

A Well-Played Game,

But It Counted Against the London Nine.

Toronto Made Eight Hits But Failed to Score a Run

Progress of the London Lawn Bowling Contest.

Racing at St. Catharines, Port Huron and Detroit.

Women Riders Deserting the Bicycle for the Tricycle—Various Sporting Events.

A WELL-PLAYED GAME.

Hamilton, June 15.—A well-played game, with a most exciting finish, was witnessed by 400 people at Dundas Park today. Grandpa Phillips was responsible for all the London's runs. His four errors almost losing the game. Hamilton hit freely, but Johnston kept the safe ones scattered, except in the second and third innings, when the Hams might have made more runs but for bad coaching.

In the ninth it looked as if London was going to tie the score or win. Keenan got first on Phillips' error, and Ward sacrificed. Strouger followed with another sacrifice, and a hit or error would have made a run. Sechrist sent a hot one, which Dean managed to field, and the suspense was over. The score:

	A.	B.	R.	H.	P.	O.	A.	E.
London	3	0	2	13	0	0	0	0
Phillips, as	3	0	2	1	3	4	0	0
McDonald, as	3	0	2	1	3	4	0	0
Conwall, as	3	0	2	3	2	0	0	0
Malott, as	3	0	2	3	2	0	0	0
McDade, as	3	0	2	3	2	0	0	0
Hoffner, as	3	0	2	3	2	0	0	0
Sechrist, as	3	0	2	3	2	0	0	0
Hoffner, as	3	0	2	3	2	0	0	0
Totals	30	0	11	27	15	0	0	0

London.

Eastern League—Tuesday. Syracuse 5, Scranton 4. Rochester 4, Wilkes-Barre 11. Second game—Rochester 13, Wilkes-Barre 10. Providence 10, Springfield 14. Toronto 9, Springfield 14. National League—Tuesday. Boston 10, Cincinnati 4. Brooklyn 4, Chicago 8. New York 9, St. Louis 2. Washington 8, Pittsburgh 14. Baltimore 7, Louisville 5. Cleveland 4, Philadelphia 3.

Toronto Shut Out.

Guelph, June 15.—Madcock's ball tossers were completely shut out yesterday afternoon in a game with the Leafs. In the first inning McGemmill was hit hard, and Guelph managed to score 7 runs. The rest of the game was marked by brilliant plays on both sides. Bradford was hit eight times, but kept them scattered and had excellent support. Score:

Cleveland 4, Philadelphia 3.

TORONTO SHUT OUT.

Guelph, June 15.—Maddock's ball team was completely shut out yesterday afternoon in a game with the Leafs. In the first inning McGemmill was hit hard, and Guelph managed to score 7 runs. The rest of the game was marked by brilliant plays on both sides. Bradford was hit eight times, but kept them scattered, and had ex-

After the two victories at London last week the team hopes to receive better support at home. In future dates will not conflict with the Eastern League games. Manager Madcock around the city this morning, looking what he can do towards getting some more financial backing. The team hasn't had a decent day yet for a home game, and so can't tell what support it will receive.

Game at Thorncliffe.

Thorncliffe, June 14.—An exciting game of ball was played on Saturday afternoon, between the Harlington nine and the local team, resulting in a victory for the home team by 12 to 8. There was a good attendance.

Chases Syrup of Inseed and Turpentine cures All Throat and Lung Troubles. Teaspoonful Doses. PRICE 25 CENTS.

At St. Catharines. St. Catharines, Ont., June 15.—The seventeenth annual races of the Fairvale Driving Park opened yesterday. Track fast and attendance large. The summary:

3-minute trot—Van Dusen's Lady Van 1, Brown's Silvia 2, May's Dan C. 3. Best time, 2:38. 2:30 and 2:35 race—Burgess' Robbie Hal 1, Reid's Oliver Mowat 2, May's Marjorie 3. Best time, 2:25. Running race—Wilson's Bradlaugh 1, Hillars' Draper 2, Miss Alex Furness 3. Time, 1:14.

On account of lack of entries the second day's races have been declared off.

Racing in England. London, June 16.—At the first day's racing at Ascot Heath yesterday, Mr. C. R. Habron's Masque II won the Ascot stakes 20 sovereigns each with 2,000 sovereigns added. Mr. J. Gubbins' Galtee More, winner of the Derby, won the Prince of Wales' stakes of 50 sovereigns each, with 1,000 sovereigns added. The Lordillard-Beresford stakes' b. c. Elfin won the Biennial stakes of 10 sovereigns each, with 500 sovereigns added.

STRATHROY RACES. The events to take place at Strathroy on July 1 include: 3:00 trot or pace, purse $25; 2:34 trot or pace, purse $25; free-for-all, trot or pace, $150. Entries close June 28. T. A. Scott is the secretary-treasurer.

THE WHEEL. TRICYCLE OR BICYCLE. It is predicted by a good many people that women riders will soon desert the bicycle for the tricycle. This appears to be hardly likely. Back of the prediction is the assertion that the Princess of Wales has started the innovation, preferring the tricycle to the bicycle. With such a fashionable precedent the society dames throughout England are following the example. In all Canada unexcelled for a military camp. The only objectionable feature at Carling's Heights is the almost total absence of trees. Capt. McLean calls Niagara the "soldier's paradise."

Today the Twenty-sixth Battalion, amount of ammunition is drawn for a most favorable showing. The guard furnished by this battalion, in comparison of Capt. Annie Becher, was a great credit to the regiment.

Last night the Muncy town and Onondaga Indians turned their backs on the soldiers, giving several war dances. These stalwart Indians turned their backs on the soldiers, giving several war dances. These stalwart Indians turned their backs on the soldiers, giving several war dances.

REGULATIONS FOR MUSKETRY AND TARGET PRACTICE. Strict attention must be paid by all officers to the following musketry regulations:

No. 1.—The commanding officer of a battalion is responsible that the proper amount of ammunition is drawn for his battalion, in good time after being warned for target practice, and that it is properly distributed to the men.

No. 2.—He will specially detail an officer and one sergeant from his battalion to act as instructor and sergeant, and to be under the supervision of the instructor of musketry.

No. 3.—Each officer commanding a company will prepare and bring with him to target practice a complete nominal list of his company, which he will hand to the instructor of musketry at the range.

No. 4.—Previously to marching off from the camp for target practice each officer commanding a company will detail the section commander, or a selected N. O. or man, a good writer, to act as register keeper to each section.

No. 5.—Each register keeper will, after the practice, while on the ground, make out a duplicate register of the return from the above-mentioned duplicates and send them in through his commanding officer for transmission to the instructor of musketry.

No. 6.—It will be the duty of the officer detailed as battalion musketry instructor to see that these regulations are carried out, and to obtain and give all further information required to all company officers with reference to musketry.

No. 7.—Six selected men from each company will be detailed to act as fatigue men to clean the rifles on the completion of the target practice, the cleaning oil being supplied by the instructor of musketry. They will be paraded by the battalion sergeant-major, and the instructor of musketry, under his and the brigade sergeant-major's supervision, as soon as possible.

The battalion instructor of musketry is responsible for this. No. 8.—Before proceeding to target practice, the men must be cautioned by their officers that implicit obedience and silence are required during target practice for it is only by attention to the regulations laid down for musketry that accidents are avoided.

No. 9.—It must be remembered that each officer commanding a company is responsible for the completeness and accuracy of the target practice returns. By order, J. Stacey, Lieut.-Col. Brigade Major, June 11, 1907.

WOLESEY BARRACKS, JUNE 11, 1907.

THE TWENTY-SIXTH BATTALION, MIDDLESEX.

The battalion was formed in 1865, consisting of No. 1 company, Delaware No. 2, Komoka; No. 3, Harriestville; No. 4, Tharston; No. 5, Lacom; No. 6, Parkhill; No. 7, Strathroy, with Col. Graham, of No. 1 company, in command. Major Armstrong, of Strathroy, took command, who resigned in 1889, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

In the Canvas City.

Sketch of the Twenty-Sixth Battalion, Middlesex Light Infantry.

Items of Interest From the Camp Grounds—Musketry Regulations—Notes.

THIRD DAY—WEDNESDAY.

Yesterday afternoon the remaining portion of the unselected battalions were put through the several movements before Gen. Gascoigne. The heat was not lessened by the rain, and the effect of it was that several of the men in different companies had to be relieved from duty.

Capt. McLean, the general's aide-de-camp, called Niagara the "soldier's paradise." Today the Twenty-sixth Battalion, amount of ammunition is drawn for a most favorable showing. The guard furnished by this battalion, in comparison of Capt. Annie Becher, was a great credit to the regiment.

Last night the Muncy town and Onondaga Indians turned their backs on the soldiers, giving several war dances. These stalwart Indians turned their backs on the soldiers, giving several war dances. These stalwart Indians turned their backs on the soldiers, giving several war dances.

REGULATIONS FOR MUSKETRY AND TARGET PRACTICE. Strict attention must be paid by all officers to the following musketry regulations:

No. 1.—The commanding officer of a battalion is responsible that the proper amount of ammunition is drawn for his battalion, in good time after being warned for target practice, and that it is properly distributed to the men.

No. 2.—He will specially detail an officer and one sergeant from his battalion to act as instructor and sergeant, and to be under the supervision of the instructor of musketry.

No. 3.—Each officer commanding a company will prepare and bring with him to target practice a complete nominal list of his company, which he will hand to the instructor of musketry at the range.

No. 4.—Previously to marching off from the camp for target practice each officer commanding a company will detail the section commander, or a selected N. O. or man, a good writer, to act as register keeper to each section.

No. 5.—Each register keeper will, after the practice, while on the ground, make out a duplicate register of the return from the above-mentioned duplicates and send them in through his commanding officer for transmission to the instructor of musketry.

No. 6.—It will be the duty of the officer detailed as battalion musketry instructor to see that these regulations are carried out, and to obtain and give all further information required to all company officers with reference to musketry.

No. 7.—Six selected men from each company will be detailed to act as fatigue men to clean the rifles on the completion of the target practice, the cleaning oil being supplied by the instructor of musketry. They will be paraded by the battalion sergeant-major, and the instructor of musketry, under his and the brigade sergeant-major's supervision, as soon as possible.

The battalion instructor of musketry is responsible for this. No. 8.—Before proceeding to target practice, the men must be cautioned by their officers that implicit obedience and silence are required during target practice for it is only by attention to the regulations laid down for musketry that accidents are avoided.

No. 9.—It must be remembered that each officer commanding a company is responsible for the completeness and accuracy of the target practice returns. By order, J. Stacey, Lieut.-Col. Brigade Major, June 11, 1907.

WOLESEY BARRACKS, JUNE 11, 1907.

THE TWENTY-SIXTH BATTALION, MIDDLESEX.

The battalion was formed in 1865, consisting of No. 1 company, Delaware No. 2, Komoka; No. 3, Harriestville; No. 4, Tharston; No. 5, Lacom; No. 6, Parkhill; No. 7, Strathroy, with Col. Graham, of No. 1 company, in command. Major Armstrong, of Strathroy, took command, who resigned in 1889, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Col. Irwin, of the 22nd, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1893, and was succeeded by the present officer in command, Col. Irwin. The military history of this gentleman will be interesting to the men of his battalion. He was enrolled as a private in No. 7 company in 1865, at its formation, was made sergeant at once, and then captain in 1872, brevet major in 1882, major in the same year, and received his commission as colonel May 3, 1888.

Barnato's Roodle.

How the "Diamond King" Became a Multi-Millionaire.

The Most Remarkable Speculator of the Century.

Relatives Turning Up in America Who Claim a Share of the Dead Man's Wealth.

London, June 15.—The late Barney Barnato was in many respects the most remarkable speculator of the century. Of all the Englishmen who have taken part in the development of South Africa, two only have secured a world-wide reputation. These have been Cecil Rhodes and Barnett Isaac, more often and less respectfully known as Cecil Rhodes and Barney Barnato. Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth in the neighborhood of $500,000,000. It was the fashion to call him the richest man in the world; but what was he virtually the king of the London money market. In the autumn of 1895, when the Transvaal was at its height, every man, woman and child in London, with money to invest, invested it in "Kaffirs." The craze was the most recent in a long series of crazes which have been the life of the London money market.

Barney Barnato was an assumed name—a sort of stage name, for he began his life in South Africa as a poor boy, and in 1895 when his good fortune was at its zenith, it was estimated that he controlled interests worth