AN IMPORTANT JUDGMENT,

Which Affects Employers and Workmen.

In the case of Dean vs. the Ontario Cotton Mills Company, the Queen's Bench Divisional Court gave judgment Tuesday, setting aside the non-suit entered by the late Sir M. C. Cameron, C. J., at the spring assizes, Hamilton, and ordered a new trial with costs in the case. The plaintiff, Dean, was employed in the cotton mills in that city, and under the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, 1886, brought an action for damages for injuries sustained in December last by his falling into a kettle of scalding dye, upon which he was obliged in the ordinary course of his employment to stand, and which was not properly covered. At the trial the late Chief Justice held that as the plaintiff previous to the injury had called the attention of the foreman of the dye house to the defect in the covering, he was aware of the danger, and by voluntarily continuing his employment he was willing to incur the risk, and that the case of Thomas vs. Quartermaine, in the Court of Appeal in England, was an authority upon the point. The judgment of the Divisional Court was delivered by Mr. Justice Armour. The court held that the English case was distinguishable from the present case in two essential particulars: (1.) In that case there was no statutory obligation upon the defendant to fence the vat in which the plaintiff was injured; in this case there was a statutory obligation upon the defendants, under the Factories Act, to securely guard the vat in which the plaintiff was injured; (2) in that case the plaintiff had never complained of the vat being unfenced; in this case the plaintiff had complained of the vat not being securely guarded. Under the Ontario Factories Act, 1884, all belting, shafting, gearing, fly-wheels and other moving parts of the machinery, and all vats, pots, cauldrons and other like dangerous structures or places, in every factory, shall be, as far as practicable, securely guarded. The court was of the opinion that, apart altogether from the Factories Act, there was evidence to go to the jury, as the injury complained of was not an injury happening to the plaintiff within the scope of the danger which he and his employers both contemplated as incidental to his employment when he entered upon it, and, at all events, after he complained of it he could not be said to be willing to incur the risk within the sense of the maxim above referred to; and that it was the duty of the employer to exercise due care that the coverings of the vats should be reasonably safe and proper, and that by reason of the continuance in the service after he complained, the plaintiff did not disentitle himself to maintain the action. The judgment also states that the defendants were well aware of the defect, and that the injury arose from their negligence. Had the judgment rendered at the trial been sustained, the result would have been that the Workmen's Compensation for Injuries Act, 1886, is useless, and the relations between workmen and employer would still have been governed by the stringent rules of the common law. Staunton & O'Heir appeared for the plaintiff, and MacKelcan, Q. C., and Smith, Rae & Greer, (Toronto) for defendants.

Has the Loan Been Raised?

LONDON, June 29.—The Canadian Gazette to-morrow will state that arrangements were all but concluded in London for the issue by Morton, Rose & Co. of the Manitoba loan of $1,000,000 at five per cent. in connection with the proposed railway to the boundary. The negotiations, however, were abruptly broken off on the ground that the object of the loan will be declared illegal.

WINNIPEG, June 29.—It has been currently reported for the last day or two that there was a hitch in signing the contract for the Red River Valley railway, the Local Government being unwilling to sign until the money for the bonds was in sight. This delay was thought to be due to the joint effort of the C.P.R. and Dominion Government to frustrate the sale of the bonds. Late to-night it is rumored that the contract is signed, but it does not appear at present that the financial arrangements are successfully completed. The people here are more than ever determined upon an early commencement of the railway at all hazards, and pressure will be continually brought to bear on the Local Government to attain this object.

Later.—It is understood that work on the line will be commenced to-morrow, one million dollars of Government bonds having been negotiated through local brokers. Even at this late hour there is great enthusiasm in the city over this seemingly happy termination of the recent hitch.

The Bell-Cox Case.

The famous Liverpool case has had rather an amusing ending. Mr. Bell-Cox, the rector of St. John the Baptist's Church, was charged with ritualistic practices. He was rebuked by his Bishop and ordered to conform to the rules of his Church. He paid no heed to the Bishop, and was finally, under a warrant from Lord Penzance, taken to prison for contumacy. There he refused to submit. Now, in consequence of the popular clamor against imprisoning clergy for such an offence, and because of the unwillingness of Bishop Ryle to prosecute, the offending clergyman is at liberty. He may resume his candles, etc., at St. John the Baptist's. He may be again accused and again imprisoned and again liberated.

A Pacific Assurance.

VICTORIA, B.C., June 28.—Senator Voorhees, of Indiana, arrived here yesterday en route to Alaska. He said that it was a mistaken idea that the American Government would close Behring Sea to foreign vessels. The whole trouble in his opinion was engendered by the Alaska Commercial Company, and President Cleveland was aware of this fact. A commission would be appointed to inquire into the Fisheries question. Senator Voorhees thought the question would form an issue in the next Presidential campaign.

The soothing and restorative effects of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral are realized in all cases of colds, coughs, throat or lung troubles, while its powerful healing qualities are shown in the most serious pulmonary disorders.

A HEINOUS OFFENCE.—The Hamilton Times says:—A horrible rape case was brought before the attention of the police Tuesday night. A little daughter of Andrew Hempstock, residing west of the Crystal Palace, was playing in Beasley's hollow in the afternoon when a man 28 or 30 years old committed the brutal offence upon her. The girl is between 3 and 4 years old and is in a very dangerous condition. Quite a number of people were around at the time, but through their negligence the fellow was allowed to escape and it was hours afterwards before it was reported to the police. By that time the man had disappeared. The police have been on the watch for him ever since.

AT the annual Convocation of the University of Galesville, Wisconsin, on the 22nd inst., the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on Rev. R. J. Laidlaw, of St. Paul's church, Hamilton, in recognition of his ability as a pastor and preacher, his attainments as a scholar and his success in the field of authorship.
