It is somewhat difficult to write a market report when there is no market to write about. There is scarcely anything coming in, so that prices can scarcely be considered as criteria of what prices would be were there an ordinary supply. Fall wheat is a trifle steadier than last week; spring wheat after undergoing sundry variations during the past few days has reached the old figure, 90c, and is not likely to move much for a time.—Oats have gone up a little peas are easier, and barley is down 20 cents. We observe that the receipts in the city markets are light; and business dull.
