NEGRO SONGS

The only negro songs that will ever find a place in the history of music were composed by the slaves of the South before the great war between the states. All folk songs originate among a peasantry. And the only peasantry that ever existed in the United States or Canada were the negro slaves.

There have been no negro melodies composed by that race since 1860. And as the conditions that then existed have vanished, never to appear again, it is safe to say that the original slave music is the last of its kind.

The origin of the old negro tune is held by some to be African. Since the negroes could not read, their songs were purely traditional. And their scale of music is the scale still used in Nubia, Abyssinia, and other African countries.

For this reason, as time goes on, their songs will be more difficult to obtain, and the song collections with their peculiar music will increase in value.

Heart Songs contains the completest symposium of old negro melodies of any general song book in the world—and this feature alone would make the ownership of it extremely desirable. But these melodies comprise only one of ten classes in the volume. This unrivalled song book is needed in every home. Whatever there is, a piano or an organ, "Heart Songs" is absolutely a necessity. But its handsome binding, and art gallery of famous singers, make it luxurious as well.

RESCUED FROM DROWNING. Welland Man in Crossing River Breaks Thru Thin Ice. WELLAND, Jan. 15.—(Special).—A spot of thin ice, snow covered, nearly cost Charles Mack, Dennistown street, which, being brittle, continually broke away. His cries reached the ears of Ernest O'Glasby, who was skating nearby. He hurried to the rescue, and with the aid of a broom and at the risk of his own life, assisted the exhausted man to safety. World editorials are convincing and to the point. By Ed. Mack
