FEILDIANS AND SAINTS PLA

THE FIRST HALF opened with a rush by the Saints, who had won the toss and were defending the western goal. This was stopped by the Feildian backs and the ball was brought up into the Saints territory and after a six minutes play, Strang, taking advantage of a miskick by an opposing back, scored. Eight minutes later the Saints equalised through Munn, who lodged the ball behind Fletcher from play in front of goal as the result of a corner kick. Soon after the Feildians missed a splendid opportunity and the ball was taken up into their territory by the Saints. The Feildians got away again however, and came right down field, a stinging shot being sent in to Joyca, who cleared well. Just before half time a penalty was awarded the Feildians. Winter took the kick, but Joyce saved and the goal was cleared by the Saints backs. opened with a rush by the Saints,

Does Not Want a Plebiscite:

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—Kindly pardon my b ness in writing a heading for this letter. You may ask "If Mr. Smith does not want a plebiscite, why did he say that he had appealed to Caesar (meaning the higher authority, namely, the people)?" My answer is that I was forced, like the Apostle of old, to do so in order to obtain justice. I am not anxious for the worry and trouble of a plebiscite. All I want is to ensure the coming into effect of a decent law which can be refect of a decent law which can be respected.

As for the cost, that is a matter for the legislators. If they will not take the responsibility of giving us decent legislation on this subject, they must take the responsibility of finding the money for an appeal to the people. The increased revenue, even from the bottle a quarter (not to speak of the bottle a week) would more than pay for the election.

There are two classes of persons who are raising this cry of cost. There are those Prohibitionists who are so anxious to hold on to the are so anxious to hold on to the sacred name of Prohibition that they sacred name of Prohibition that they are afraid to risk a defeat at the polls. The other class consists of moonshiners for profit and those who have invested in the smuggling traffic, and they are backed by those hard drinkers who are now able to obtain a bottle a day, and who are afraid that a bottle a week will not suffice them. a bottle a week will not suffice them. They are not numerous, thank Heaven, but they raise an awful row. Verily, Alexander, the Coppersmith, is not dead; but it is copper tubing not copper idols, he is making now. These latter are the people who tried hard to get a repeal section in the Act, while the bone-dry folk wanted to cut out even the medicine. I had to fight them both, and both classes are now sore with me.

Yours truly,

WARWICK SMITH.
