REVIEWS OF USEFUL LEAFLETS.

Hearers and Doers.—This is a very touching account of a meeting held on a stormy evening, and some of its results. The programme was laid aside, and the pastor's wife read the first chapter of James. One of those present, to whom had been given a "blessed baby," which proved to be only a loan, braved unkind remarks, and in a year had earned a noble thank-offering for the loan. At the meeting, when the offerings were presented, in her mite-box was a cheque for five hundred dollars—"to carry the story of our Father's love to hearts that know only the love of a dear by by;" and another box containing a slip of paper with the words, "Here Lord I give myself away, 'tis all that I can do," and with it the appointment of the owner to India. A leaflet which cannot be read without tearful reconsecration.

Preparation for the Master's Work.—A very timely and important leaflet, and one which cannot be read without producing a thrill of feelings of varied character, regret for past indifference, mingled with a consciousness of being verily guilty, and a determination to do so much better in the future. If the suggestions made are followed out, and
