

SUCCESS OF TANLAC DUE TO MERIT ALONE

Personal Recommendation of Celebrated Medicine by Persons It Has Restored to Health Is the Chief Reason for Its Tremendous Sale.

It is a day passes but what thousands of people ask the questions: "Why do we hear so much of Tanlac?" The answer to these questions is not difficult. Tanlac is a wonderful medicine. It is a tonic and a restorative. It is a medicine that has been used for years and has been found to be of great benefit to many people. It is a medicine that has been used for years and has been found to be of great benefit to many people. in any derogatory way of these Knights of the Crossroads. Let me hasten to correct that impression. I like to laugh at them but, just the same I think most of them are as clean cut, clear thinking, fine looking, upstanding, courteous and patient a lot of men as one might hope to see.

Getting Ready for Fishery.

Southwest Coast Bankers Make Preparation for Fishery which opens early in April.

Some Suppliers go out of Business.

The Banking masters of Grand Bank, Burn and Fortune are now making preparations to resume this fishery, and will sail early in April with their first baiting. The outlook is regarded as very hopeful, especially in view of the fact that the Newfoundland stocks of dry fish will be all cleared out by that time, with perhaps the exception of a few hundred quintals of West India fish.

The price in the Oporto market is expected to rule high by that time, as although there is a large quantity of fish there now, and more going forward, the late Lenten demand is expected to clean up all the stocks in that market. The reduced cost of fishery outfit this season will make conditions more attractive, and well made fish (now) is expected to have a local value of at least seven dollars a quintal next June.

We understand that three or four business men of the South-West Coast have been obliged to go out of the supply business, owing to reverses in fish transactions the past two years. Mr. S. Harris and the Margrove Trading Co., however, we understand, will carry on as usual, and this means the supplying of a large number of crews. Now that restrictions have been taken off fish shipments, the South-West Coast has a good chance of regaining its old time status of prosperity next season, in the event of a good fishery.—Trade Review.

Dock Riots at Liverpool. Placentia Welcomes An Honored Son.

The dock labourers of Liverpool, who had struck work, being reinforced by a large body of sailors and a considerable number of roughs, marched on February 7, 1879, to the Waterloo Dock, and maltreated the non-strike hands. They then rushed to the ship "Edwina" and threatened to throw the labourers into the dock if they resumed work, and afterwards attacked the steamer "Victoria," on board of which were some Bristol men, who prudently retired below and secured themselves from violence. Eventually the mob was driven into the roadway by the police, and the dock gates were closed. Demonstrations of an equally formidable nature were made during the day at the other docks, and there was some danger of a night attack, which was fortunately averted by the excellent arrangement of the police, who could be massed to the number of five or six hundred at any one point on very short notice. On the 8th the military were called out; a detachment of the 5th Dragoon Guards patrolled the roads outside the docks, while a company of the 11th Regiment were stationed at the Collingwood Docks. Additional troops arrived in the course of the afternoon, until Liverpool assumed the appearance of a city occupied by an invading force. These prompt measures had the effect of checking disorders; in fact, at the various mass meetings held by the men their leaders urged them to refrain from violence and to behave as became good citizens. On the Monday there was no renewal of the disturbances, but the total number of men who were idle was estimated at from fifty to sixty thousand, including clock-makers, sailors, firemen, coal-heavers, boiler-makers and engineers. Gradually the air cleared; the steamship owners whose vessels were unable to leave the port, offered arbitration, which was first refused and then referred to delegates, who recommended to the men the acceptance of the owners' ultimatum, which offered a conscientious examination of the whole question of labour and time, and by the end of the month the strike was over.

On Sunday, January 15th, at the Presentation Oratory, Cathedral Sq., St. John's, the Rev. Joseph M. Connors, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Connors, Placentia, was elevated to the ranks of Holy Priesthood, by the Right Rev. E. P. Roche, Archbishop of St. John's, Placentia's most illustrious son. On Monday the parish turned out in hundreds, and with the Very Rev. P. O'Flaherty met the young priest at the Railway Station, and with flags flying from all available places, escorted him to his home on the town side, showing him a right royal welcome, and testifying to him the esteem in which he is held by the people of his native town. It was announced from the Altar on the day of his (Fr. Connors) Ordination that the young Priest would say his first solemn high mass on Sunday, the 22nd January. Immediately after mass and before unvesting an address was read and a purse of gold presented. The address was a masterpiece, being painted on white satin, the work of the talented Sister Gerard of Our Convent here, which reflects great credit on her. The address was read by Magistrate O'Reilly and the purse presented by Mr. F. F. Murphy. The following are the words of the address:—

Rev. and Dear Fr. Connors.—On behalf of the people of this historic Catholic centre, permit us to approach you this morning and welcome you home as a Priest of God. The heritage bequeathed to us by our forefathers was not such that the world would care; not such that the rust would consume or moth devour, or thief take away, but a virile Catholic spirit yet withal, a loyal, loving, tender trust in Holy Mother Church, that we have preserved untarnished, bright as of yore, that precious heritage, your presence here this morning, Dear Father is ample testimony. We welcome you to-day with feelings of joy and gratitude, because your long years of arduous preparation are completed, and the ambition of your life released. Gratitude to God the giver of all good, that another of Placentia's sons has been elevated to the dignity of an Ambassador of Christ.

We express the wish Dear Father, that you may be spared for many years to extend God's Kingdom on earth "going around" even as the Master, doing good. We wish you to accept this purse of gold as a slight testimony of the esteem and affection in which you are held, and in return we request that you remember us where remembrance is best at God's Altar, and pray the Sacred Heart ever to have us in its Holy Keeping. Read on behalf of the people of Placentia:—

W. F. O'Reilly, William Delaney, J. W. Collins, F. F. Murphy, G. N. Collins, Jas. Kelly, Patrick Kemp, for Jersey Side, Jas. Lannon, Jas. O'Brien, for South East, Peter Power, W. J. Power, for Dunville, W. J. Green, for Point Verde. At the conclusion of the reading of the address, Father Connors mounted the Altar steps, and his reply was a masterpiece of eloquence mingled with gratitude. Seldom have the people of the parish listened with such attention and rapture of the choice language so freely uttered. Father Connors was much affected by the welcome and the address, as was proven by the reply he gave. It was the consensus of opinion that, rarely, if ever, did we hear such a masterful, scholarly and affectionate reply to an

address, clearly showing that Father Connors is but starting in his priestly office, and in the early future will be looked upon as one of the foremost preachers. He leaves in a few days to go as curate with the Rev. Fr. O'Driscoll, one of the last of the old Priests. Placentia's wish to Father Connors in his new sphere of labour is a continuance of the success which he has achieved at his Seminary. Thanking you in anticipation of space.

Storms Kill Fishes.

Fish are very susceptible to changes of temperature. A hot summer has often been known for instance, to drive herrings to find cooler waters farther afield.

Some years ago, a fearful storm raged along the coast of North-east America. After it had subsided, the sea was strewn with millions of fish, a fish like the cod, but attaining a weight of 50 pounds or more.

A vessel was sent out to discover the cause of the strange phenomenon. It ploughed straight ahead for 150 miles, and estimated that an area of 5,000 square miles was covered with dead fishes. It was discovered that the storm had brought icebergs in its train, and the consequent great cold had proved too much for the fish, accustomed as they were to warmer waters.

The cod has an objection to sudden changes of climate, and if in colder water than that to which it is accustomed, will be numbed.

Experiments have been tried to acclimatise English salmon in Tasmania, but the difference in temperatures has caused those experiments to fail.

Congers and pilchards have died from cold off the Cornish coast, and the once plentiful herring has never been seen in the shallow waters of Cornwall since a violent easterly gale blew in 1879.

THE LORDS OF THE HIGHWAY.

Once upon a time every small boy of my acquaintance, and I presume of yours, wanted to be either a fireman, or a policeman, or a president, or something coming like that. To-day I have been convinced that three-fourths of the population under ten have got their minds set on being a traffic cop. I heard two women discussing this experience the other day. "I could hardly believe it was John," said one of them, "when I heard him say, 'Yes, Officer, my mistake. I'll be more careful.' It was the first time I had heard him admit making a mistake since we were married."

"You should have heard Peter," said the other. "I really thought the officer beckoned him on, but when Peter started the officer jumped on him. I thought Peter would sass him back but he just said, 'I'm sorry, Officer, as meek as Moses.'"

Speaking of Moses, I wonder if it will seem awfully irreverent if I say that whenever I see an especially fine looking, commanding traffic cop holding up his hand to stay the sea of traffic while the pedestrians get safe to the other side, and then majestically beckoning it on, I think of Moses and the Red Sea.

Does Someone Boss Him Around?

Sometimes I wonder what the traffic cop is like at home. Does he say "Do this," and she doeth it, to his wife? Does he motion his little boy out of the room with one wave of his hand? Or does the lady of the house command him as absolutely as he commands the traffic? It would be fun to peep in on them and see, wouldn't it? And now, lest I seem to be speaking

The Robin.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—In reference to the robin seen by a correspondent of the Daily News, Feb. 1st, this is an additional proof that these birds do not migrate in winter. I saw them in February last winter in Whitway's trees, Monkstown Road, and Mr. R. B. Job wrote me at the same time saying that he had seen them in his grounds at Rostellan—quite a flock—several times in January and February. Mr. P. J. O'Reilly of Ashleaf Place, near Smithville, informed me to-day, when he read the item of "Citizen" in the Daily News, that it was no stranger to him, as he had seen robins in small flocks in his trees on several of the fine days in January. He believes that they retire to the distant thick woods in the extremely cold and stormy weather. Mr. T. Harris believes that the birds that remain here in winter are a distinct class from the robins that migrate.

Yours truly,
Feb. 6th, 1922. P. K. D.

Temporary Only.

Three days work per week at Bell Island is not looked upon very favorably by some of our unemployed. They claim that the returns from this work will not be sufficient to keep a man's family and pay the cost of his residence on the Island. There are scores of men in the other places of the district who will accept the offer, and there is very little doubt but that the number of men required will readily avail of the chance to take the work over. Evidently this is the best that can be done in the nature of employment, and it must not be forgotten that this work is only for relief and is not expected to be on as large a scale as it would be if the company were opening up in its ordinary course.—Harbor Grace Standard.

Dye Silk Stockings, Blouse or Sweater in Diamond Dyes

"Diamond Dyes" add years of wear to worn, faded skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, hangings, draperies, everything. Every package contains directions so simple any woman can put new, rich, fadeless colors into her worn garments or draperies even if she has never dyed before. Just buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then your material will come out right, because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to streak, spot, fade, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Household Notes.

A simple breakfast for one who does not care for eggs is:—Cereal with dates, whole wheat muffins and orange marmalade. When you buy canned products, be sure that you are getting new goods look to see if the cans are perfect and the labels clean and fresh. Cut into strips every crisp thing that has an invalid is to eat. Toast which has to be broken is sure to send a shower of crumbs into the bed.
