

BUILDING BOOM IN GRAIN ELEVATORS

COPE WITH DEMAND FOR STORAGE SPACE.

Last Two Crop Seasons Were Difficult Ones for Canada's Grain Terminals.

The year 1923 is witnessing an extraordinary amount of new grain elevator construction in Canada, extensions undertaken in an endeavor to better cope with the unusual and unanticipated demands for storage space which have featured the last two crop seasons. With the completion of these new buildings and extensions to existing elevators, under way at the present time or projected for the year, the total storage capacity of the Dominion grain elevators by the time the 1923 crop is ready for market should be something like 250,000,000 bushels, as against 214,279,964 bushels when the last census was taken in 1921.

By the passing recently of an Order-in-Council by the Federal Legislature sanction was formally given to the construction of a new elevator at Tarte Pier by the Montreal Harbor Commissioners. The elevator will have an ultimate capacity of ten million bushels and will be built in units of half a million bushels capacity each, the first of which, to cost $2,347,000, is being commenced immediately. The elevator will be one of the most modern fireproof structures of its kind in the world, the entire plant being designed in accordance with recently developed principles for minimizing the hazard of dust explosion. There will be four travelling marine towers for unloading from lake boats and four unloading points from railway cars. Five berths will be provided for loading ocean steamers, each berth having facilities for loading 30,000 bushels of grain per hour.

Twin Ports Extension.

New additions to the storage accommodation of the Twin Ports of Port William and Port Arthur in 1922 added nearly seven million bushels to their capacity, and between the marketing of the crops of 1921 and 1922 the storage capacity of the two cities rose from 51,405,000 bushels to 58,292,000, giving them a storage space exceeding any other port in the world, a position held for years by either Minneapolis, Chicago, or St. Paul. This tremendous space has, nevertheless, proved entirely inadequate to the vast volume of traffic there, and other buildings in process of erection, or contemplated for the summer will bring the grain storage capacity of the Twin Ports up to 61,000,000 bushels, giving them a wide lead over all other grain-exporting ports.

The most significant grain elevator construction is taking place at Vancouver, and development of this nature there may be taken as indicative of the established faith in the permanency of the grain trade from the Pacific port and the ever-increasing volume of traffic from the Prairies to find its outlet there for the Orient and the British Isles. Fresh elevator developments at Vancouver are being so frequently announced that it is a difficult matter to keep record of them or apprise in anything like an adequate manner what additional storage will be made this year.

Phenomenal Vancouver Development.

The Federal Government recently made a loan of $5,000,000 to the Board of Harbor Commissioners of the Port of Vancouver to increase the capacity of the local elevator by 500,000 bushels, making a total capacity of 1,750,000 bushels. It is stated that the plans of the Harbor Board involve the construction of two more elevators each with greater capacity than the present Government elevator, whilst several private companies have announced their intentions of erecting structures this summer. In the early days of March the Port of Vancouver achieved its year's objective by exporting 15,000,000 bushels of grain, the mark set for the 1922 crop, and it is expected that the port's total shipments will reach 20,000,000 bushels before the close of the season. Authorities state that within a short time Vancouver will be shipping from 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 bushels of grain per year, as storage space alone has so far hampered the traffic of the port and large orders from the Orient and other places have been refused in consequence.

The last two crop seasons were difficult ones for Canada with grain flooding terminals and ports to an extent it had been anticipated would not be reached for years. The most strenuous efforts have been made to meet the new requirements of grain storage capacity at all points, and by the time the 1923 crop is ready for marketing a considerable amelioration of the conditions prevailing in 1922 will be apparent.

A special survey will undertake to sound the Deep River Reach of the Ottawa River in Canada. In several places in the space of twenty-three miles five thousand feet of towboat line has failed to find bottom. Lake Superior, the deepest of the great inland seas, attains a depth of about a thousand feet.

Make the Rinso liquid first

Do not put Rinso direct from the package into the tub. Mix half a package of Rinso in a little cool water until it is like cream. Then add two quarts of boiling water, and when the froth subsides, you will have a clean amber-colored liquid. Add this liquid to the wash tub, until you get the big lasting Rinso suds. Then soak the clothes clean.

Rinso is as splendid for the regular family washing as Lux is for fine fabrics.

Surnames and Their Origin

GOWER

Racial Origin—Welsh.

Source—A place name.

Welsh family names are not always borne by those of Welsh blood, though it is a fairly safe assumption that where a Welsh family name is found there also you will find at least a portion of Welsh blood.

It was quite possible, however, in the period of family name formation that a Norman or a Saxon Englishman, having settled in some section of Wales, would most naturally find himself tagged with a surname indicative of a Welsh place name, inasmuch as the place names all about him would be Welsh. And it is true that an exceptionally large number of English have settled in Wales.

The family name of Gower, therefore, is one of those which might be borne by Englishmen as well as those of pure Welsh extraction.

It is simply the name of a place in Glamorganshire, and according to the Welsh spelling it is not Gower but "Gwyr," though the pronunciation is about the same. The meaning of the name is an inclosed, a round or an encircled place. In this instance the place is virtually encircled by the sea and certain rivers and streams.

ARGYLE

Racial Origin—Scottish.

Source—A locality.

You will have no difficulty whatever in guessing the source of this family name if you are at all familiar with the geography of the British Isles, for you will recognize it as an extensive shire on the west coast of Scotland.

If you bear the family name, the chances are in favor of your ancestry on the paternal side tracing back through the male line of Gaelic origin, for the name of Argyle is simply the modern form of "Earras Ghaidheal," which means the land of the Western Gael, and which is referred to by Grant as "the breeding place of the Gael."

The family name, however, while Scottish in the sense that it is the name of an ancient Scottish shire, is English in its method of formation. For the Gaels of Scotland, like those of Ireland, nearly always formed their family names from given names or from clan names, and such names as this, when found among them, indicate the presence of English influence.

THANKFUL MOTHERS

Thousands of mothers throughout Canada—many of them your neighbors—speak with thankfulness concerning the use of Baby's Own Tablets. Once they have used the Tablets for their little ones they would use nothing else. The Tablets are an absolutely safe medicine for even the youngest baby, being guaranteed by a government analyst to contain neither opiates nor narcotics or other harmful drugs. Concerning Mrs. David McKelb, Divide, Sask., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and have found them so satisfactory I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Warned by Their Dreams.

The late Lord Dufferin dreamed one night that he was in a hearse on its way to the cemetery. The features of the driver were impressed on his memory when he awoke. A day or two later he was on the point of entering a lift at an hotel, when he recognized the lift attendant as the driver of the hearse he had seen in his dream.

He stepped back and the lift ascended without him. As it neared the top something broke. It crashed to the bottom, killing everyone in it. Lord Roberts recorded a remarkable dream warning. In October, 1853, his father, to whom he was acting as A.D.C., at Peshawar, had issued invitations for a dance.

Two days before it was to take place he was silent and despondent during breakfast, and eventually told his son he had had an unpleasant dream, which has visited him several times before, and had always been followed by the death of a near relative.

As the day wore on his depression grew and he wanted to put off the dance. His son dissuaded him, but that night the dream returned and the dance was postponed. "The next morning," wrote Lord Roberts, "the post brought news of the sudden death at Lahore of the half-sister with whom I had stayed on my way to Peshawar."

One night in November, 1850, Tennyson dreamt that Prince Albert, the Prince Consort, came to his bedside and kissed him, whereupon he remarked to himself in his sleep: "Very kind, but very German!"

Next morning came Queen Victoria's letter offering him the position of Poet Laureate, an offer prompted, as he discovered, by Prince Albert's high opinion of "In Memoriam."

For more than a hundred years the Chinese people have drunk no milk because a Chinese empress who was tender-hearted and thought it a mean trick to deprive calves of their nourishment issued an edict against drinking milk. The Chinese have now begun to use it again, but it will be a long time before there are cows enough in China to supply milk for all the people.

HAVE YOU ANY OF THESE SYMPTOMS?

If You Have, You Are in Need of a Tonic Medicine.

Are you pale and weak, easily tired and out of breath on slight exertion? Are you nervous? Is your sleep disturbed? Do you wake up in the morning feeling as tired as when you went to bed? Is your appetite poor, your digestion weak, and do you have pains after eating?

If you have any of these symptoms you need a tonic, and in the realm of medicine there is no better tonic than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, restore shattered nerves and bring the glow of health to pale cheeks. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is shown by the case of Mr. Horace Cuphill, Woodward's Cove, N.B., who says: "The first indication that my general health was not good was a shortness of breath after the least exertion. Then my appetite began to fail, and after eating it seemed as if there was a lump in my stomach. I grew so weak that I could not walk a hundred yards without resting. Then I was taken with a numbness all over my body and was in a sad plight. I was under a doctor's care, but as I was not getting better, I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The first few boxes did not seem to help me but my wife asked me to continue their use and I got four boxes more. Before these were gone I could eat a fair meal, the numbness was leaving me and I was feeling much better in every way. I took the pills for a while longer, and felt that I was again a well man. I still take the pills occasionally, but have had no return of the old trouble."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Saving Migrating Birds.

A Dutch ornithologist has hit upon the simple plan of having perches placed under the shutters to save migrating birds from being killed by dashing themselves against the lenses of the great lanterns of lighthouses, when attracted and confused by the glare. Perches for thirty thousand birds have been set up, and at Brande Light on the island of Terschelling twenty thousand birds have been seen perching on them.

A Child Asks.

"Where has yesterday gone?" (Hark to the prattler!) Yesterday, my child, has gone into our memories—or hearts; Sometimes we would forget . . . but it lives still. And we are made of joys and griefs and hopes Of yesterdays.

"Why is to-morrow?" (Listen to the child!) To-morrow, like a clean sheet of paper, is ours to write on. And we record, when it is given us, What yesterday has taught. If we make mistakes— And we all make mistakes—or if we waste Our paper with our silly blots or scribbles, Another sheet is given us to write on: The day-after-to-morrow.

Yesterday was today, my child; to-day We make the memories which will be yesterday; And soch to-morrow will be today. And we shall have—and everyone will have— One more clean sheet to write a record on.

Headaches, pains in my stomach and back nearly set me wild and I would walk the floor for hours. I got so weak I could hardly stoop over to lace my shoes, and my housework was a burden."
