

Editorial and General Intelligence Departments contain, as usual, notes and news concerning the work in all parts of the world.

The Noble Army of Martyrs and Roll of Protestant Missionary Martyrs from A.D. 1661 to 1889. By James Croil, Montreal. Philadelphia: Presbyterian Board of Publication. This is a compendium of biography of a certain kind, and is apparently most carefully and laboriously put together. The names of all those Protestants within the designated period who have laid down their lives for the cause of Christ are given, together with some little account of the life, work, and death of each. It is a somewhat melancholy tale, but should prove a useful contribution to the subject of martyrology.

The Expositor. London: Hodder & Stoughton, 27 Paternoster Row. Among the many useful articles in the October number of this magazine may be mentioned, as of particularly practical value for busy men, the article by Rev. James Stalker, B.D. (so well known as the author of "Imago Christi"), on a century of German theology. The discussion of the Septuagint meaning of the word translated "proselete" is scholarly and minutely complete. The other articles are well up to the high standard of The Expositor.

The Religious Review of Reviews. London, 34 Victoria Street, Westminster, S.W. This is, indeed, the "busy churchman's magazine." Its readers are kept abreast with the times on all the questions which are to the front in the Church of England. The articles on "The Art of Reading," by Canon Fleming (No. xvi. in the October number), are of great value, and should be widely known in this country.

The Leisure Hour, Sunday at Home, Boys' Own Paper, Girls' Own Paper, etc., publications of the Religious Tract Repository, are always bright and interesting. An astonishing amount of general information, a good deal of it not found elsewhere, is contained in the Leisure Hour, particularly. Of the Boys' Own Paper we need only say that every boy that is a boy knows it well, and watches most eagerly for it from week to week.

The Clergyman's Magazine. London: Hodder & Stoughton, 27 Paternoster Row. This magazine is most useful for clergymen. The sermon notes are usually suggestive, and the series of missionary sermons, of which number two appears in the October number, is valuable. The other articles and homilies are varied and carefully done.

The Review of Reviews. New York, 13 Astor Place. $2.50 a year. This number is as cosmopolitan and brimful of news and current thought as is usual with the numbers of this excellent busy man's magazine.

The Epiphany Appeal and Children's Lenten Letter were read, amended, and accepted.

The following was directed to be sent as a letter to the clergy with the Epiphany Appeal:

DEAR BRETHREN,—As bishops of the Church in this ecclesiastical province, we charge you to read to all the congregations under your care the accompanying appeal in aid of foreign missions prepared and adopted by the Board of Management of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society. We have to ask the clergy in our several dioceses to bear in mind that no discretion is left to them as to whether they may withhold this appeal. The appeal is addressed to the members of all our congregations by the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society, and the bishop of each diocese enjoins it upon all his clergy to convey it on the Sunday appointed to their respective congregations.

It was resolved:

That the Board of Management of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society appreciate and reciprocate the greetings of the Woman's Auxiliary in its Provincial Board now assembled; that they desire to avail themselves of the request of the Provincial Board for suggestions to submit for careful consideration by the Woman's Auxiliary in all its branches the practical question as to the effect upon the Church's mission funds and operations of the very general appropriation to particular objects by the Woman's Auxiliary of the funds collected by them instead of permitting the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society, which as before them full and definite information as to the whole field and all its claims, to apply and appropriate the Church's mission funds.
