

given, and one quarter of total marks and one-seventh marks in each subject are required for passing. Such a system of marking bears very heavily upon candidates from Protestant Superior Schools which give prominence to the last five subjects and omit "Philosophy."

It is evident from these references, which could be multiplied, that the action of the Council of the Bar and all similar action, is a serious interference with our Protestant Superior Schools. Under the circumstances it seems only right and reasonable to demand, on the part of these institutions, that these difficulties be removed, either first by providing two separate examinations based upon the Courses of Study followed in the Roman Catholic and Protestant Institutions respectively, or, second, by having one examination so far as the Courses of Study are in common, and allowing options when the two courses diverge.
