BLUNZ CANADIAN SERGE.

There is one thing about Blunz Canadian Serge that is imported—that is the fine, long-haired Australian wool. That gives it an advantage over the product of the Canadian woolen mills. The fine, long strands of the Australian sheep weave together a softer, stronger fabric.

The Canadian wool is coarse and shorter, and produces a harsh cloth. Blunz serge does not shrink. The man who gave the Blunz its fast dye and unfading color learned the secrets of the trade in England. He is an artist just as much as is the man who designs the Blunz sack suits, which sell in all the Semi-ready stores at $22.

Veteran Firemen and the Old Boys

"There is one feature of the Old Boys' reunion which I am always deeply interested in, and that is the 'Veteran Fireman,' said Secretary McCann of the Old Boys to The Advertiser today. "When the 'Veterans' first took part in the Old Boys' entertainment, our guests were so taken with the idea that they spoke enthusiastically of it when they went back to their American homes, and the movement grew until the 'Veteran Firemen' are now the leading features in all the reunions and home-comings which they hold on the other side.

"There is only one sad feature in connection with it, and that is the numbers are gradually growing less. "We hope to have a meeting next week, when the men who have made London famous in many ways will meet together and prepare to show the world how the fires were put out away back in the fifties, without chemical engines, and when every man hoisted it to the fire and back again, besides helping to draw the engines."

A WATER RESOLUTION
Passed by the Local Real Estate Association

The question of increasing London's water supply was keenly debated at a well-attended meeting of the Real Estate Owners' Association held last night. The following motion passed unanimously:

Resolved, that in view of the fact that the water commission has decided on a plan for increasing the water supply, and a further outlay for fire protection, and the city council will be asked to submit a bylaw to the electorate for a sum approaching $600,000.

That the R. E. O. A. herewith request the city council not to lay any bylaw before the people until the whole matter has first been submitted to the underwriters, and that no system or plan be voted on by the people until it has the approval of the underwriters, and a consequent lowering of the death insurance rating to an extent that will be of much value to the mercantile and manufacturing interests of the city.

DEATH OF MR. CHARLES LANG
Well-Known Young Londoner Passes Away in the West.

Mrs. J. A. Croden, of 233 Central avenue, received a telegram from Winnipeg this morning, announcing the death of her brother, Mr. Charles Lang, formerly of this city.

Mr. Lang was 23 years old, and until about a year ago resided in this city. He was employed for some time in the G. N. W. telegraph office and had a very wide circle of friends, to whom the news of his death will come as a sad shock.

Some weeks ago Mr. Lang, who was in the west for his health, contracted pneumonia, and had been in a very critical condition ever since.

Mr. J. A. Croden left recently to visit him, and will accompany the remains to this city.

Besides his mother, who is at present living in Neepawa, Mr. Lang is survived by two brothers and two sisters: A. W. Lang, of Mexico City; Victor, of Chicago; Mrs. J. A. Croden, of this city; and Miss Violet Lang, of Neepawa.

The funeral will be held in London, but the arrangements have not as yet been completed.

Mr. Roy Gray, son of Mr. James Gray, of 854 Hellmuth avenue, was very successful in the recent examinations at Queen's University, getting the prize for the highest standing in junior Hebrew.

LONDONER A LOSER BY A PRAIRIE FIRE
Mr. U. O'Neill, of This Section, Burned Out at Govan, Sask.

The Govan (Sask.) Prairie News of April 23 says:

A prairie fire swept across the country a little south of town on Saturday. It being so early in the spring, preparation for such an emergency was not as complete as it would otherwise be. Curiously enough, however, the fire did the greatest damage where it was thought the protection was perfect.

U. O'Neill, the former proprietor of O'Neill's livery, feed and sale stables, had just completed a barn and house on his property, about a mile south of town, and was comfortably settled in his new house, when the first fire in this vicinity made its appearance, but as he had taken what was thought to be sufficient care in protecting his property, cause for alarm was at a minimum, so far as he was concerned. The fire-break constituted four or five furrows in two strips from 15 to 20 feet apart, the intervening space being burned off.

Mr. O'Neill intended making a business trip to Strassburg, but when a couple of miles from home the fire was noticed coming up from the southwest, and he turned back, as there was no one home but Mrs. O'Neill and two little children.

After sitting up the situation he quickly started down to dinner, but upon his return to the scene of the fire it was noticed that the wind had become considerably stronger, and almost before the real danger became apparent the flames jumped across the break and enveloped the barn. One team was taken from the burning building, but as these could not be left alone the other team was burned before the neighbors arrived. There was great difficulty in saving the house. Mr. O'Neill's loss is about $1,000. Mrs. O'Neill became quite ill from the nervous strain, but is now progressing favorably.

PRESENTED WITH DIPLOMAS

could they hope to uphold and advance their profession.

Dr. Eccles, dean of the college, in an excellent address, said that to have a university was a credit to any city, and London was known far and wide by reason of the students who every year left the Medical College and its sister institution, the Western University.

Education is the right of every child and is one of the greatest factors in building up a nation.

To the graduates, Dr. Eccles spoke earnestly, advising them to hold their profession in the honor it deserved, and to study diligently and try and keep abreast of the progress that is constantly being made.

None of them, he said, should live so that it could be said he had wasted his life and done no good.

Most men who fall in life do not fall from any lack of ability, but from a lack of earnestness.

The Valedictory.

Dr. Allen Ross read an excellent valedictory address, expressing the satisfaction all the graduates felt at having reached the goal for which they had put in four years of hard work.

This satisfaction, however, he said, was mingled with regret at parting from the faculty, who had always treated them with the utmost kindness and consideration.

To the citizens of London, Dr. Ross, on behalf of the graduates and students, expressed the most hearty thanks for the support always given them in their sports, and for the kindly feelings they have manifested to all students.

Dr. Ross, in concluding recommended the physicians of the city to follow the example of the other citizens and support the students in all their athletic ventures, as such things do much to create warm feelings of friendship among the students, and are a general help to any college.

Dr. Campbell.

Dr. J. B. Campbell, replied to the valedictory, and showed the graduates the importance of not neglecting their studies for a moment now that they were through school. They were really just beginning now.

Of late years medical knowledge was increasing as it never did before, and the closest attention was necessary in order to keep pace with the discoveries that are being made.

Oath Administered.

Dr. Ferguson then called upon the graduates to stand up, and administered to them the oath of Hippocrates.

The graduates ascended the platform in a body, and one by one knelt before Chancellor Moorhouse, who conferred on them the degree of M. D., after which was presented by Dr. Waugh with his diploma.

Each student was the recipient of a handsome bouquet of flowers.

Dean Moorhouse then presented the gold medal to Dr. Fuller Macpherson, and stated that owing to illness Dr. R. W. Worthington, the winner of the silver medal, was unable to be present.

The Graduates.

The graduates then adjourned to a local cafe, where they held a dinner. They are as follows: A. L. Campbell, Belmont; L. E. Downing, Clonaboy; G. H. Parquharson, Whitford, Sask.; J. F. Follinsbee, Strathroy; W. G. Hutchinson, Walsingham Center; W. Harcourt, Arthur; W. R. Kenny, city; J. A. Keillor, Wallace town; F. N. Macpherson, city; A. R. McMillan, Burwell road; F. L. Neely, Dorchester; A. Ross, city; C. W. Sowers, Brucefield; J. L. Stanston, city; J. S. Schram, city; W. J. Taylor, city; Victor Trotter, Tilbury; E. L. Walker, Glenora; R. A. Worthington, Clinton.

STRATHROY SPRING SHOW
Was an Excellent Exhibit of Four Classes—Clydesdales Predominate.

Strathroy, May 2.—The Strathroy spring show was a good one. Four classes of horses were shown. The Hackney class had but one horse on the ground, owned by Wm. Faulds, of Caradoc—a beautiful chestnut, medium size.

In their class, the Percherons, with two Strathroy horses, owned by the Strathroy Stock Improvement Association, and Montague, the property of a few Caradoc's farmers—two fine horses.

The Clydesdale class had about a dozen good horses. Colin McKegan, of Strathroy, put in a fine lot, five in all. W. D. Benstead, of Strathroy, showed one imported by McKegan two years ago, a horse that would be a credit to any country. Douglas Bros. showed a fine horse weighing about 1,900 pounds.

The Roadster class was well represented. Monbars, owned by a syndicate of Strathroy horsemen, Mr. Burke, of Alvington, showed a fine horse, good size, and C. McKegan showed his Oakland Audubon, the little black; a perfect beauty rather small, a fine-gaited horse. Mr. Walker, of Adelaide, showed a colt bred from the famous Monbars.

Both need taking great care of. Beware of eye-strain, either with the naked sight, or through wearing the wrong kind of glasses. Before your eyesight grows dim, let us fit you with correct glasses. Your headaches may be caused by defective vision. If so, don't be afraid to wear glasses. They will furnish immediate relief, and they give one a distinguished appearance.

At the meeting of No. 1 committee yesterday afternoon it was decided to ask for tenders for the purchase of the brick house at the corner of Waterloo street and Ottawa street, formerly owned by Mrs. Stanley.

This house is on the property recently purchased by the committee for a site for the hygienic institute, and will have to be removed.

The first site chosen by the committee was not suitable to the Government, as it was too close to the Nurses' Home. The new site is on the corner of Waterloo street, and work has commenced on the excavation work at the rear end.

Ald. Beattie declared it was necessary to sell the house as soon as possible.
