THE ATHENS REPORTER MAY 2 1906

MA LANDY MARK IN THE FI

Her reflections were suddenly broken in upon by a familiar voice exclaiming— "By Jove! it is Mona! Mona Joscelyn!" and she found her further progress bar-red by Bertie Everard, Sir Robert's only not seen your marriage announced—askson, who was studying law, having no military proclivities, and thinking legal knowledge would be useful in managing the family estate, which was by no means flourishing under his father's muficent rule. "Bertic! I never dreamed of meeting you," as though the ban which had fallen on her had been "banishment"—that an encounter between two inhabitants of the same town had been thereby rendered

Nor did I. I thought you had emigrated, or been sent to a penitentiary, or some such thing. You see, when any one drops out of sight in London, it is such a drop in the ocean, that he or she leaves no trace behind. I am quite glad to see you. Come, tell me all about yourself. by has wept gallons over you. She wanted to write, and the Lord knows what, but my mother strictly forbade her. You are an awful black sheep, you

Not are an awint black sheep, you know—a lost mutton."
"Of course I am," said Mona, smiling.
She understood her cousin's dry bluntness. "But you must acknowledge I have kept out of sight and not troubled you."

"Yes; it is quite true. Now I have et you, I am amazed to find you still ist. How have you managed it, Moexist. "Why trouble about details? I exist and want nothing-that is enough." "Wonderful woman! Where are you going?" "Home." "Home? Is it far?"

"Not very." "Let me come with you?" "Let me come with you?" "If you like. I am glad to have a chance of hearing about you all." This brief colloquy took place on the Broad Walk, Kensington Gardens. Mona was crossing from a house in Queen's Gate, where her last lesson had been given. Bertie Everard, a tall, thin, bony young man, most accurately got up, and as unlike father or mother as could be imagined, turned and accompanied her toward the Bayswater Road. "Do you know, you are looking fairly well? Cheeks not quite so round, eyes a trifle more sombre than they were last year, but you are a pretty--no, a hand-some girl still, Mona."

"I suppose one does not grow old in five or six months." "No; but the tradition in our family is that you have been eating the bread of misery, and precious little of that, be-dewed with the water of affliction, and was uncovered. "This is Bertie Everard," said Mona, "And you were all content that I should, though we were such good friends and enjoyed so many happy days toquietly: "Evelyn's brother."

"Very pleased to see him, I'm sure," said madame, rising bravely to face the gether. "It was your own fault, you know. der and not You took your own course. I date say, if you had asked her, my mother would have helped you; but she wasn't bound to look you up. Sentimental generosity is out of date altogether." "I do not suppose it would have been a mechanic of wourse of new rate. "Your sister was one of my her bonnet. most charming pupils." She fancied the visit was a free-will offering of friendship to Mona, and she was highly delighted with the visitor. "Oh. indeed?" returned Everard. "I a weakness of yours, at any rate. How ever, you need not fear for me. I get should not have thought it. bread enough, and to spare, and very pleasant bread, too. Now, tell me some "And you find your sweet cousin look-ing well? I have done my best to take How is your dear mother? She care of her." news. "My cousin?" elevating his eyebrows. was always so good." "She is exceedingly flourishing and "Can you tell me the exact degree, Mona busy, for Evelyn is going to be married -very good match-to Lord Finistoun -first, second, twenty-fifth? "Oh! a cousin removed to the vanish-He is a pleasant, easy-going fellow-ra-ther an ass, but that will suit Evy. She ing point of relationship. I have not the faintest wish to claim you, Bertie. hasn't much brains herself." "Really, Mona, my dear, that is not "She has sense enough not to think she has all the brains of the family, as the retort courteou "If you knew Mr. Everard better, dear Madame Debrisay, you would know that

"She seemed to do so the last time w

"I only hate shams," said Bertie,

"Let me offer you a cup of tea," said

"She did, sir," said Mme. Debrisay proudly, "and, if you'd like to know, the stuff is Oriental chintz, and we paid fourpence three farthings a yard for it

"By George! you don't say so!" He was deeply interested in pounds, shillings and pence. "Why, it looks capital,"

So saying, he took the milk jug and peeped into it, "I regret it is not cream,' 'said Mme.

Debrisay, coloring. "Yes! cream is an improvement, but

at Whiteley's sale.'

and pence.

"That was not recently?" smiling.

ntioned you.'

"Ah! queer little box."

abode.

Mme. Debrisay, with a gently reflective air. Bertis laughed, not quite so easily as usual; and there was a pause while he sipped his tea. "That's rather a good picture," he said at length, nodding to a portrait of a re-fined, foreign-looking man, with beauti-ful lace ruffles and cravat, and a cos-ful lace ruffles and cravat, and a cos-tume of some two hundred years ago. "It is the picture of Monsieur Le Baron Debrisay de Coulanges, my grand-father's great grandfather, who led a party of his co-religionists to Ireland, after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes," said Mme. Debrisay, with dig-

"The deuce he did! what a bad choice. It's a good portrait. French portraits generally are. Who is the artist ?" "That I cannot tell; there are only initials of the picture." nitials on the picture.'

"Pity it has nt a well-known name on it. It would fetch a good price." "No price would tempt me to part with it!" cried mademe, proudly. "Oh, indeed! Now, tell me, how do you manage to rub along ?" "Madame Debrisay and I have entered into partnership; she takes the big pu-"By George! Does the squalling and strumming pay for all this?" waving by George! Does the squalling and strumming pay for all this ?" waving his teaspoon comprehensively round. "It does; but then you must remem-ber it is all in the fourpence three farth-ings style of expense," said Mme. De-brisay. "Gad, what heaps of money we waste!" exclaimed Everard putting down his exclaimed Everard, putting down his cup. "What sums my father does get through! through! I suppose you never go to parties or things of that kind, so living himself in India. I had a letter from him some time ago—asked why he had not seen your marriage announced—ask-ed it in a postscript—always a bad sign of womanish weakness. Where do you live, for heaven's sake? We must be approaching the far west." "Do not come any further, Bertie— you will die of fatigue." "No, I will not, but you will, if it's a few miles further out; let me secure a out here is no consequence." "There are people who give parties, living even here," said Moma. "Indeed!'

"Yes, and we sometimes go to the teh-atre, and enjoy it very much." "Well, it's evident you are not breakfew miles further out; let me secure a "Well, it's evident you are not break-ing your heart, Mona. If you like the theatre, I will send you a box. I know a couple of managers-amusing vaga-bonds, they dine with me sometimes—so I can ask them." "Thank you! We shall be very glad. cab, before we leave the haunts of civi-lization behind us." "I think ten minutes more will oring us to our destination; but, to copy your own amiable candor, I would rather you did not come. You will only satisfy your Now, it is half-past six, Bertie; you had better go." "Yes, I will. Is there a cab to be had in this neighborhood ?" "Why not adopt the habits of the country, and try an omnibus?--three-pence to Tottenham Court Road, a shillng cab fare on to the Temple." "Capital idea. Why one might live for did not come. You will only satisfy your curiosity, and carry away materials for a ridiculous description, to make Evy and Geraldine laugh." "Why should you begrudge us our in-nocent mirth? It is an absurd prejudice to feel injured by being what is called 'turned into ridicule.' You have only to show a stolidly indifferent front, and you rob ridicule of its whole power." 'I wonder how you would like being laughed at yourself, Bertie." "Should not mind—but I am not ridi-culous—I am too natural. and always half nothing up here. "There are no roms to let in this

"There are no roms to let in this house, Bertie." "That is a pity. Good morning, Mrs. Debrisay; good-bye, Mona." "Happy to see you again," said Mme. Debrisay. "You are really quite a charculous-I am too natural, and always say what I think." "I often-I mean I used often-to wonder if you are as hard and heartless 'I believe I am; but come on, I am oter.

"What the deuce does she mean?" "What the deuce does an inter-asked Everard of himself, as he took up his neatly rolled umbrella, and open-ed the door, while Mme. Debrisay yelled 'I believe I am; but come on, I am determined to see your lair, and I do not dine till eight, so I have plenty of time." "I cannot prevent you, but I do not want you." They walked a few paces in silence, then Mona asked: "And is Eve-lyn happy? Does she seem happy?" "Happy as a child with a new toy— she and Finistoun make idiots of them-calves in the meet approved manner. It after him to turn right and go on to a large church where the city omnibus chapter view chapter view.

The variable spring, the hot dusty summer days, succeeded each other and selves in the most approved manner. It will be a great piece of news for her, this remcontre with you." "Does she still care for me?" the partners worked steadily through it They had gleams of diversion, too, for Mme. Debrisay had friends and acquaint-ances of her own profession who often gave her tickets for concerts, and or-

"No, not very." "I live here," said Mona, after a short ters for the theatre. These were am usements of which Mona had enjoyed but little during her residence with her ilence, pausing before Mme. Debrisay's but notice during her residence with her grandmother, whose fixed principle it was never to pay for anything of the sort. They were a source of great en-joyment, for Mona was peculiarly alive to beauty and harmony, and had some-"We," said Mona, gravely, "consider it a splendid residence; pray walk in, as you will come." "You are horribly inhospitable," said Everard, laughing, and he followed her thing of the dramatic gift herself. With the exaggeration of youth, she reproached herself for being so slight on opening the door, Mme. Debrisay was discovered resting in an arm-chair, beside a table set for tea. Her bonnet lay on the floor beside her, and her thick and trivial as to forget too quickly the sorrows and disappointments of the by-gone year. Of all the trials which had been crowded into a few months, the oftenest was her breaking with Leslie one which came back to her oftenest was her breaking with Leslie Warand undeniably disordered black hair

ing. She always wished to hear of him, but he had passed away completely out of her life. rtie Everard's remark respecting

"Diable de bete!" she exclaimed. "Keep way from him, Mona. I believe he is away from him, Mona. I believe he is going mad." "I believe he is only frightened and angry. Let it go, and probably he will too."

too." Thus diverting Mme. Debrisay's at-tention, she relaxed her grasp. The dog gave a vigorous pull, and trotted trium-phantly with the lace in his mouth—head and tail erect—into the hall, where he proceeded to tear it vehemently. "Just look at that! The only decent thing I have to put on my shoulders when I go out. Get away with you, you curl"—a thrust of the brush—"Call him off, Jane!"—another thrust—"Take that" —throwing the brush at him finally.

off, Jane!"—another thrust-"Take that" —throwing the brush at him finally. This routed the foe. He jumped back, and Mona quickly snatched up the shawl. "My beautiful Chantilly shawl," al-most wept Mme. Debrisay. "I got it at a sale the last year you were with us in Paris. Thirty-five france seventy, and it's worth two hundred! It was as good as new. I will not live in the house with such a brute! He will be tearing our eyes out next! I felt a little better after that cup of tea you brought me, so I did up my hair, and came in. Who should I see but my gentleman perched on the table where I had laid my shawl after folding it up, scratching himself—no less —in the middle of me beautiful lace. I made one dash at it, and tumbled the brute off. Instead of running away, he turned round with real bourgeois impu-turned round with real bourgeois impu-dence-like his master's-fastened his dence—like his master's—fastened his ugly teeth in one corner, and would not let go." "I am sure. ma'am," said the landlady, coming in, "I am that sorry—I don't know how to express it. I don't know what's in the dog. He is always trying to run up here, as if he knew it worried """"

"I have no doubt he does," returned Mme. Debrisay, examining her lace. "Look here! There's a tear for you! Here's another! It's just ruined." (To be con ntinued.)

PALE, LISTLESS GIRLS

Can Only Obtain Bealth Through New, Rich Pure Blood Made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Growing girls—girls in their teens— must have rich, pure blood. Healthy womanhood depends upon the vital change from girlhood to maturity. Every woman should most carefully watch her daughter's health at this retical paried If a cirl at this pereritical period. If a girl at this per-iod has headache, if she is pale, thin and languid, it shows that her slender food supply is being over-taxed. She will aways be ailing and may slip into a hopeless decline or consumption if her blood is not built up at once with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The rich, red blood which these pills make bring health and strength to every organ, and make dull, listless, languid girls, bright, rosy-checked active and strong. Miss duin, instiess, inight grin, Miss rosy-cheeked, active and strong. Miss Maggie Donohue, Erinsville, Ont., says: "Before I began the use of Dr., Says: "Before I began the use of Dr.

says: "Before I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was badly run down, and it seemed as though my blood had turned to water. I was very pale, suffered from headaches and palpitation of the heart and of very paie, surfered from negacaches and palpitation of the heart, and of-ten I would pass sleepless nights. I found nothing to help me until I be-gan the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and these have fully restored me and I can truthfully say I never enjoyed better health than I am now doing."

doing." When Dr. Williams' Pink Pills replace bad blood with good blood they strike straight at the root of all common ailments like anaemia, de-line, indigestion, kidney and liver cline, cline, indigestion, kidney and liver troubles, skin eruptions, erysipelas, neuralgia, St. Vitus dance, paralysis, rheumatism and the special ailments of growing girls and women. Be sure you get the genuine pills with the full name, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People," printed on the wrappe raround each box. Sold by medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Circulars, Posters and Newspape

Knew His Business.

Still in Force, Though Not Often Invoked.

Blue Laws of New Jersey

***********

The indictment of Mrs. Charlotte P. Wood of 305 Webster avenue, Jersey City, as a comon scold has brought to the fore once again the State's old Blue Laws, which are still in force. Mrs. Wood has pleaded not guilty and is yet to be tried. If Henry Austin and others who caused her indictment succeder in proving her guilty, she will probably be put in jail for a short term or placed under bonds to be good. The penalty for being a common scold used to be the ducking stool, but this feature of the law was repealed many years ago. Still the common scold law remains on New Jersey's statute books; as do many others of the old Blue Laws handed down by the early setlers. In other States these old laws have af ew of them have been wiped off the New Jersey statutes, but as a whole the old Blue Laws of New Jersey still exist and are at intervals enforced. A few years ago District Attorney Charles H. Winfield, of Hudson county, prose-cuted and convicted a woman who lived on the Hill in Jersey City of being a commo scold. The indictment of Mrs. Charlotte P. , wary spectators, as well as children and on the Hill in Jersey City of being a mmon scold.

common scold. The old common scold law had not been brought up for years, but the wom-an was such a nuisance that some of her nighbors, in casting about for a means of suppressing her, heard of the old law and had it enforced. The scold was imprised for ten days old law and had it enforced. The scold was imprisoned for ten days. Another case remembered about the court house in Jersey City is that of Joseph Vannblarcomb, a farmer of Ber-gen county. He visited Jersey City fie-quently and was so profuse in his pro-fanity that he gained the soubriquet of Swearing Joe. Some years ago he was arrested, con-victed—there were plenty of witnesses —and sent to jail for thirty days. Joe promised to swear off swearing, and in some way got a mitigation of sentence after four days and went back to his farm. farm

In a volume of the statutes of New In a volume of the statutes of New Jersey of 1833 many of these old laws can be found, and in a revision under an Act of April 4, 1871, a number of them were retained and are still on the statute books. Of these there is a law prohibiting "hunting on the Sabbath day with our or dog or in any way takprohibiting "hunting on the Sabbath day, with gun or dog, or in any way tak-ing or killing any game, wild animals or fowl," under a penalty of $25 fine, one-half of which goes to the complainant and the rest to the poor of the town or county. To carry a gun on another's er's permission on the sabbath the courts are very careful about them, and they are rarely enforced except in extreme cases."

county. To carry a gun on another's man land on any day except by the own-er's permission is an offence for which the owner can collect $5 and keep it all etc. To drive a stage on Sunday, except in cases of necessity or mercy or to carry mail, is punishable by a fine of $8 or imprisonment. To drive an ordinary wongering mechanical appliances. If three justices of the peace deem that the play, show or exhibition is "innocent or may tend the answer any reasonable or useful end," it may be given. The old law for the punishment of witches, conjurors and the like was re-pealed in 1833, and another law was passed for the punishment of pretenders at witchcraft, or any person pretending to exercise, or any kind of conjuration sorcery or enchantment, or pretending to discover goods or chattels supposed to have been stolen or lost, by a fine of $50 or imprisonment for three months, for that would, in many instances, bring about some very ridiculous situations. The majority of them have simply be-come obsolete, and are rarely enforced, and then it is only where some citizen happens to think that one of them will of the grigerone and give him schemes fit his grievance and give him redress when everything else has failed.

In every home where Baby's Own the owner can context so and neep to an himself. Only milk and the United States mail are allowed to be carried through the State on Sunday, and Justice of the Peace are authorized to stop any canal-boat or freight train on Sunday and hold it at the expense of the owner until the next day. This law also applies to droves of cattle, sheep, horses, swine, etc. To drive a stage on Sunday, except in cases of necessity or mercy or to carry mail, is punishable by a fine of $8 or Tablets are used you will find rosy, sturdy, good-natured babies because these tablets cleanse the stomach Tablets are he

"Yes, I do, and I am no great things after all. Your troubles have not taken he despises courtesy in himself and others. frankly.

"There is no Miss Joscelyn," he said, laughing. "There is no Miss Joscelyn now. I have resumed my poor father's name. It is more suited to my fortunes and fancy.

"Let me offer you a cup of tea," said Mme. Debrisay, rather scandalized. "Thank you, I shall be glad of it, after our long, dusty walk. Really, it's not so bad, now we have got here," looking round with visible examination. "It's a better room than mine in the Temple." "Is that nossible!" cried Mona. "By Jove! And what is it? 'Craig? Um! It was a queer notion of Mrs. Newburgh's to suppress it. Nobody cares or thinks about names now, except for what they are worth on paper. I sup-pose you haven't heard or seen anything "Is that possible!" cried Mona. "And in better order. Did you fasten up that drapery at the back of the piano, Mona?" of Waring?"

of Waring?" "No; "of course, not." "Nor any one else, either! Can't think what's become of him. Some one did say he was training a colt for the Derby. I dare say he is glad enough now that you have broke with him. Can't understand why men marry!---must be an aw ful bore."

have no doubt he is obliged to me. "And you are deucedly sorry you gave him the chance, eh?" "You would not believe me if I denied

"Well, no; I would not: though you are a run sort of a girl, Mona. I aiways Mked you. You say what you think, and you held your own with that grandmoth-er of yours, who was as big a tyrant as provided it supplied you with the milk I have met. You are a fool, too, in many ways ready to cut your own throat for an idea; but there's something taking about you. I never thought St. John Lisle would lose his head as he did on sition. Your milky kindly people are your account. He kept it very quiet, but I saw through him. I see through a good many things." "I never credited you with such pow-with you, ma'am." ers of imagination before, Bertie."

course he would only marry a woman

Lisle's admiration for herself dwelt long on her mind. There was a certain com fort in it; it soothed her wounded amount ority of the newspaper over all other advertising mediums is recognized by expropre to know that she was not alto-gether self-deceived. But the impression gether self-deceived. But the mark of St. John Lisle was fast fading. Now some soldierly-looking man of fashion would remind her of him and she thought that he no longer even tears off the day night with a sigh of the difference betwee the style of such cavaliers and the dinary toilers with whom it was her lot dinary tokers with whom it was her lot to associate in future. Still she began to look at that future with less of fear than she did, and even ventured on a little castle building respecting a visit to Germany next year, for which she and Mme. Debrisay agreed to "save up," and not to dissipate any of their little store in a seaside trip this somewhat wet sea-

Of course Bertie Everard forgot all bout the orders; nor did Evelyn pay the visit Mona looked for so eagerly; but the announcement of her marriage-with a long list of wedding presents, includ-ng "an Indian shawl from Her Majesty" —at the end of March, and her departure ing for a prolonged tour on the Continent, explained her non-appearance. London is a great world. In no other place can any one be so successfully hidden; and though Mona moved about everywhere, with a freedom that was new and delightful to her, she never en-countered her aristocratic relatives but once, when she saw Lady Mary and her second daughter driving down Piceadilly. She was, however, lost in the humble pe-destrian crowd, and passed unnoticed. A very hot July had driven away all Mme. Debrisay's pupils, save two or three. The ranks of Mona's were also thinned, and both were planning a course of needle-work and reading during the approaching time of rest. The dog days had compelled their fel-low-lodger to muzzle the objectionable terrier—which made him unusually ram-ant when the torture was removed in Mona had been out one morning to do some small housekeeping érrands, as Mme. Debrisay had a headache, and on re-entering the house with a latch-key, was surprised to hear a sound of snarl-and scuffling in their sitting room, door of which was open. Going in ckly, she beheld Mme. Debrisay, her quickly, cap slightly awry, endeavoring to drag a lace shawl from the fangs of Dandie drag who snarling and yelping, held on like grim death, stretching the shawl to its fullest length, and dancing backward, while she struck at him ineffectually "I never credited you with such pow-rs of imagination before, Bertie." "There is no use in trying to plerce "Oh, don't try that tone with me. I now what I am talking about. Of arms is invulnerable to bullets." who snarling and yelping, grim death, stretching the your tough skin, Bertie. The hippoppot-in arms is invulnerable to bullets." who snarling and yelping, "There is no use in trying to plerce your tough skin, Bertie. The hippoppot-in arms is invulnerable to bullets." who snarling and yelping, "I move the source of the stretching the while she struck at him with a small hearth-brush.

perienced.

wagon or vehicle for the purpose of busi-In Brance as in Canada the sumer.

ness or pleasure costs $2. Fishing on the Sabbath with any seine, net, hook or line, whether you catch any advertising mediums is recognized by ex-pert opinion. A French writer, comparing the newspaper with the "prospectus" or circular, says of the latter: "One suc-cumbs under such an avalanche of these

The man who so far forgets himself as wrapper, and without even being read it wrapper, and without even being read it finds its way, as a miserable ned, into the wastebasket." And of the poster: "One passes it by often without reading while in the execution of his office may the wastebasket." And of the poster: "One passes it by often without reading while in the execution of his office hay at once be convicted by the Justice with-out any further testimony," and either fined for the benefit or the poor or im-prisoned for four days. Another law makes the toll roads free to persons go-ing to funerals, to Sabbath worship or the series relations proteins. Besides, it has scarcely been posted up before the characters become torn and sometimes disappear in the thick layers of paste, even if they are not seen re-covered by more or less other multicolored posters. But the journal remains. It is this which is able to any religious meeting. Then, so that there can be no mistake o carry the name of the house into the es to what one can and cannot do on the most unknown corners."

Sabbath, nearly all these offences are bunched in one clause, which specifies "that no travelling, worldly employment

At Jaipur I visited a British official. His house, in the "foreign quarter," was of a size which in New York would need two servants. But in his Jaipur house that official had forty servants; for the cast end to travelling, worldly employment or business, ordinary or servile work or labor, either upon land or water (works of necessity or charity excepted), nor shooting, fishing, sporting, hunting, gamor tippling houses, dancing, singing, fid-ding or other music for the sake of merthat official had forty servants; for the cast system decrees one occupation for each caste. The sweep may only sweep; the water-bearers may bear water, nothding or other music for the sake of mer-riment, nor any playing of football, nine-pins, bowls, quoits or any other kind of pastimes, playing, sports or diversious' is to be indulged in on the Sabbath day.

> of the week, or Saturday, as a day of worship are exempt from answering to any process in law and equity as defend-ant, witness or juror, except in criminal cases, and if such a person is brought be-fore a justice for committing any of the offences named against the Sabbath, or of the week, or Saturday, as a day of first day of the week, he shall be dis day of worship. Under the head of "Laws for the Sup-suffering animal, the London 'bus horse. When horses were wanted for the South African war, a lot of animals were sent which had been employed hitherto in the shafts of London omnibuses. The sold-iers who had to use these horses for drawing guns found they would not pull with any spirit or energy at the heavy guns. At last one Cockney driver found a remedy: He slapped his belt against the gun and shouted: "Benk! Benk Liv-erpole street! Liverpole street!" in the familiar manner of a 'bus conductor! Instantly the horses plunged forward, Instantly the horses plunged forward, tend to no good or useful purpose in and no more trouble with them was ex-together great numbers of idle and un-and is growing splendidly. Mothers remember that this medicine should s absolutely safe and can be given to he weakest, tenderest baby, or to the sturdy, well-grown boy or girl with equally good efect. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SUNDAY LAWS IN VIRGINIA.

Difficult to Get a Drink if One Does Not Know the Ropes.

"Down in the quaint old seaport of Norfolk a few days ago I saw a beautiful example of the workings of a strict Sunday law," said W. L. Rodgers, of Baltimore at the Raleigh.

"It was not possible to get any liquid refreshments in the hotels and the saloons were hermetically sealed.

"Strolling along one of the principal streets, my attention was atracted to a crowd of men who swarmed in and out of a place as if it possessed a magnet, enough it did, as I found by joining the erowd. The place was dingy and unat-tractive, but it had a bar in full blast and the man behind the counter couldn't dish out the liquor fast enough. I called for a drink, too, but the bartender, instead of waiting on me asked me for my ticket. I told him I had none and he occeeded to explain: "This is a clubroom and we don't serve drinks to any except members. However, there is the secretary and you might ask

"At this the person pointed out as etary came up and repeated what the

'We have to comply with the Virginia law,' said he, 'or risk going to jail. But you look all right and I can make you a member of the club. The fee is 20 cents.'

"I paid it without a murmur and thought it a pretty cute mode of selling a drink for 35 cents."—Washington Post.

What Caused the Explosion.

(Oakley, Kan., Graphic.) A sweet little girl, the pride of the family, rushed into the bedroom last Sunday after-noon where her mamma was indukging in the afternoon map and exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, there is a man in the kitchen hu the hired girl." Seeing the look of su on her mamma's face she clapped her and cried "April fool! it's only papa!" hugging Wigg-It takes two to make a quarrel. Wagg-Yes; but a quarrelsome man can always find the other one.

land so very interesting.—From "Kipl-ingland," by Gilson Willets, in Four-Track News for April. A writer in the London News tells charged on proving that Saturday is his this story at the expense of that long-suffering animal, the London 'bus horse. When horses were wanted for the South

ing more; the man who pulls the over-head fan (punkah-wallah) may perform no labor save that of fanning, and so on under a penalty of $1 fine for each of-fence, the money to go to the poor. Citizens who observe the seventh day no labor save that of familing, and so of through the forty different castes from which the servants of my official friend were recruited. Thus in India the crowd invades your very hearthstone; and that's what makes a home in Kipling-