RUINED BY GOSSIP

False Accusation Blasted a Washington Society Girl's Life.

Miss Flary Condit Smith Driven into Exile by Mailcious Scandal Mongers.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 23-No matter how painfully death may have come to Mary Condit Smith, the pretty Washington girl who, it is now almost certain, was murdered by Boxers, it was sweet to the living death she was suffering. The chinese may have visited dreadful tortures upon her, yet death to her in any form was a relief, for Mary Condit Smith was a martyr to Washington scandal mon-gers and was literally driven to her death by malicious gossip.

Mary Condit Smith died in trying to live down and forget that she had been accused of theft. No more innocent, no purer girl ever lived than she, yet she was not proof against scandal and gosand horror-stricken, ashamed, cowed, she sought to forget, by travel-ling from one end of the earth to the other.

It was in Pittsburg that the seed of scandal that led to Miss Condit scandal that led to Miss Condit smith's murder was planted! In Washington she was known as "Polly" when, or by whom the jewels were when, or by whom the jewels were purloined. The discovery of them came too late. An irreparable injury cared for her because she was sincered the sightest fault of her host, out the slightest fault of her host, bostess or the detectives. because she was pretty and always agreeable. She was a laughing, light-hearted girl welcomed everywhere. hearted girl welcomed everywhere.

From every side came invitations for "Polly" Smith. She was sought at the White House, at official entertainments, at private houses. In fact, it may be said that no girl in Washington society had more invitations or was more popular than Miss "Polly."

FATED HOUSE PARTY. When the invitation came for her to attend a house party given by her wealthy friends Moorheads, at 928 Rodge avenue, Allegheny City, the accepted. Washington was gay enough at the time, but particular friends of hers were giving the house party, and she hated to disappoint them. It was a gay house party that they had in Pittsburg. "Polly" Smith was the gayest of all, and when the was the gayest of all, any when and time came for everybody to go home she was the best liked of all the the guests. No one denied that she had been the life of the party, and that without her things would have fallen flat. It was after the house party had broken up that the scandal took root. The hostess had missed jewelry to the value of more than $2,000. Her guests were all persons of the highest standing and of unimpeachable char-acter. She called in detectives and told them their names.

among the guests at the house party.

The superintendent of Pittsburg de-lectives, John Glenn, undertook the case, as the stolen jewels had been a wedding present to his bride from Mr. Moorhead, and aside from their in-trinsic value, $1,500, were more pre-cious to Mrs. Moorhead, thank any money. The eight servants in the family, were, after most careful investigation, relieved of suspicion.
Many other detectives were employed, and it was through a New York jeweller to whom some unset dia-monds were sent for resetting, that the first clew to the lost gems was received. Whoever stole the Moorhead diamonds had pried the jewels out of their setting and then endeavred to have them sett in new fashion so that they could never be recognized. Money then, was not the motive of the robbery. This gave to the Washington deter tives the first clew to the Moodheads' guests. Mr. and Mrs. Moorhead could not be made to believe in the guilt of amy of them, but a Washington de tective, following descriptions and circumstantial evidence, finally con-vinced the Moorheads that the thief was actually Miss Condit Smith, the accomplished and lovely girl whose talent and popularity made her welcome everywhere, and who had repeatedly enjoyed the honor, of receiving side by side with Mrs. McKinley in the White House Of course, the ing side by side with Mrs. McKinley in the White House. Of course, the Moorheads refused to make the Washington detective's story public, but, equally, of course, it leaked out in that exclusive set in which the young girla moved.

The story went from mouth to mouth, from house to house. Pretty "Polly" Smith was suspected. In fact, it is said that some malicious person even went so far as to accuse the girl. even went so far as to accuse the girl.

CRUSHED BY THE SCANDAL. Then there came a change over "Polly" Smith. She was no longer the light hearted girl. She had heard the scandal. She was helpless. She was mnocent, but the blow aimed at her had crushed her. Invitations came in fewer numbers, and those that did ome were not accepted. The girl got paler and paler. She was seldom seen outside her own home. Her cheeks became sunken; her eyes, so bridgt and laughing formerly, were red from con-stant weeping; she never smiled and her sensitive nature made her imagine that the whole world suspected her of a crime of which she was inno-

ent. Miss Smith's brother-in-law is Governor-General Wood, of Cuba, It was thought-that a change of scene and climate would help the girl forget the cruel gossip that had so sorely wounded her. So Miss Smith was sent to Cuba with her sister, Mrs. Wood. Cuban climate and the change of scenes did not have the beneficial effect ex-

The girl tried bravely to overcome the constant fear that she was every where pointed at as a thicf. She tried to meet people as she had done before, but it was of mo use. She became so weakened in health and spirits that every effort was beyond her strength. strength.

So she settled down to a life of mis ery, literally eating her own heart. It was seen by the Woods that the girl would eventually die unless some plan could be devised to take her mind from

Cures Weak Men Free

A most successful remedy has been found for sexual weakness, such as found for sexual weakness; such as impotency, varicocele, shrunken organs, nervous debility, lost manhood, night emissions, premature discharge and all other results of self-abuse or excesses. It cures any case of the difficulty, never falls to restore the organs to full natural strength and vigor. The Doctor who made this wonderful discovery wants to let every man know about it. He will therefore send the receipt giving the various ingredients to be used so that all men at a trifling expense can cure themselves. He sends the receipt free, and all the reader need do is to send his name and address to L. W. Knapp, M. D., 1710, Hull Bidg., Detroit, Mich., requesting the free receipt as reported in this paper. It is a generous offer and all men ought to be glad to have such an opportunity. such an opportunity.

mystery was partially cleared up by finding the settings of the diamonds in a Pennsylvania avenue shop in Washington, where they had been taken undoubtedly by the real thief. No one knows to this day exactly how, hostess or the detectives.

So Washington accepted the finding of the jewels in a disinterested sort of way. Washington had almost forgotten the accusation made against "Polly" Smith by this time in the freshness of other gossip on which Washington feeds, but "Polly" Smith had not forgotten.

COULD NOT FORGET, She came home from Cuba immediately after the jewels had been found, and no doubt could have taken her own place in society had she been able to forget, but she was not the forget-ting kind. She continued unhappy, ting kind. She continued unnappy, never speaking unless she was spoken to, growing thinner and less like her former self every day. Society had all but killed her by its love of gossip.

It was when her family had almost despaired of ever making her well and her or each that the trip to China was happy again that the trip to China was proposed. The Congers were close to the Condit Smiths. They loved the "Polly" Smith they had known of old. The girl left for China with the express purpos eof staying there. In China she could at least be among people lwho would not gossip. What if they were heathens? What if they did kill her, as perhaps they have done They would at least make her misery short-lived. So "Polly" Smith went to China. She was a pitiful looking little thing when She at that time suspected not one of having taken her jewels. But the police are not respectors of family pride and family names, so the detectives began to search for the jewels tives began to search for the jewels purpose to eventually be a missionary in China. She could never return to Washington. It was urged upon her that Washington had already forgot-ten the accusation made against her, ten the accusation made against her, and was only too ready to right the The wrong, however, was too great to her thinking to ever be rightd, and she chose to go from her home forever. "How "Polly" Smith met her death has not been made known as yet, but, no matter how she died, death was weet to her. There may be those in Washington to-day who suffer a pang for the girl whom they sent to her death. None can deny that the calumny they helped to give breath and life to made her a martyr.

It more than anything deprives us of the use of our judgment, for it is a dust very hard to see through. To put the brake on the wagon going down hill is a help to the horse, when the wagon is heavily loaded. But what driver would think of applying the brake to a loaded wagon going up hill? If he did, his sensible horses would probably balk. Many a man the condition of pulling up hill with the brake set against him. When his stomach is out of order, and the adlied organs of digestion and nutrition impaired in their functions, a friction is set up which has to be over-come in addition to the performance of daily duties. A foul stomach makes a foggy brain, and the man with a disordered stomach has often to grope his way through the day's business like a man in a fog. He forgets appoint-ments. Problems seem presented to his mind "wrong end to." This condition is entirely remedied by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discov-ery. It, puts the stomach and digestive and nutritive system into a con-dition of perfect health, and gives a clear brain, a steady hand and a light step for the day's duties. TRUNKS WERE WANTED

After a While He Got a Chance to In His Preference of Varieties. The tall floorwalker found him walking around the big store as though bewildered.

"Have you been waited on. sir?"
"No. I would like to see some trunks. "Trunks? Yes, sir! Simmons, take this gentleman up on the elevator and show him out new display of trunks."

Simmons, a smart clerk with a chip diamond and a ten-story collar, piloted the customer to the trunk department. "Here they are, sir," began Simmons n a rapid-fire tone of voice. "Everything in trunks that a person could possibly wish. We carry exclusive styles and sell more than any other house in the city."

"I am afraid you do not understand "Oh, yes, I do. How's this trunk over here?" "Really, sir, I-"Oh, I see; you wish something lar-ger. Going down to the sea, eh? Well, I wish I had the time to go: But what do you think of this size?"

"I do not---' "Still wish something larger? Well, guess you are right; a man cannot he too careful with his stiff hats, etc Ever hear that joke about a man buying a 4x6 trunk to carry his toothbrush in? But how is this trunk?"

"If you will only-" "Let you do your own selecting? Of course I will! I have been presumptuous in even suggesting. But what do you think of this white enamelled runk? Isn't it a beauty?"

"I do not-"Too fancy, eh? Well, I guess you are right. Something durable would suit you better. Here is something that will defy a railroad collision." "If you will only listen-

"I guess you don't wish this old style, round top?" "I don't wish any-"Then you'd like to see some satchels? "No, sir; I don't wish any satchels." "Well, sir, I always try to be courtous, but there is a limit to patience. "There is a limit to mine. I have been trying to tell you that I wished to see some bathing trunks for the last twenty minutes."

Bathing trunks? Well, to think that I have been standing here all this time for nothing." And then the smart clerk turned on his heel and left the customer to find the bathing trunks in the "gents' furnishin' depart."-Chiago Daily News.

Why He Kept Quite About It.

David Harum was a good horse tradr, but a recent transaction in horselesh which was made by a well-known Memphian shows that there are others who know how to get the long end of horse trade.

Several weeks ago this Memphis man saw a fine buggy horse which he thought he wanted. He located the owner and asked the price. "One fif-ty," was the reply. After looking the animal over closely and trying her speed he concluded it was a good trade and without more ado wrote a check for the amount. The next day he found that the mare was as blind as a bat, but this did not hinder her speed nor detract from her general appearance. He drove the animal for several weeks and succeeded in attracting the admiration of another lover of horseflesh, who made a proposal to purchase.

"Well," said the Memphian. gave one fifty, but I will let you have her for one sixty-five." The prospective owner looked the animal over and concluded he had a bargain. He paid over the money and took the mare. When the animal was unharnessed the first thing she did was to run against a post, and then by way of emphasizing the fact that she was blind fell over a barrel. The next day the buyer came back to the Mem-phian with blood in his eye. "Colonel, you know, the mare you sold me?" he began. "Well, she's stone blind." "I know it," replied the colonel, with an easy air. "You didn't say anything to me about it," said the purchaser, his face red with anger.

"Well, I'll tell you," replied the colonel; "that fellow who sold her to me didn't tell me about it, and I just concluded that he didn't want it known. -Memphis Commercial Appeal
