

THE AERO-UNICYCLE IS THE LATEST AND IS FAST

It Slips Along at the Rapid Rate of 720 Miles an Hour at Ordinary Speed

Machine is an Aluminum Hoop Which is Blown Along by Propellers

St. Louis, July 23.—"Merely we'll roll along, roll along" 12 miles a minute, 720 miles an hour, 19,200 miles from sun to sun in a hoop!

Get that right—a hoop! That is what the speed maniac of the future may be doing.

The aero-unicycle is the last word in speed. It is destined to do for the racing auto and the speediest motorcycle what they did to old Dobbin.

The only limit is a man's ability to live while he travels, and an unobstructed roadway," says Clinton Coates, inventor of the aero-unicycle.

Along the inner rim of the hoop and on each side travel three sets of three rollers or wheels on ball bearings.

These support the framework, the motor and the rider, and keep them level with the ground.

There is no traction. The propellers, 41 inches wide, having a forward thrust of 50 pounds with each revolution, blow the hoop along just as a boy with a stick knocks his hoop along the walk.

Explains the "Hoop" Inside the hoop is a saddle for the rider, the motor, and handles, with which are connected two wires leading to the steering rudder.

Coates and his co-inventor, William McDonald, explained the working of the aero-unicycle. At five in the morning before the curious were awake, William Hunter, a professional motorcyclist, rolled the unicycle out.

Hunter leaped on the saddle, started the motor—six horsepower—and coasted "cranked" the machine by turning the propeller. The hoop began to revolve, the rider and the machinery sliding along on the inner rim.

With three revolutions Hunter leaned forward on his saddle, thereby drawing up the two small wheels about a foot from the ground, and he was off.

A mechanical counter of revolutions of the hoop told us he was rolling 52 miles an hour. He had the queer vehicle under perfect control, turning and stopping at will.

Some Speeder, Too. "The hoop will cover a mile in 250 revolutions," said Coates, "and an engine capable of driving the hoop 3,000 revolutions a minute can be started."

That gives the machine a speed capacity of 12 miles a minute, or 720 miles an hour, a velocity at which no person could probably live, even with wind shields and oxygen tanks for breathing.

"There are three dangers: Striking an obstruction, getting into the small ball-bearing wheels out of its track. Either one would mean a sure and sudden death to the rider. They are mere possibilities, though."

Here is what the aero-unicycle rider could do if he could reach Coates' top-notch speed estimate. Going around the earth along the northern line of the north temperate zone, and supposing he rode a path about the globe before him, a rider could make 13,280 miles in 24 hours. That is about as fast as the earth turns on its axis at that meridian.

Going with the sun, the rider would never encounter night, always would the sun shine over him; going opposite the sun, the rider would have two days and two nights every 24 hours, that is, that satisfy the dare-devil's lust for fast, faster, fastest?

Getting down to shorter trips, he could roll from New York to Toledo in 58 minutes; from New York to St. Paul in one hour and 54 minutes; to Omaha in two hours and one minute; to Denver in two hours and 46 minutes; and to San Francisco in four hours and 15 minutes.

That Would Season Him From the Boston Transcript. She—So you've seen Papa. Did he say anything about your being too young?

He—Yes, but he said when I once began to pay your bills I would age rapidly enough.

WEARY TIREDNESS CHANGED TO VIGOR

That Quickly-Removed Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early Symptoms of Disease

"My life for years has been of a sedentary character," writes T. B. Fitchfield, head of a well known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill health, which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfit for business. In the morning a lightness in the stomach, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found no effect, and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping nor nausea, and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver, strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared, and my appetite, strength, spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from The Cattaraugus Co., Buffalo, N. Y., and Kingston, Canada.

Store Opens 8.45 a.m. Closes 6 p.m. Saturdays 9.30 p.m.

JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL RESERVES JUDGMENT IN NE TEMERE CASE

London, July 23.—I. F. Hellmuth, K. C., continuing his argument before the judicial committee of the privy council, urged that the provision now sought in the new marriage act would be at variance with the code. In the case of two Roman Catholics, marriage could only be validly solemnized before a Roman Catholic priest because no other minister upon a true construction of the code had the necessary authority to solemnize such.

Lord Chancellor Loreburn referred to articles in the code based on decisions of the council of Trent. Hellmuth contended that the greatest evil which could befall a country would be legislation leading to laxity in the solemnization of marriage. Clarendon, as decreed by the council of Trent and recognized by the code of Quebec, was based on the general French law that a clandestine marriage was no marriage. If any other than priest could solemnize marriage in the province, this result would be to render marriage less stable socially and produce the evil which the law desired to remedy.

E. C. Gouffron, representing the attorney general of Quebec then opened the case for that province. When this bill was introduced by a private member, the question at once presented itself whether the Dominion Parliament in allowing such a bill to be proposed was not acting ultra vires.

Lord Atkinson.—The question seems to me to be this: "Is a person married before a Roman Catholic priest? This is a singular request."

Mr. Gouffron in reply said that when the matter was before the superior court of Canada, the request of the attorney general of Quebec that the question of what is the effect of the law in Quebec should be left unanswered by that court was acceded to.

Lord Atkinson.—"You say that the bill does not in trench on civil rights?"

Nesbitt.—"I say it does not do so; it does not import to do so."

Lord Atkinson failed to see how it was not an interference with the solemnization of marriage to say that it was legal for any person authorized to solemnize marriage, not between persons of one class, but between persons of any class, if, as the law stood, marriages between certain persons could only be valid when solemnized before a priest.

The lord chancellor asked if a provincial tribunal declared a certain marriage, unless solemnized in a particular way, should be null and void, would a declaration of nullity, giving the power of the right to marry again be an infringement on the jurisdiction of the dominion parliament?

Nesbitt.—"Certainly it would be."

At the conclusion of the arguments, Mr. Gouffron pointed out that these lordships had not yet heard the argument of question two, which raised the question of the Roman Catholic who married otherwise than before a priest.

Lord Chancellor Loreburn said they would not hear argument on that point they were not prepared to decide that point.

But if it had to be considered, with reference to points which they would decide, the parties concerned would have due notice.

In his reply to the argument of counsel representing Quebec, Wallace Nesbitt, K. C., was asked the following question:

Lord Atkinson: "Your contention is that a man can say he is married, although he failed to go through the ceremony as described in this or that particular provision, assuming, of course, that he did was legal?"

Nesbitt: "Exactly. Parliament cannot say you are not married, unless, in addition to the rites imposed on all persons getting married, you, in addition to the rites imposed by a particular province where the solemnization happened to take place. Why should any such restriction be placed on persons desiring to get married who are of all sorts of nationalities? There are absolutely a dozen types of nationality settling in western Canada. Has the dominion any right to say that the law shall treat as valid, any marriage such persons shall contract which has been duly performed according to law, although the parties may not have gone through the ceremony required by some enactment made by that particular province. This act is intended to protect and does nothing more than protect the marriage contract which is already in existence against an attempt by the province to impair its validity."

Their lordships reserved decision; the lord chancellor saying they were greatly indebted to counsel for the extremely able arguments addressed them on each side.

Ralph Studvin, treasurer at Kelth's, has had many funny experiences in his career. This is his funniest: A man came to the window and asked for two seats. Studvin explained to him that he did not have two seats together. "Well, haven't you two anywhere near together?" persisted the man. "We have two seats but there is a post between them," answered the treasurer. "Oh, that's all right; let my wife with whom I'm going," replied the man.

BORDEN FORGETS CANADA DECLARES LA PRESSE

Montreal, July 23.—La Presse, discussing Canada's naval contribution to imperial defence, says in part:

"Canada is the granary of the empire. Is not that the most useful manner in which to contribute to imperial defence? We supported Sir Wilfrid Laurier without hesitation when he consented to prepare little by little a Canadian navy for the defence of our own territory, but what Mr. Borden proposes today is not the same thing. Led astray by a false sentimentalism, intoxicated by incense which mounts to his nostrils from the Unionist centers, he sees nothing now but the empire and forgets Canada."

"What he proposes is nothing more than the progressive effacement of our national autonomy."

"We cannot follow him so far. Canada is ready to help Great Britain generously, but it has no need to sacrifice for that any one of its present rights."

MOTORIST SENT TO JAIL

Washington, July 23.—Thirty days in jail without the option of a fine was the sentence a local court imposed today on Clyde Withers, an automobilist, who ran down a man alighting from a street car. Witnesses swore Withers passed the stopping trolley at high speed and did not wait to clear of his victim's injury.
