

quarter of the year ending June 30, 1864 the number of deaths was 116,899, that number was less by 28,131 (or near 24 per cent) than the deaths in the first three months of the same year.

So also would it be in Montreal, where the cold is far more severe than in England, and where in consequence the wear and tear upon the system, or consumption of vital force, is far greater during the winter months, than it is during the corresponding season of the year in the more temperate climate of the British Isles—were it not for the interference of a disturbing cause, and that cause it is not difficult to determine. In one word it is filth, and the poisonous exhalations continually arising from putrescent animal and vegetable matter: exhalations which are momentarily checked by the severe frosts of our Canadian winter, only to burst forth with redoubled vigor, and tenfold energy of stench, as the sun once more passes to our side of the Equator.

We should think of these things, and should take some steps to obviate the inevitable consequences that would ensue from the unspeakably beastly condition of our city, should God in His inscrutable decrees be pleased to visit us with an epidemic. Figures are before us, and figures do not lie. If in an ordinary season our mortality is at the rate of six per cent per annum during the summer months, what would it not rise to, should cholera or some other pestilence such as yellow fever, declare itself amongst us—with our fetid open cesspools, our holes of green stagnant water, our filthy crowded undrained yards, from which, day and night, a stench goes up, crying as it were to heaven for vengeance.

And the cry it may be said is heard and answered. Answered in the form of hundreds of corpses weekly, of thousands of corpses annually, carried off untimely to the grave. Answered by the tears and the scarce suppressed sobs of bereaved mothers, and childless fathers whose little ones have been stricken down by stench produced, and filth generated diseases; answered by the lamentations of the mourners who go about the streets, in such crowds and in such incessant streams, that a stranger might almost be tempted to ask if the people of Montreal had any other occupation than that of attending funerals?

And why should it be so? There is nothing in our climate or in the necessary physical condition of our population to explain this incredible mortality. Whence is it—why, it may be asked, that in this new country where we are told that labor is well remunerated, and that the pressure upon the means of subsistence is not to be compared to that of England—the mortality of its chief city should be near three times as great as that of any city in the United Kingdom? that our ordinary summer rate of mortality should be greater than the mortality of the most unhealthy English towns, during the most deadly pestilence of this century? And most horrid of all, why is it that this rate of mortality should go on ever increasing? Here again are facts.

In 1848, the year of the great Famine Fever, the worst recorded pestilence during the present generation in England occurred in Warrington, and there the mortality rose to 5 per cent! In Montreal during the cholera of 1854 the mortality rose to 6.2 per cent! and most hideous of all, in 1864 without any cholera or epidemic at all the average mortality is again at the rate of 6 per cent!!!

INSTALLATION OF THE ARCHBISHOP OF NEW YORK.—His Grace the Right Reverend Dr. McCloskey, Archbishop of New York, was solemnly installed in the Cathedral on Sunday, the 21st of last month. His Lordship the Bishop of Buffalo was celebrant of the High Mass, and the several Prelates of the Ecclesiastical Province of New York were in attendance. The ceremonies were most imposing and well conducted.

OBITUARY.

We have to chronicle the death of another valuable citizen and good Christian, John Lonergan, Esq., who departed this life on Monday, 29th ult., at Ste. Therese de Blainville.

The deceased was born fifty-seven years ago in the County of Tipperary, Ireland; and in 1824 he arrived in this country, where by his industry and intelligence he amassed a considerable property. As a Christian, his life was an example to his neighbors, he having for many years been a regular weekly communicant. As a citizen, he was a valuable member of society, and his services were well appreciated by those who had the happiness of knowing him, and by whom he was elected to many posts of local importance, in which were well manifested the salient points of his character—firmness, energy, and an integrity of purpose which could not be shaken. As he lived so he died, in peace with his neighbors and with his God, from Whom we trust in all Christian confidence that he has received the reward promised to the faithful servant on earth.—R.L.P.

COUNTY OF JACQUES CARTIER.—Mr. Gaucher was elected for this County, vacant by a place conferred on a late member, by acclamation.

The Ladies of the St. Patrick's Congregation, and the Ladies of the Irish Congregations generally, are respectfully informed that the Bazaar in aid of the St. Patrick's Orphan Asylum, and for the purpose of clothing poor children attending school, will be held this year at the usual time. They are also reminded that the collectors usually open their lists about the beginning of the present month, [September] and are requested to set about the good work without further notice. It is hoped that the public will receive them with their usual courtesy and generosity, and thus render their labour less painful, and place the Orphans beyond the danger of suffering for want of food or clothing during the approaching long inclement winter. The time and place of opening the Bazaar will be made known in the course of a few days.—Com.

THE INDIGENOUS TEA OF CANADA.—An Eastern Townships contemporary, the Defricher, says that much attention has been given throughout different parts of the country this season to the culture of an indigenous shrub, closely resembling in its appearance and properties the India Tea Plant, and known in Lower Canada under the name of Le The Canadien. Its leaves, when properly prepared, form an excellent substitute for the genuine tea—in fact, it is said the beverages formed from the two can hardly be distinguished one from the other. In many parts of the country, adds the Defricher, the leaves were gathered in the month of July, and the experiments made with them were of the most satisfactory nature. With a little experience in the manner of preparing the leaf for use, particularly in the drying, we have no doubt that an article will be produced little inferior to the best imported tea. The same journal says that many persons have already been mystified on the subject, being the belief, when partaking of the beverage prepared from the leaves of this indigenous plant, that they were all the time drinking tea imported direct from the land of the "celestials."

DEATH OF A PRIEST.—The Courrier du Canada announces the death of the Rev. J. P. Lefrançois, at the age of 73 years and three months. He was a native of the Parish of Chateau-Richer, and was ordained priest in 1817. He was two years Director in the College of St. Hyacinthe, and was afterwards transferred successively to the missions of Bonaventure and St. Clair, Cay St. Saute and St. Henri, where he was stricken down with the malady which finally caused his death. He retired from the ministry in 1859.

DESERTERS.—The desertion mania seems to prevail again in this garrison to a considerable extent. Since the arrival of the Rifle Brigade in this city, the corps has experienced a loss of no less than nine by desertion, and the Royal Artillery has been decimated proportionately. To the credit of our city there is reason to suppose that outside influence has had little to do with most of these desertions. The soldiers have generally gone off unaided, on several occasions, confiscating small boats to facilitate their escape. The enticing business is pretty thoroughly "played" in Kingston and the first overtures of the kind are quite certain to bring the culprit into durance, as the daily court records lately attest. Two gunners of the Artillery made off last night, one of them having been degraded a few days since for fighting, and the other became discontented for some other reason. There is not the least probability that any civilian was knowing to or aided in their desertion.—Kingston American, 19th.

ENLISTING.—A French Canadian named Joseph Beaudry was brought up before the Police Court at Ottawa, on Friday last, charged with inducing parties to go to Ogdensburgh for the purpose of enlisting in the Federal army. After investigation, the recruiting officer was sent to quod to await his trial at the next Assizes. This is only one of the many attempts that have been made in this vicinity, in too many instances successfully, to entrap the unsuspecting.

Several sharpers are attempting to dispose of depreciated cents of the new coinage for Canadian currency. Look out for them.

We understand that a deputation of five officers has gone to Quebec to enforce in the proper quarter the need of some change in the late militia general order, which is very unpopular amongst the Volunteer Force of Montreal.

On Monday a boy, or child rather, aged only seven years, was picked up in a seemingly lifeless state on St. Catherine street, near Dominique, and thence carried to the English Hospital. It was there seen that the boy was dead drunk, and the means usually taken in such cases towards older offenders were applied.—He was brought to his senses, and then stated that he had stolen five cents and bought whiskey with it. We should like to know who sold him the whiskey which, in his case, had nearly proved as fatal as if he had bought poison, so called.—Transcript.

We hazarded the statement yesterday, that as far as we could glean from the interchange of sentiment of the St. John's festival, the public opinion of New Brunswick was far from matured upon the subject of a political union with Canada and the other provinces. This fact has been more clearly brought out by the intelligent and able correspondent of the Leader writing from the spot, after his experiences at St. Johns also at Fredericton, the capital of the Province. He states broadly, as the result of his observation, that however favourable such men as Mr. Tilly, and a few others of his class, who look far into the future and discern a great destiny for British North America, may be to the project of an immediate political alliance, yet that is not the general public sentiment. In corroboration of this opinion he gives the substance of a conversation held at dinner with gentlemen who sat beside him, to the effect that the people of New Brunswick did not want a political union with Canada or Nova Scotia; that in such a union Upper Canada would take the first place, Lower Canada the second, and New Brunswick and Nova Scotia would be nowhere; that it was desirable their commercial relations should be drawn closer, and above all, that the inter-colonial Railway, between Quebec and Halifax, should be built which most long preceded any serious consideration of the question of a Federal Union. One of the editors of the St. John's press put the question of a Federal Union. One of the editors of the St. John's press put the question still more forcibly: If such a proposition as that of joining a political union with Canada or Nova Scotia were made in Parliament, it would be hooted down! If this be a fair representation of the public sentiment of the marine Provinces, it is clear that the Federal Union of the Colonies is not at present practicable, and must be a thing of the future, if ever carried out.—London Free Press.

A man named Whiteside, from New York, was last night arrested at Bonaventure Station, for enticing soldiers to desert, through the good management of Sergeant Mahaffey, of the 30th. He had furnished the soldiers with civilians' clothes in which to get away from town. He was found armed with a revolver and made an attempt to use it.—Montreal Gazette, 27th ult.

POLICE COURT.—A man named Richard Whiteside who stated himself to be a druggist from New York, was charged with enticing soldiers to desert. It appears that on the 25th, sergt. Beasley of the 30th Regiment, being aware that 5 men of the regiment were being tampered with reported the fact to the Sergeant Major, Sergeants McHaffey and Beasley, were then dispatched to the Bonaventure Depot but did not succeed in their object. The prisoner afterwards sent a letter to a soldier named Conlon, requesting he would meet him at the fountain in the Haymarket square. Two men named Lawton and Roach, accordingly met the prisoner, and Sergeant McHaffey was put on his track and kept him in sight all day. On Friday evening at ten minutes past 8 o'clock, Sergeant Mahaffey attended at the Bonaventure Depot, and about 8.30 saw prisoner with two soldiers, Loughlin and Roach, the latter in plain clothes, coming along the platform at the Station.—Whiteside went into a first class carriage with the two men and left them there, then went into the ticket office, and came out again, when the game seeming to have been allowed to be played out sufficiently, he was arrested by those who had so long and so closely watched his proceedings. On being charged in Court with the offence this morning, he stated that he should employ counsel, and give bail. His Honor said that the prisoner should give bail, himself in $4,000, and two sureties in $2,000 each. He was committed.

THE QUEBEC MILITIA.—The Journal de Quebec gives statistics of the city militia, based upon a statement furnished by the civic authorities from which it appears that the total number of men in the City of Quebec, between the ages of 19 and 60, liable for duty in the service militia is 8,105. Of first class service men, unmarried between the ages of 18 and 45, there are 1814; of widowers, between the ages of 18 and 45, without children, there are but 31. Of the second-class service men, between the ages of 18 and 45, married, there are 4665, and 69 widowers with children, while of reserve men, between 45 and 60, there are 1538. The landwehr is, we believe, not included in this enumeration.

SOMETHING NEW.—The Ottawa river, opposite the city, has been crossed by pedestrians, dry-shod, within a week past. The river there measures upwards of 1,400 yards, and such was the quantity of square timber moored at that place, preparing for removal to market, that a complete bridge enabled this feat to be performed. We are not aware that any such feat of timber has ever before been seen in this region.

Died,

In this city, on the 27th ult., Mary McQuillan, wife of Mr. John Breen.
