, the barn, the fence and HOME LIGHT OIL. clothes-reel, the barn, the fence and Never was fashion so capricious varied and adaptable in her moods as she is this fall. All fashionable dresses have long draperies and very little looping of the skirt, back or front.

Emerald green is combined with tur quois blue in some of the most elegant toques of this season. The morning robe most in favor takes the Princess form, but it is made with many modifications.

King Cnarles cloth is a fleece woven woollen cloaking stuff that is much in favor for little girls' "coats." The round hat or toque, with a strait high crown, sunken in on the top, is a first favorite this season. Fringes, which for some years have been neglected as trimmings, have again been taken into fashionable fa-

Birds' wings and tails and quil feathers are much used in millinery, but whole birds are no longer seen hats or bonnets.

The wide empire sash, passed twice around the waist and knotted low on one side, is seen on numbers of imported fall costumes. The very latest fancy in waists of gowns for grown women is the guimpe bodice, very much like the guimpe waists of little girls. The variety in styles of wraps, nets, hats, gowns and materials this fall
