

THE INNER EAST GATE OF PEKING.

Peking has a double wall each of which has sixteen gates surmounted by towers. The space between the walls, several acres in extent, is supposed to be kept free for public purposes, but a few small shops have found foothold within it.