of More Account Than Faith, Character Than Creed. At the unitarian church yesterday norning Rev. Hilary Bygrave preached

Men have commonly endeavored to serve he Almighty in ways and by means most easy and agreeable to themselves. With the masses religion has always been confounded with public worship, with certain bservances or beliefs. To a large extent Wm. Donohue, a young man, was sent to the central prison Saturday for one year for highway robbery by the police magistrate.

Mr. Blight of this city is described by a favoral time of the heart, much less an actual practice of the services and qualities which tice of those virtues and qualities which can alone make a human being truly good, Men have still the impression that salvation is a gift instead of a growth. They do not yet understand that they must grow towards the heavens into heavenly states and conditions of heart and mind, and not look for the heavens to come down within reach of their hands, or expect their states and conditions to descend upon them in some mysterious way. The day is fast oming we hope when religion will stand for practical goodness, creed or no creed; when a man who believes not as we believe, who be-lieves not at all, but whose life is yet sweet and sound shall be honored by us as a brother and fellow member of the kingdom of God.

The watchword of the religion of the future will be not "blessed are they who believe," but "blessed are they who do His commandments." To be christian is not to be lives in Christian is not to be lieve in Christ as the phrase is, but to be-lieve in his methods and practice his prin-The following names appeared on the hotel registers Saturday night: At the Rossin, "F. Character is more than church or Sabbath, better than bible or prayer. It is good and sufficient of itself. Add to it all the creeds and theologies in the world, and it will be nowise bettered. Take from it all that has been named belief or faith, and it will not be diminished in power, nor will it lose an atom of its in power, nor will it lose an atom of its worth. It gives courage in danger, fortitude in suffering, patience to meet the trials of life, consolations in seasons of grief and calmness in the hour of death. It needs no other support, save the sense of its own inherent and eternal worth. It stands in fear of no hell and dreads the loss of no heaven, we know it carries somewhat of heaven with it wherever it goes. It is both a present and future salva-tion. The man who is right for time is right for eternity; but the now-time is part and parcel of all the time that is to be. Ou Saturday night at the National club a dinner was tendered to one of the best known members of the celebrated Ochtwan sporting club, who is shortly to make a our of Europe under advice of his physician. The dinner was given by the Duke of Limburger (cheese), and the guests, besides the members of the club, few in num ber—in fact the only one considered worthy to sit at an Ochtwan feast was their esteemed friend Mr. W. C. Cldkay, who for three and a half years has coached them in the art of deer stalking. The chair was occupied by the duke, supported on his right by the guest of the evening, Mr. Nettie Falstaff. The vice-chair was filled by the warden, and around the festive board were noticed the beaming faces of the band of mighty hunters. The toast of our departing guest was proposed in elo-quent terms by the grey-haired veteran. Mr. Rip Van Sanderson, who referred to the sad occasion which had brought the club together so early in the season, peroration of Mr. Van Sanderson's speech brought tears to the eyes of his hearers, Mr. Bille Taileur delivered an impromptu speech from the Royal readers, after which the guest was presented with an illumin-ated address by Dr. Jas. Crutch.

Dr. M. A GARRISON COMMON TRAGEDY. What a Mail Reporter Uncarthed on this Famous Battle Field.

There is a reporter on the Mail who is said to have an ingenious faculty of cap turing west end romances, tragedies, and like happenings. He struck one on the arrison common yesterday afternoon that made himself and Policeman Gouldingvery "tired." While walking across the common the Mail man was horrified—horrified is good—to observe a large crimson spot on the snow, a man's necktie and a letter being the snow, a man's necktie and a letter being near by. Leading from the crimson spot towards the lake shore were blood-stained tracks. "By the bricks of Pulptower," exclaimed the crafty scribe, "here is a bloody mystery sure enough." He straightway started off and secured the services of Policeman Goulding, and a diligent search began. The letter and necktie were carefully examined, and a series of telephone messages were sent whistling from one police station to the other. The bloody tracks were traced to the ice opposite the common. Here the the ice opposite the common. Here the scent was lost for an hour or so, but nothing scent was lost for an hour or so, but nothing daunted the search was diligently kept up. Then the proverb which says something about "if at first you don't succeed try try again" was repeated over by the reporter to the policeman, and their reward came. Sure enough, there right in front of them was the battered remains of a poor little poodle dog held fast in the ley grip of old Lake Ontario, while scattered all round were the brains of his murdered poodleship. The necktie, it is thought, had no connection with the dog's death, while the letter was addressed to a young lady in a city convent, and which evidently had been dropped by its owner. About four hours were spent in this little matter, and there is said to be a mad reporter around the Mail office, while it is certain

Similar meetings were held in other places on the line of the road yesterday, the result of which will be made known in a few days, and if the other points are as unanimous in favor of holding out as Toronto there will undoubtedly be a strike along the whole line from Point Edward to Portland.

New Court House and City Buildings. TO THE EDITOR: Sir-Permit me to suggest the following site, the block bounded by York, Adelaide, Simcoe and Richmond streets. It is in the heart of the city, near Osgoode hall, also the union station, and notels. It will not destroy the front of a principal street. The land no doubt can principal street. The land no doubt can be purchased reasonably, taking it as it now stands. I think it is worth the notice of the members of the city council. Where can you find a more expensive site than the one named by Alderman Turner opposite St. James cathedral. As to that site being adjacent to the centre of the street railway system, it is not any more so than the one I have named above.

If you want to see the new style in spring mantles go to Farley's.

THE LORD'S ARMY.

There is another sect broken off from the salvationists, and they call themselve "The Lord's Army." They have barracks on Alice street and in Yorkville, and they held various services at both places yester day. The Alice street contingent, led by Capt. Ned, paraded in St. Lawrence market at noon yesterday. The men wore uniforms and spiked helmets and the women carried tambourines. Although the streets were ankle deep with mud and slush both men and women marched gaily along to the music of a number of drums and triangles. They paraded to the Alice street hall, where they began a spirited late in the night. The leading spirits were Captain Ned, Captain Nixon (female), Lieutenant Carpener and Emma Barker, a little girl of ten years, a regular little Talmage, in petticoats. A reporter had a talk with Captain Ned a very ignorant and enthusiastic person who could give no good reason why they had left the salvationists neither could he define the difference between them and the Lord's army. The hall was full of people who took but a slight interest in the proceedings. Half-a dozen self-possessed young women made speeches of greater or less length in which they told how good they were since they attack on the devil which they kept up till they told how good they were since they had been converted. To night a farewell meeting will be held in honor of Captain Nixon and Emma Barker who leave shortly to attack the devil in his Meaford home
