

FOR WOMEN

A MUSEMENT

Women's Institute Elected Officers

Reports Received on Work Accomplished—Mrs. J. V. W. Lawlor President.

The Women's Institute held a well attended meeting yesterday at the Handicraft Shop, Union street yesterday afternoon. Mrs. J. V. W. Lawlor presiding. It was explained that this society has held meetings of a general nature, but that general meetings have been suspended for two reasons, one the lack of a suitable place and the other the fact that the work of the institute was being undertaken by the vocational classes.

Aim of Institute.
It is the aim of the Institute, Mrs. Lawlor stated, to have a room where sewing machines and stoves can be kept. Here women may come and learn cooking and sewing from its struggles.

Mrs. Lawlor gave a report of the Provincial Advisory Board meeting held recently in Fredericton.

The Officers.
The following officers were elected: Mrs. J. V. W. Lawlor, president; Mrs. T. N. Vincent, vice-president; Mrs. A. W. Adams, 2nd vice-president.

Eats Better, Sleeps Better, Feels Better

WHY W. M. ANDERSON PRAISES DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

Doctors Give Him a Few Months to Live—Now He Is Better Than Ever Expected to Be Again.

Monte Creek Hotel, Monte Creek, B. C., May 9.—(Special)—There is no more enthusiastic believer in Dodd's Kidney Pills than Mr. W. M. Anderson, a well-known resident here. Mr. Anderson goes so far as to state he believes he owes his life to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was in a very weak condition, not only from kidney trouble, but also from bronchitis, from which I have suffered for years," Mr. Anderson states. "Two years ago the doctors gave me only a few months to live."

"I commenced taking Dodd's Kidney Pills and also Diamond Diaper Pills, which are a valuable adjunct. I soon found relief and I persevered. Today I am eating better and sleeping better and feeling better than I ever expected to again."

"I find it is not necessary now to take Dodd's Kidney Pills constantly. But I would not be without them for anything."

Ask your neighbors if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the remedy sick kidneys are crying for.

MINISTERS MEETING

The weekly meeting of the Methodist ministers took place in the parlors of Centenary church yesterday morning. Reference was made to two sermons with long and distinguished records, one of whom, Rev. Dr. S. F. Huestis was present. Dr. Huestis thanked the members of the association for their remembrance on Sunday. Several of those present replied and spoke appreciatively of Dr. Huestis' long and distinguished career. Reference was also made to the fact that Rev. John S. Crisp is completing his 50th year in the ministry.

Matters concerning the department of social services were introduced by Rev. H. A. Goodwin and discussed at length. Routine business took up the rest of the session. Those present were Rev. Neil MacLachlan, Rev. E. Styles, Rev. G. F. Dawson, Rev. Samuel Howard, Rev. J. B. Gough, Rev. H. B. Clarke, Rev. Dr. Huestis and Rev. H. A. Goodwin.

PYTHIAN SISTERS

The Pythian Sisters, Loyalist Chapter, No. 13, held their regular meeting in the Temple Building, North End, last evening. Routine business was transacted. The majority of the members were present.

A FINE MODEL

A fully rigged and exceptionally well carved model of the Olympic in an exhibition in the window of Waterbury & Riesing, Ltd., King street. The model, which is so large that it almost fills the window, attracted much attention and elicited much favorable comment among the passers-by. It was carved by Private N. Hamm, late of the 26th Battalion, during his spare time.

PURCHASED MACHINERY

Thomas Stephen, of the Stephen Construction Co. returned from Upper Canada yesterday, where he placed orders for about $58,000 worth of construction machinery, including a complete asphalt plant, crushers, rollers, a Keaton's excavator and other odds and ends of equipment. This company is waiting for a settlement of the power company matter to go ahead with the pavement of Douglas avenue.

MOTOR TRUCK DAMAGED

A motor truck owned by the Purdy Ice Cream Co. collided with a telephone pole on DeMonts street yesterday afternoon and was somewhat damaged.

Mr. John Chappell, Fredericton, was in the city yesterday attending a meeting of the Executive of Grand Orange Lodge.

"The Furnace" A Splendid Picture

Imperial Theatre Thronged With Satisfied Patrons When Great Story Shown.

Commencing with a wonderfully fine series of Alton pictures and then going into that remarkable picture, "The Furnace," Imperial Theatre purveyed a programme yesterday that would be hard to beat for a dollar and a half in a Broadway picture palace. The music, too, was most enjoyable. Large crowds answered the publicity call to see if "The Furnace" was really what was claimed for it. They seem to have been satisfied to the very fullest. Possibly a society picture for a long time has been so wonderfully filmed.

This inscription stands out in a stained glass window design of Christ on the Cross, placed at the rear of the altar in St. Mary's, London, where Polly Vallance, actress, is married to Anthony Bond, Canadian millionaire.

It sets the motto for the whole piece—an appeal for sincerity in the marriage relationship. A superbly conceivable wedding; a wonderful honeymoon; a country place; a town mansion; unlimited wealth—everything was as sweet to both bride and groom because jealousy, suspicion and the artificiality of modern society life had driven out the saving grace of love.

Polly Vallance marries Anthony Bond, much to the delight of her snobby, ill-bred, parasitic family, who sense a meal-ticket in their new relation. Polly, herself, admired by many, thinks Anthony Bond "rather nice"—but in the beginning her feeling is not much deeper. We sense her, however, as a girl who has been starved for love and one of wonderful possibilities with a husband who cared—and understood.

But convention knives happiness on the very eve of the marriage. Anthony Bond, equally starved for love, learns that she has lightly said that if he filled her she would sue him for breach of promise. The straightforward Canadian takes this as a sign that she does not love him—but goes ahead with the marriage as a "business proposition." It would be cheaper than a suit! But he determines it shall be a union in name only—and so tells Polly on the first night of their honeymoon.

What little sprout of love there was in the heart of the girl shrivels and bursts into a whirl of reckless pleasure and irritation. Always Anthony is present, beneath the hooded and impenetrable courtship of his wife but cold and suspicious—always watching, that like Caesar's wife, she shall be above suspicion; for it is upon this condition only that he grants her his name and fortune.

Keene Mordant, lifelong friend of Anthony, tries to keep Polly from flying too far. Always he gently tries to further a reconciliation when she comes to him, bemoaning her unhappiness, the "all dressed up and no place to go" terribleness of marriage without love. "I've everything in the world," she says insensibly, "except the one thing I want!"

Count Svensen, an explorer of the Far North, enters this tragedy of errors. Holding over her a threat to disgrace her husband for a Canadian offense which he, Svensen, had really committed, but now turns to his own advantage, he induces her to run away with him.

Keene discovers their flight, pursues them to save Polly from the consequences of her flight, and drives through the rain for shelter to the closed country home of the Bonds. Arriving there, they find Bond, who was supposed to be on his way to Canada. Jumping at conclusions, Bond accuses his friend of treachery, and Keene, offended to the core, refuses to explain. Polly, however, tells of the Svensen incident and in the ensuing scene Bond discovers that she did it for him. Shamed to the quick, he goes away—telling her to settle it as she will.

Next we find them meeting on the deck of a liner bound for Canada. "You asked me to settle as I wished," she said, looking at him for the first time with loving sincerity, relieved from the fires of misunderstanding.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR GIRL.

By HELEN ROWLAND (Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.)

No woman understands a man, until she has catered to a masculine digestion for at least a few years, and learned that his love is not necessarily, dead, simply because his emotions have gone into a state of coma.

Changing one's husband almost as often as one changes one's cook may make life more diverting for the society woman, but it must upset her domestic regime, terribly.

A woman of thirty-five never feels actually antique until she hears a youth of twenty-one telling of his sad, and "past."

Alas, poor man! It is so hard for him to choose between the old-fashioned perfume litten with the "I-wants" and the "You-gimmes" and the modern Diana, with the "I-wants" and the "You-let-me's!"

Perhaps a woman never argues with any logic, because she has discovered that she can argue so much more effectively with smiles, tears, baby-talk, or kisses.

Prohibition has given lots of wives a chance to discover that having a man sitting around the house all evening is not exactly the Millennium, after all.

There is always a "wild man" in the circus—and every home is a circus around breakfast-time.

Perhaps, what inspired Eve to pluck the apple was not her curiosity as to what would happen, but her curiosity to see just how far she could tempt Adam, and if he "really liked her."

Most women seem to fancy that the ultimate proof of a man's love is not his willingness to do something noble, but his willingness to do something foolish, for a woman's sake.

while slaves to those shameful styles," they could not expect to deserve the respect of young men.

"Thank God, Protestants in Montreal have joined the ten thousand woman's league in the war against immodest styles," he said, "and I hope that a similar league will be instituted in St. Boniface."

Don't Marry Fortune With Woman Added

Rev. Dr. Henderson, in Sensational Sermon, Declares Character More Important.

Montreal, Que., May 9.—The Rev. Dr. Henderson, preaching in the St. James Methodist Church, on "Love, marriage, motherhood," says: "It is all right to marry a woman with a fortune thrown in, but it is all wrong to marry a fortune with a woman thrown in. It is better to have a woman, whose womanhood covers her wealth than whose wealth covers her womanhood."

To Adam and Eve, said the preacher, Paradise was home, while to the normal human being, home was paradise. Home without a woman, he declared, was like a hearth without a fire, or the trappings of habitation without a soul.

To be perfectly proportioned a man should weigh 25 pounds for each foot of his height.

The Wedding of Princess Pat Duplicated in Magnificence in This Super-Photoplay
"THE FURNACE"

A Marriage Problem of Almost Unfathomable Depth by England's Mysterious "Masked" Novelist "Pan"

AGNES AYRES as the bewitching but fippant English society bride.
HANDSOME JEROME PATRICK, the wealthy Canadian groom—disillusioned.
MANLY MILTON SILLS, friend of both, who is innocently involved.
THEODORE ROBERTS, the blundering old dad of Milton's "own" girl.
HELEN DUNBAR, the very aristocratic mother in the case.
MAYME KESLO, as the "common person" in the matchmaking.

ENGLISH SOCIETY at its most fascinating height.
A WITLESS BRIDE who said the wrong thing at the wrong time.
A SENSITIVE GROOM who felt there was no love in the union.
CIRCUMSTANCES that fanned the flames of suspicion and hate.
TREMENDOUS SCENES between all principal actors in the drama.
THRILLING REALISM during gale and rain in castle forest.

JUST A WORD IN FRANK SINCERITY:
THE IMPERIAL HAS PRESENTED MANY SOCIETY PLAYS but "The Furnace" can honestly be given a place among the exclusively best. It is sumptuously mounted, possesses rich literary quality, is a filmed best-seller of the moment and enacted by a cast chosen for type and outstanding ability. It would be a loss to picture enthusiasts to have this feature close its engagement without being seen. It has been a success everywhere.
