Moral Reformers Will Ask Government to Root Out Prevailing Vice. A lengthy debate marked last night's session of the Moral and Social Reforms Council, Bishop-elect Farthing presiding. solutions favoring church and labor conferences, greater protection of women employes and for the abolition of child labor and against the opium traffic were readily adopted.

A prolonged discussion on the policy to be adopted to stam pout immorality in the Yukon resulted in the adoption of a resolution by Canon Weich, seconded by presolution by Canon Welch, seconded by Dr. Grant, deploring that the business of prostitution was openly carried on in the Yukon in defiance of Canadian law and calling on the Dominion Government to take all the action necessary even to the deportation of the people concerned of both sexes.

The executive of the council was also open for a thoro and uniform enforcement of the law against rostitution in British Columbia, New Ontario, Nova Scotia and in other provinces.

The council will meet again this morn-

It was decided to invite Gov. Hughes of New York to address a meeting.

ABSENCE OF SNOW

COBALT, Dec. f .- (From the Man on the Spot.) Only one week ago the residents in and around Cobalt were enjoying pleasant autumn weather. This morning the thermometer registered 20 below zero, and there is first-class sleighing all over the country.

Magazine for 1909

The Christmas number of Harper's Magazine, with its wealth of lustrations in color, its many and unequalled short stories, its rich varietys of articles in all fields of interest, is an admirable example of what this

"The influence which the Harper periodicals have exercised in every channel of improving thought and chievement can scarcely be measured; it has flowed continuously on, over vast areas, among millions of people, learned and unlearned, upon all of whom it has acted as an elevating, refining force."

The Philadelphia Ledger.

foretaste of what is to come during the new year. The keynote of Harper's Magazine is interestingness. It is this quality that characterizes every contribution in every number. It is this quality that has made it to-day the one great illustrated magnature of the world. Nowhere is so much of the best work of the great writers to be found, and nowhere are so many new writers introduced.

great magazine is doing for its readers to-day. And yet it is merely

Short Stories

That Harper's is enabled to publish the best short stories in the world is perhaps as much a matter of good fortune as of wise planning. It is the magazine most widely known wherever our English tongue is spoken, and it is the magazine to which the writers of all the world come first with their best work. A few of the famous writers who will be represented are: Mark Twain, W. D. Howells, Mary E. Wilkins, Alice Brown, Josephine Daskam, Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Thomas A. Janvier May Sinclair, E. S. Martin, Mary R. S. Andrews, Margaret Cameron, Amelie Rives, Percival Gibbon, etc., etc., etc.

The Spy in War

But the stories which promise most for the coming year are stories of fact, not fiction-true stories of the unwritten history of the spies in our civil war. These tell of devoted men who, without hope of winning rank or glory, without the inspiring touch of an army of comrades behind them, but silent and alone, followed where duty led along perilous paths and through secret ways, always in close touch with ignominious death-marvellous stories-and true!

Exploration, Travel and Adventure

Harper's Magazine sends out its own expeditions to many strange and hitherto untravelled corners of the earth. Dr. Jean Charcot, the famous French explorer, is now heading a new expedition to the South By special arrangement the first account of his discoveries will appear in Harper's. An American woman, Miss Annie Peck, in the interest of Harper's, has succeeded in scaling the hitherto unconquered heights of the highest mountain in this hemisphere, in the Peruvian Andes. Her own account of this remarkable feat will appear in the January number. Charles W. Furlong has just returned from a year's exploration among the strange tribes of Terra del Fuego and Patagonia. William E. Geff has been for eight months making a journey along the great Chinese Wall for Harper's. George Harding will write of his adventures aboard a sealing-ship which went down in the Northern ice. Mr. C. W. Beebe, Curator of Ornithology of the New York Zoological Park, recently returned from one of the mysterious rivers of South America, has written for the Magazine about the strange animals, birds, and fishes which he observed and photographed.

Heroes of Every Day

Norman Duncan will write, with his rare insight, of men who, like Dr. Grenfell, of the famous medical mission, have put aside lives of ease to labor in the wilderness and in the cities for the uplifting of their

Science, Literature and Art Three of the world's leading men of science will write of wonderelaborately illustrated papers on new artists. A Great Serial A new serial has just begun in the December Harper's-a novel so quick in action, so brilliant in narration, so tense in its dramatic quality, working discoveries. There will be frequent papers of literary reminiscence, more of Prof. Lounsbury's delightful articles on our language, and

It will be published anonymously. Toward the end of the year there will probably come a great novel by Margaret Deland. A City that Cares for its People

Miss Madge Jenison, who, as a settlement worker and student of social conditions in our own country, is thoroughly familiar with American cities, has spent some months in Berlin making a thorough comparative study of conditions there. Her account of what the city does for its poor and for its tenement dwellers is most illuminating.

The Romantic Side of Industry

Nothing is more appealing to the imagination than the wonders accomplished to-day in all of our great industries by that masterful combination of force-man and the machine. Notable among articles on the romantic phases of industry will be: "Apathy and Steel," by W. G. Beymer, a vivid poetic impression of men and scenes in the great steel-mills of Pennsylvania. "The Railroad Terminal," by Edward Hungerford. Fully illustrated "The Shipyard," by Thornton Oakley, with pictures by the author.

pre-eminent. Mr. Pyle is painting for Harper's Magazine a series of historical subjects in full color which will be among the important art fear tures during the new year. They will present many of the great menof our history from earliest days down to recent times, and in each picture the man will be shown at some vital epoch-making point in his career. They will form a pictorial record worthy of preservation. To beautify the pages of the Magazine with drawings, paintings in color, engravings on wood, etchings, etc., the artists of America, England. and France will give of their best. Edwin A. Abbey, R.A., Howard Pyle, and Elizabeth Shippen Green will work exclusively for Harper's, and

"Too much cannot be said of Harper's Magazine. It is difficult to speak of it in enthusiastic terms without passing the bounds of self-restraint. The reader who holds it in his hand for the first time, however, will realize the difficulty of doing the Magazine justice. The fiction varies greatly in scene and motive, but is unvaried in excellence."
