HASZARD'S GAZETTE, OCTOBER / 8.

TANARIETIES.

The Beform army are dressed in all ours of clothing, but principally in sitks and satus, with a red or yellow cap-the body of the jacket being of the same clour. The Quang-tung men are said to be those with the red uniform; the Quangsturs dress like females. The older fallowers may be distinguished from the younger by their long, flowing hair. The aew adherents, whose hair is still shot have a square pièce of cloth sewn to the jacket, with the character Taipang (Peace) on it, and also a little wooden tally suspended from a button-hole, star-ing hame and to what division the wears with the tail, and secure the loose hair behind with a broad pin. Not having any whikers, they have a very delicate and effeminate appearance. To Covar Parsenves.—The covering for preserve: used by the trade, instead of a blader, is made by brushing over sheets Uniform of the Chinese Reformere.

for preserves used by the trade, instead of a blader, is made by brushing over sheets of wet paper, of the thickness and length required, with linseed oil, which has been previously boiled. The sheets should be hung on a string and thoroughly dried be-fore using. The material is also used for tulip shudes, and as a substitute for glass. in workshops. It is perfectly water-proof. BEEF STEWED WITH ONIONS. - Cut some tender beef in small pieces, and season it with pepper and salt, slice some onions and add to it, with enough water in the stew-pan to make a gravy; let it stew slowly till the beef is done then add some pieces of butter rolled in flour to make rich gravy. Cold beef may be done in the same way, only the onions must be stewed first, and meat added. If the water should stew away too much, put in a little more.

AN EXCEPTION.-A gentleman boasted that he had drunk two, three, or four bottles of wine every day for fifty years, and that he was as hale and hearty as ever. "Pray," remarked a bystander," where are your boon companions?" "Ah," he quickly replied, "that's another affair. If the truth may be told, I have buried three generations of them."

L'AWYERS .- " A lawyer," said Lord Brougham-in a facetious mood-"is a learned gentleman who rescues your estate from your enemies, and keeps it himself."

Some mischievous wags one night pulled down a turner's sign, aud put it over a lawyer's door." In the morning it read, " All sorts of turning and twisting done here."

SAM SLICE says, " I believe every crittur in the world thinks that he's the most entertainin' one in it, and that there's no gettin' on anyhow without him. Consuit grows as nateral as the hair on one's head, but is longe in coming out."

EPIGRAMS ON THE VICTIMS OF A RAILBOAD ACCIDENT .- Sister, mother, aunt, and me, Were run over. Here We be, J. ahould have had time to mizzle, || Had they blown the engine's whistle.

reading public, and affords a guarantee that they are established on a firm basis, and will be continued, without interruption. Although these works are distinguished by the political subdes above soluticated, yob but a small portion of their contents is devoted to political subjects. It is their literary character which gives them their chief value, and in that they stand confessedly far above all other journals of their class. Blackwood, still under the matery guidances of Christopher Nextly, maintains is ancient celebrity, and is, at this time, unassally attractive, from the serial works of Butwer and other licerary motables, written for that magnine, and first appearing in its columns, both in Great Britain and in the United States. Such works as "The Castone" and "My New Novel," (both by Bulwer), "My Pe-minsular Medal," "The Green Hand," and other serials, of which numerons irvial editions are issued by the leading publishers in this country, have to be reprinted by these publishers in the space of Black-wood, after it has been issued by Messers.
