

MILL.

DIFFERENT GRINDINGS.

Against a stone you strike your toe ;
 You feel it sore, it makes a clatter ;
 But what you feel is all you know
     Of toe, or stone, or mind, or matter.
 Mill or Hume, of mind or matter
     Wouldn't leave a rag or tatter.
     What although
     We feel the blow ?
 That doesn't prove there's stone or toe.

Had I skill like Stuart Mill,
     His own position I cou'd shatter
 The weight of Mill, I'd reckon nil,
     If Mill had neither mind nor matter.
     So Mill when minus mind and matter,
     Though he make a kind of clatter,
         Must himself,
         Just mount the shelf
 And there he laid as he lays matter.

Stuart Mill, Oh ! don't you see
 All this vain philosophy
     Is as empty as the wind ?
 Stop, then stop, this idle clatter !
 What is mind it does not matter ;
 What is matter, never mind.

CHRISTMAS RHYME.

CHRISTMAS joys are here again,
 And the students all are jolly ;
 'Tis the time to shout and sing,
 And make your presents to "Dolly,"

Students' voices ringing,
 Merry corrois singing ;
 Christmas time is here again,
 'Tis the happiest time of the year.

Cho.—Merry, merry Christmas time !
 Ring the bells in tuneful rhyme,
 Let them loudly, sweetly chime !
 Merry, merry Christmas time,
 'Tis the happiest time, the happiest time,
 The happiest time of the year !
