

POLICEMEN PLEAD NOT GUILTY TO SHOOTING MAN

FOUR CONSTABLES PLEAD NOT GUILTY TO KILLING GOGO

Four Toronto Constables Are Charged With Killing Rum-Runner John Gogo.

DEWART DEFENDS

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, Nov. 21.—William Kerr, William Young Mitchell, George Fraser and James Anthony Rooney, the four policemen charged with killing and slaying John Gogo, on Oct. 6 in a raid on the boat Hattie C., pleaded not guilty before Justice Orde in the assizes today. MacGregor Young, K.C., was crown counsel, and they were defended by H. H. Dewart, K.C., who challenged eleven of the jurors called.

In his opening address to the jury, MacGregor Young commented: "This case holds special importance, as it is a conflict between the rights and duties of our police body, of whom as citizens we are justly proud as the guardians of our right. It is a conflict between them and the rights of the individual."

He quoted to the jury the section of the law on which the case hung, and pointed out that if persons who had committed a criminal offence took flight the police were justified in using "such force as may be necessary, unless such escape can be prevented by near or able means."

Grenfell Predicts Ocean Vessels Will Soon Make Direct Trip To Labrador

pers and hardy men of the woods embody all the splendid traits of British character.

"I believe it is through the Anglo-Saxon race that God will bring peace and happiness to earth. Labrador builds the finest specimens of the Anglo-Saxon race. Not in the stock exchanges or in the motley cauldron of great cities is character made, but in the vast lands like Labrador where men are physically fit and capable in every sense of the word. You either go on, or you go out."

"Labrador is not held in the same respect, perhaps, as it was many years ago. It has lost much of its character because speculators and exploiters have come, pretending to find gold mines or timber areas, and people who do not know the conditions put their money in fake enterprises. Thus a more or less unsavory reputation has been gained, but it surely is not the country's fault."

"When I came there 30 years ago, none of the boys or girls could read or write. One boy at the age of 23 asked me to give him reading lessons in return for 10 hours' work a day. Last year we wanted to put in new power equipment to get electric light, but we hadn't the money to harness the water, and so we asked boys from the big Canadian and American colleges to come down and help us. They came, but not one knew how to build a dam, although they were well versed in trigonometry, physics and such subjects. So the lad who couldn't read or write at 23 was placed over all those college boys. He was the only one who knew practical engineering."

"The young men and women of today may affect a superficial cynicism and a disregard for the big things of life, but I believe that underneath it all you have a fine appreciation of worth-while things. When you hear the challenge you will be unafraid, just as the boys were unafraid nine years ago when they heard the challenge of war."

"It is not for money that we work in Labrador. It is to feel the thrill of doing a great work in an honorable field."

"Labrador, in common with Europe and the remainder of the world, is not as prosperous now as she was. It may not come in my day, but the time is coming when you will be proud of Labrador as Canada's great eastern seaport and a country where every kind of vegetable and flower can be grown. It's future is assured, for Labrador is a challenge to boys and girls like yourselves—a challenge for you to battle on the field of honor and build up a country like those pioneers of old, whose unceasing efforts in the interests of posterity have made our present lives worth while."

Principal A. E. O'Neill of the London East Collegiate, introduced Dr. Grenfell and thanked the eminent missionary for coming to address the students.

Dr. Grenfell arrived from St. Thomas on the L. & P. S. at 11:10. After the collegiate address, he visited Mrs. Becher, St. George street, an old friend. A public reception will be tendered the doctor at St. Andrew's Hall at 3:30 this afternoon, and he will give an illustrated lecture at Wesley Hall this evening at 8 o'clock.

CLAIMS MOTHER WAS INFLUENCED IN WILL

Fanny S. Stinchcombe Contests Document in Supreme Court.

After concluding the case of Carson against the Middlesex Mills, in which the claim of Mr. Carson against the mills was dismissed, Justice Kelly, in the non-jury sessions of the supreme court of Ontario, spent the whole of the morning session in hearing the claims and defence in the case of Fanny S. Stinchcombe against Francis William Clark and Alex. Ferguson. When the court adjourned at 1:15 the case was still in progress.

Mrs. Stinchcombe, who lives in Lakefield, in the County of Peterborough, is claiming an order directing administration of the will of her mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Clark, who died on January 27 of this year in London, on the ground that the will was made while she was being unduly influenced by the defendants, William Clark, a brother of the plaintiff, and Alex. Ferguson, deny undue influence being brought to bear on Mrs. Clark, and ask that the case be dismissed. Evidence was given by several parties as to the conditions maintaining in the home of Mrs. Clark previous to her death.

The case of Edwin Hawken against William Cox was postponed to the sittings of the court in Woodstock. Edwin Hawken, a London broker, claims from Mr. Cox the sum of $1,005 as expenses and in return for services rendered when he spent several weeks in Toronto on the defendant's business. Mr. Cox, a timber dealer in Port Arthur, denies liability, or that the plaintiff was in his employ while in Toronto.

ONE KILLED AS OFFICERS ATTACK LIQUOR CARAVAN

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 21.—One man, believed to be named Sterling, was killed, others were reported wounded, and four automobiles loaded with liquor were captured at Condon's ferry on the Columbia River yesterday when county and federal officers opened fire on a party of several automobiles. Others of the supposed liquor runners escaped in the remaining three cars.

EXPECT BIG ORDER FOR ALBERTA COAL FIRST OF YEAR

Local Dealers Declare All Consumers Well Satisfied With Product.

SITUATION GOOD

More than 100 carloads of Alberta coal, which arrived in the city during the past month, sold readily within a few hours after the cars were unloaded into local yards.

The demand, in fact, surpassed all expectations, local dealers claim. Each customer, too, is reported to be perfectly satisfied with the western fuel and it is expected that thousands of tons will be ordered again after the first of January.

Although Sir Henry Thornton announced that a temporary reduced freight rate would be allowed for a month or so, local dealers received all consignments at $7 to $9 a ton cost for transportation. This, of course, is substantially lower than the rate which existed in the summer, but it is still $2 to $3 higher than consumers are generally willing to pay.

Representatives of the Wm. Buchanan Coal Company declared they received 59 carloads, every pound of which was sold as fast as it arrived. They anticipate that by the first of the new year a permanent rate of about $6 will be fixed. This will mean that the retail price will be from $11 to $13.

"Alberta fuel has been exceptionally satisfactory," a member of the Buchanan Company said. "Not a single complaint has been recorded. The prevailing price, while the coal lasted, was $15 a ton. When the western grain crop has been shipped, which will be by the first of the new year, dealers will doubtless order more Alberta coal. The main thing is for Ontario to register a demand sufficient to warrant the lowering of freight rates."

He added that small quantities of the fuel cost $9 a ton to ship, but consignments in 12 to 24 carload lots were reduced to $7. Ultimately it is expected this rate will be further reduced to $5 or $6.

The fuel situation in London is satisfactory in every respect. J. D. Hunt, of the Hunt Coal Company, said. Demand is not as brisk as anticipated, and there is positively no possibility of a shortage. Provided citizens can pay $18 a ton for American anthracite they can get all they desire. Coke is bringing $15 a ton.

LONDON NIMRODS HUNT IN NORTHERN WOODS

Dick set sail for his favorite "runway" one morning, stating he was going to be gone all day. He fell asleep on the job and instead of making his way back to camp when the shadows began to deepen, started off in the other direction. Finally the gang in camp heard three shots fired 10 seconds apart, the signal that someone was lost. They replied with one single shot and as the darkness deepened found Dick close to the runway waiting for the help he knew would arrive.

"Dode" Roe of Bayville was the hero of the trip. He was the hunter who shot the big black bear who had his den not more than half a mile from camp. "Dode" hiked off with his dogs a few days after arrival and returned with the information he had shot a bear and would the others kindly rouse themselves to help him bring the animal in. Mr. Roe was accommodated and sure enough there was the big fellow blocking the entrance to his home. It seems that the dogs would not leave Mr. Roe and he kept whimpering close to his heels, and on investigating the area Roe saw Mr. Bruin ambling in his direction with blood in his eye. A shot from Roe changed Mr. Bear's mind.

and he beat a hasty retreat for home, but before arriving received another shot. He died just as he made his haven of rest. It took five men to drag him from the cave, and bear meat was on the menu that night. The skin was purchased by Mr. Holmes of London.

George Sampson announced one morning he was tired of shooting deer and had decided to go after partridge. George started away with a liberal supply of buckshot and soon met up with a ferocious buck which he finally bagged. The same day he saw two beautiful fawns and watched them play pussy-in-the-corner with his dogs. The watcher let them play so long that the foursome had got out of his sight and he missed getting a shot at them.

Mr. Sampson vouches for the story that he saw a big buck crashing through the woods with a dog just two jumps ahead and another "purp" just two behind, and he can't be changed from it, even by the owner of the animal alleged to have been leading the buck.

"Big Bill" thought his troubles were all over when camp was finally broken, but the worst was yet to come. A "pointer" had been filled with baggage until it was almost awash, and Bill was delegated as oarsman. William just got nicely started when his added weight was a bit too much for the boat, which began to sink. A heroic rescue stunt a la the movies was pulled off and Bill was soon high though not dry on the banks of Round Lake.

FREE IN DISORDERLY CASE AND FACES THEFT

Donnelly-Carr Duet Will Appear Again—Mrs. Carr Is Dismissed.

John Carr, Henry Donnelly and a boon companion were all fined $10 and costs for acting in a disorderly manner at Carr's home, 93 Barker street, at 2 o'clock Monday morning, when they appeared in court today. Mrs. Carr was allowed to go without paying a fine.

Donnelly and Carr, however, are a long way from being out of the police court woods, in fact, they are in deeper than ever, as Donnelly is now facing a charge of theft and Carr of receiving stolen goods.

According to the police articles were found in the Carr house Monday which corresponded to those left at a door down the street by a driver for Smallman & Ingram's, and which were never received by the party ordering them. Carr, police state, admitted the things were brought to his house by Donnelly. This case will be heard tomorrow.

In connection with the disorderly charge, Sergeant Middaugh said there was much loud talking and swearing in the house when he and Constable McCrae arrived.

"Mr. Carr came to the door," stated the sergeant and said, "I didn't steal that duck, it belonged to a neighbor."

Constable McCrae told of a bottle being in the house, stating he smelled the bottle and the liquor was all gone.

OPINES OUTDOOR EXERCISE MAKING CO-ED FEET LARGER

Associated Press Despatch. Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 21.—The feet of the modern college girl are steadily increasing in size, according to Miss Lydia Clark, head of the women's department of physical education at Ohio State University.

Miss Clark claims that modern clothes and the great interest shown by the modern co-ed in outdoor activity are causes for the increase in size.
