Canadians Miss the Milk in Their Tea — Very Little

the true feeling of the people was given expression when some of the famous words of the great admiral were quoted. When the orchestral were quoted. When the orchestral played the anthems of the allies cheering and singing broke out, especially for the French and Belgian. The King of Belgium is apparently an idol of the English woman, and his wounded subjects in London are to be seen in the wealthy man's car enjoying a spin in the parks. I attended an organ recital given by Sir Frederick Bridge in Westminster Abbey to a party of Belgian officers. They received much attention from their host. The Belgian is the most popular soldier in England today, and the memory of that wonderful defence will ever live in the annals of great battles.

in the annals of great battles.

An Episode at Sea.

While traveling to Scotland I was in conversation with many who had been on the firing line and at the seat of on the firing line and at the seat of war. One, a naval officer, had the day before heen on board his ship, (I cannot mention the name) when the wireless operator intercepted a message from a British gunboat saying that they had been fired upon by a German submarine. Without waiting for orders from the admiral the O. C. immediately left for the latitude and longitude mentioned in the despatch, plowing along at 20 knots. As they came near the location they caught sight of the German submiarine running shallow and apparently not noticing the Britishers approach. The destroyer was creeping up on the submarine, when like a streak of lightning came a Holland merchantman thru the dense fog. She struck the destroyer dense fog. She struck the destroyer amidship and destroyed her boiler. However, no lives were lost, and the Holland merchantman with 15,000 tons of sugar was taken over by the British to prove her port and identity.

Another story that interested me was told by a young chap, a Scotch lad of about 21 or 22, who is a signal-er with the Cameronians or Scottish Riftes as they are called. It was in the battle of the Atsno when, after they had been in the trenches eleven days without even having their clothes the battle of the Aisno when, after they had been in the trenches eleven days without even having their clothes off, he was ordered to signal for reenforcements, and when he climbed to a spit apparently safe, two bullets from a shrapnel caught him in the leg. I visited the hospital in Towburg and heard many stories that would make one's blood thrill with fear. The treachery and cunning of our enemy is inconceivable. For instance, a member of the London Scottish, who was in the great charge of tish, who was in the great charge of two weeks ago, told me that when war. they were in the trenches from the Children 15 cents, enemy's lines came a voice asking for as you can spare. them not to shoot. In pure English someone called: "Don't shoot, London Scottish, don't shoot." Is Lieut. Galbraith there? Yes. Send him here. When the lieutenant came he was shot dead. Our blood was up. We Canadians hate these Germans and caly await the hour.

Tea Lacks Milk. We are quite happy in camp, and despite the mud and rain we manage to get many good hours in drilling, etc. Our bayonets have all been sharpened to a razor-like edge and everything is ready for the word. Very little sickready for the word. Very little sickness has been experienced in camp as yet, and it is with pleasure we hear that we are to move into huts being erected about nine miles from here. Much discomfort will be overcome during the raw weather of December. Nearly three months has elapsed since the first Canadian contingent went into camp, and now within 100 miles from the firing line we are training ourselves to discipline, that we hope will serve us well before long. We are anxious to go, but I think I expires the sentiment of all when I say that we will be glad to be back home can'n where rain doesn't come in between the tent flaps and the tea isn't within the sentiment. Another—costing thousands of dollars yearly—removes the major cause of blowouts by preventing wrinkled fabric. This is our exclusive "On-Air" cure.

Another—used by us alone—reduces by 60 per cent. the danger of loose treads.

Another-our "All-Weather" Tread-combats puncture and skidding in a masterly way. It is tough and double thick. It is flat and smooth running. It is deep, sharp, resistless and enduring.

No other maker attacks these tire troubles in ways so effective as Goodyear. Yet many a tire costs the motorist more.
