LOYALTY.

The avowed purpose of the Imperial press conference is to afford representative journalists from all parts of the Empire an opportunity to gain first hand impressions of British institutions and to come into personal touch with some of the men who at the present time are exercising a potent influence in the affairs of state. It is today accepted as a matter of course that a visit to the British Isles will intensify the loyalty of the colonist from any of the dominions over the seas. It is significant that such is the inevitable result. It is not the least important of the forces that binds together the various and seemingly divergent parts of the Empire.

When Canadians return and recount their impressions they do not by these words account for their impressions. The story of England's wealth and wealth-getting, accounts for much, but not for everything. The man from the frontier accustomed to much boasting of material prosperity is usually astonished when he finds himself surrounded by the evidence of the permanent prosperity of England. The power of Great Britain is never more impressively demonstrated than by a naval review. It is quite impossible to resist the fascinating influence of these grim grey monsters of the British navy. They seem unquestionably competent to execute British commands anywhere and everywhere. The colonist at home is complacently provincial. He is prosperous, happy, and contented and usually somewhat of a person in his own limited domain. But the colonial in England comes into contact with a new and effective type of citizenship. The Britisher is ready at all times to take a hand in the game of world politics. He is distinguished by right of power in the world at large. It is not actually boss of the whole job, he does not lose through meekness and modesty any of the pleasure such a position would give. Contact with such men destroys the contentment of the Provincial.

There is, however, a more subtle influence exerted by Great Britain. It is quite impossible for a Canadian to read British history without intensifying his loyalty to British institutions. It is quite true that much that has been done calls for apology and that no defence can be made for some acts of foolishness and other acts of oppression. Moreover, it is not apparent that England has ever manifested any inferior disposition for political "highway" men who expect the Englishman to sit in sackcloth and ashes over the deeds of dead Englishmen, except vain things. But there is a certain very convincing sort of loyalty to "liberty, to justice and to truth," which cannot escape the character of British history. There is no apology for crooked ways in the past, nor yet any easy promise for the future, but there has been and there is a certain impressive and traditional determination to make the ways of the nation's going as straight as they can be made.

The colonial in England renews his loyalty to the Empire, not because he dreams dreams of commercial advantage, nor yet because he sees visions of imperial splendor, but rather because he finds there a group of men, actually doing in world politics that which appeals to him as right and just. Loyalty within the Empire depends almost entirely upon freedom of intercourse between the peoples of the Empire.

The argument needs to be carried one step farther. Few will be disposed to deny that Great Britain has occupied a fairly advanced position because of the political corruptions which have controlled her people, but the same development that is discoverable there is to be seen elsewhere. The real difficulty is that men do not take the trouble to see it. Imperial press conferences are good for the Empire, but it would be well to extend the idea and to make an equal effort to understand other peoples of other lands. It is impossible to resist the conviction that the work of disavowment is being slowly accomplished by the increasing intercourse between the nations of the world.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES.

The formation of the "business opportunities" department of the Intercolonial Railway will be heartily welcomed by all those who live in the provinces served by this railway. Its object is to make known the resources and possibilities of the various districts through which the road passes with the idea of attracting capital and developing further business. This policy, if successful, will be of great assistance to the railway as it is generally recognized that local traffic is the best paying. In developing this business, however, the country will benefit even more than the railway. At a time when the opportunities of the west are so widely advertised, any movement which will result in making better known the many opportunities for business development in the Maritime Provinces will be greatly appreciated by those who have the interests of this section of the Dominion at heart. There are almost boundless possibilities in these provinces, but in the past our own citizens have had the habit of overlooking them in viewing the attractiveness of more remote fields. There has been little systematic effort to attract business men to the provinces and the opportunities for them are hardly known outside of our own territory. With the co-operation of local boards of trade and similar organizations the new railway department should be able to accomplish much for the Maritime Provinces.

The naval review witnessed by the press delegates off Portsmouth on Saturday should help to reassure those who are inclined to worry about British naval supremacy.

Newcastle will look for a big boom as the result of the decision of the Drummonds to make that place their shipping port.

FASHION NOTE.

With curls and puffs she labors long to make her head look right. And then she dons a monster hat. And puts it out of sight.

So silly is this maiden fair That we think you will find The head which she puts out of sight Is also out of mind.

When style and beauty are combined, What lack ye of delight? The face you think is "out of mind" Say, ain't it "out of sight"?

ST. JOHN LADIES WILL ATTEND WOMEN'S CONGRESS

Whole Continent Will be Represented—A Big Gathering Expected.

At the quinquennial gathering of the International Congress of Women, the local women's council will have a strong representation. Mrs. David McLean, Mrs. Robert Thomson and Miss Mabel Peters will leave today to attend the exercises. The sessions will be held this morning and afternoon at the Grand Hotel. Delegates from over the continent will attend.

In speaking with a star representative last evening, Mrs. McLean stated that this gathering would probably surpass any conducted by the women's council in other years. Lady Aberdeen, the president, will occupy the chair at the sessions.

There is no special matter which the local delegates will bring before the meeting. However, they contemplate participation in the discussion. Mrs. McLean will read for the meeting the paper on "Pure Food," written by Miss Galt.

Miss Mabel Peters is convener of the playground committee. The work of this committee is rapidly increasing. A number of the playgrounds have already been opened. However, at the close of the school term, it is expected that the entire number will be started.

SEND-OFF FOR MISSIONARIES

Presbyterian Union Gives a Reception for its 62 New Recruits.

In the ball room of the Hotel Savoy, the Presbyterian Union gave a hearty send-off last night to the sixty-two young men and women who are to take up the Union's missionary work in foreign fields this year.

After the reception and dinner twelve of the newly appointed missionaries told the diners how it felt to be a missionary. The description given by Miss Janet Scott Galbreath, who has just graduated from Northfield Seminary and who is going to do missionary work in Mexico, told the diners how she came to choose missionary work.

"My parents were quite poor," she explained. "I never even went to grammar school, but had to go and work for ten years in a mill. I tried to become a trained nurse, but failed. Then the wife of our pastor told us about missionary work, and I longed to become a missionary. But I had no money and all my friends discouraged me. Then suddenly as I was reading a passage in St. John, I saw how a few years course in Northfield College could be arranged, and I have just graduated."

All the diners arose and cheered Miss Janet Montgomery, of F. E. I. who has been a missionary for twenty-seven years in Persia, and Missionary Fulton, who has worked twenty-nine years in the Chinese field, told the new missionaries that "grace, grit, and gumption" were the three essential qualities for a successful missionary.

Does not Color the Hair

Ayer's Hair Vigor is composed of Sulphur, Glycerin, Quinine, Sulfon Chloride, Capsicum, Sassafras, Alcohol, Water, Perfume. Show this to your doctor. Ask him if there is a single ingredient. Ask him if he thinks Ayer's Hair Vigor, as made from this formula, is the best preparation you could use for falling hair, or for dandruff. Let him decide. He knows.

THE FIGHTING FAULTLESS.

(By Edward Jack Appleton.) He has come the way of fighting men, all fought, by the rule of the Game.

And out of life he has gathered—what? A living—and a fame—Ever and ever the goal looms near—seeming each time worth while, But ever it proves a mirage fair—ever the grim gods smile.

And so, with lips hard set and white, he hurries the hope that is gone—His light is lost—and he knows it is lost—and yet he is fighting on.

Out of the smoke of the battle-line, watching men win their way, And cheering with those who cheer such; he enters again the fray, Licking the blood and dust from his lips, wiping the sweat from his eyes.

He does the work he is set to do, and "heroic" he is called in fame. Brave they were, those men he cheered, there is the winners' thrill; His light is lost—and he knows it is lost—and yet he is fighting still.

And those who have won have rest and peace; and those who have died have more; But weary and spent, he can not stop, seeking the ultimate score. Courage was theirs for a little time, but what of the man who sees, The world will hold them close to her, Side by side with grim defeat, He fights it out, and he knows it is lost—and yet he is fighting still.

Praise for the warriors who succeed, and tears for the vanquished dead. The world will hold them close to her, heart, wreathing each honored head; But there in the ranks, soul-tick, tired, he battles against the odds, Sans hope, but true to his colors torn, The playing of the gods to use it, Uncover when he goes by at last! Field to his task by will.

The fight is lost—and he knows it is lost—and yet he is fighting still!

JUST ONE DAY

How the Coffee Drinker Compromises His Health

Some people say: "Coffee don't hurt me," and then add: "Anyway I only drink one cup a day." If coffee hurts you, why not drink more? There is but one answer and that is coffee does hurt them and they know it. When they drink it once a day they compromise with their enemy. There are people whom one cup of coffee a day will put in bed, if they have heart trouble.

"Although warned by physicians to leave coffee alone I have always been fond of it," confesses an Ohio lady, "I compromised with myself and drank just one cup every morning and about six weeks ago."

"All the time I was drinking coffee I had heart trouble that grew steadily worse and finally I had such alarming sensations in my head, sometimes causing me to faint, that I at last took my doctor's advice and quit coffee and began to use Postum in its place."

"The results have been all that the doctor hoped for. I have not only lost my heart trouble, but I feel better, my heart trouble has ceased and I have no more dizzy spells in my head. I feel better in every way and consider myself a very fortunate woman to have found the truth about Postum."

Look in packages for the famous little book, "The Road to Wellville." There's more to read the older letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

NATAL VOTES TO JOIN

SOUTH AFRICAN UNION

DURBAN, Natal, June 12.—A referendum on the subject of joining the South African Union has resulted in favor of the latter by a vote of 11,321 to 3,701. This assumes the complete federation of the South African colonies—the Transvaal, Cape Colony, and Orange River State, and Natal.

FIRE AT JOGGINS MINES.

JOGGINS MINES, N. S., June 14.—The most disastrous fire in the history of the province broke out Saturday in Melancon's store. The fire had a good start when discovered. The flames spread to the house owned by John Hennessy, and to the dwelling, barn and express office of Charles Melancon. These buildings were totally destroyed. The loss is $30,000 and only a partial insurance.

WHY DO SEALS SWALLOW STONES?

Nature's stunt seems yet to have discovered for what reason seals swallow stones, though the fact is a well established one. Certainly the stones are not taken in for ballast, for the empty seals keep down as easily as the others. They are not swallowed for the purpose of grinding up food, for they are found in the stomachs of nursing pups. They are not taken in with the food, because they are found in the stomachs of both young seals and in those that live in the open sea and feed on squid. Yet it is evident that these things are not swallowed haphazard, but are selected with considerable care from the articles strewn along the shore, and that a preference is exhibited for rounded objects. This is shown by the fact that, as a rule, only articles of one kind are found in any one seal's stomach.

HOULTON, Me., June 13.—Occupants of Friday's stock suffered damages of $30,000 in a fire of unknown origin in that building tonight. The loss is partly covered by insurance of G. W. Nichols' department store, occupying the basement where the fire started, was the heaviest loss. $30,000 being set as an approximate amount of damage to stock by smoke, fire and water. O. M. Smith's book store and McGee's shoe store, situated immediately above the department store, were damaged to the extent of about $10,000.

LESTONIA, Ohio, June 14.—Unknown persons blew up the First Presbyterian Church in this village last night with a dynamite bomb. Rev. J. M. Grimm, the pastor, has taken an active part in fighting the liquor cases now on trial at this place. This is the fifth attempt in the day or two at dynamiting in this village. Sheriff Davidson has put a large force of deputies to work and arrests are expected.

BOSTON, June 13.—A cablegram received today from United States Consul Cunningham, of Naples, states that the bride of Holland Bennett is returning to her home in this city, having failed to obtain any further information of the fate of her husband, who was lost overboard from the steamer Berlin on Thursday night.

GREENE, Wis., June 13.—Lightning struck the steeple of Holy Cross Catholic Church at Bay Settlement during mass today and killed Edward John, 30 years of age, and shocked and injured 16 other persons, two of whom may not survive. Panic prevailed for several minutes after the bolt struck. It was some time before Father Mickler could quiet the excited congregation of more than 30 persons.

BOSTON, Mass., June 13.—An enduring memorial to the firemen who have lost their lives in the performance of their duty—members of the old veteran companies as well as the youngest fire-fighters—was dedicated today in Forest Hill Cemetery. The statue is located upon a lot in the cemetery which has long been the property of the city's firemen. Today being the fireman's memorial day, the services attendant upon the dedication were especially impressive.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 13.—Delegates to the thirty-sixth annual convention of the Catholic Church, held here today, were welcomed by the city's firemen. The delegates included the pupils in all the leading churches today. This evening J. B. McDonough, of Colchester, Mich., presided at a meeting devoted to the discussion of the methods of state and private child saving agencies and the help they give in laying a worthy foundation for society.

WABASH HEAD, Mass., June 13.—In anticipation of the second yachting invasion this summer for the race for the Cup, the local yachtsmen are in the Sonder yachting, a sport which calls for a small, inexpensive, easily handled, but restricted type of pleasure boat, is reviving rapidly, and nearly a dozen newly built little craft are already riding at anchor. It is expected that the entire fleet of American aspirants for the three places on the team which will represent this country in the cup races, will be in commission.

U. S. BATTLESHIP NOT

DAMAGED BY GROUNDING

They are Used to it by This Time.

WASHINGTON, June 13.—While it was admitted at the navy department today that the new battleship Michigan went aground off Cape Cod during her trial trip last Friday, denial was made to the report that her propeller was badly damaged and that it would be necessary for her to return to dry dock for repairs before continuing the trial.

An official report of the grounding has been received at the department from Rear Admiral McLean, president of the Board of Inspection and Survey, who is representing the department during the official trials.

It is said that the vessel barely touched the mud bottom and no difficulty was experienced in floating her. No serious damage resulted. The vessel is still in the hands of her builders, the New York Shipbuilding Co., not yet having been accepted by the government.

NEWSPAPER MEN WERE THE

GUESTS OF G. CECIL BOULT

Happy Gathering at White's on Saturday Evening—May Organize a Press Club.

That the newspaper men of the city are fully capable of enjoying themselves was clearly demonstrated on Saturday evening. About fifteen "writers of the pen," with a few friends, gathered at White's restaurant on the kind invitation of Cecil Boulton, of the Sun staff.

After ample justice had been done, an elaborate dinner, an enjoyable programme was rendered. Notwithstanding the many songs and readings, the flow of eloquence was unimpeded. Mr. Boulton was the first speaker of the evening. He proposed that a press union be organized. There were other addresses also. Frank McCafferty's remarks were most interesting. He concurred in the proposal to organize a reading.

Bruce Robb, of the Star, proposed the toast of "Canada, Our Country." Then came the toast to "The Ladies." G. R. Black was slated to propose the toast, but he felt a mistake had been made. However, he entertained the gathering with a reading of last week's editorial on the subject of the press union. After his customary preliminary he gave a poem of his own composition, which showed poetic ability of no mean order. Frank McCafferty, R. E. Walker and Mr. Dunlop contributed songs.

By no means the least interesting portion of the programme then followed. About thirty years ago Mr. Boulton gave a reading, which could hardly have been better, and Mr. Boulton also entertained the gathering with two of his war readings. After Mr. Boulton's reading, the gathering was broken off into a few remarks on athletics. He also advocated the formation of a press union.

As a result of the banquet a committee consisting of Frank McCafferty, A. E. McNeil, Bruce Robb, Frank Ellis, A. E. Golding, R. E. Walker, O. E. McNeil, G. M. McDade, and Arthur McCaskey has been appointed to formulate details for the formation of a press union.

DIED WHILE ON A

FISHING EXCURSION

NORTH READING, Mass., June 13.—A fishing trip to Martins Pond, this town, had an ending today when Albert G. Ham, 62 years, of Cliffdale, met his death by the burning of the little shelter in which he was sleeping. Ham, with his son Albert, who is about 40 years old, and two other men, came here yesterday afternoon and last night the younger Ham and his two companions went out on the pond to fish, intending to remain all night and leaving his father alone in the little cottage on the shore.

Early this morning the three fishermen noticed an unusually bright light in the cottage and started ashore at once. Before they could reach the scene, the structure was enveloped in flames, and it was only with the greatest difficulty and danger that Ham was taken out of the burning cottage. He died soon afterwards. It is believed that the explosion of a kerosene lamp caused the fire.

In the Cathedral yesterday morning at 9 o'clock mass His Lordship Bishop Casey, who had returned from Ottawa where he attended the funeral of Archbishop Duhamel, spoke feelingly of the prelate's death, and of the great loss sustained by the church. He referred to the fact that Archbishop Duhamel spent some little time in St. John on one occasion as the guest of the bishop.

TREES THAT WHISTLE AND WEEP.

In Nubia there is a curiosity in tree life. It is called the Sfor or Whistling tree. When the soft winds blow through its branches it gives forth delightful melodies after the manner of the old-time Aeolian harp. For hours at a time this strange weird music stretches out across the wilderness, thrilling the listener with a mad fantasy of pleasure. The Nubians claim that it is the spirits of the dead singing to those who are about to join them. Scientists say that the music is caused by millions of small holes bored by an insect in the spines of the leaves. Another tree that interests botanists is the Weeping tree of the Canary Islands. This tree, during the driest weather, will rain down regular showers from its leaves. The natives during a drought gather under the branches and fill their buckets. The water is clear and pure.
