WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

taking advantage of any stripping of the line too thin for holding. Wherever and whenever a weak spot is found the allies will strike.

On the British front in France it rained the greater part of the day. On the battlefield south of the Ancre the German artillery was active, especially in the neighborhood of the Sars and Enscourt. It seems that the British have reinforced their batteries confronting the British army, but the German artillery power has also been greatly added to of late.

Serious as the situation in Roumania appears, it has not yet reached its crisis. The deadly intention of the German thrust is being realized by the allies, and all the assistance possible is being given her, or is about to be given. But a point to be noted is this: By sending men and guns to Roumania's assistance the south, Russia, is actually giving the German a powerful thrust in the north, and the saving of Roumania's front forces south prolongs the war. Broadly speaking, two of the German schemes against the Roumanians on their western and northwestern front have failed, and the scheme now trying another scheme. His original plan was to cut off the Roumanian first army by a repetition of Vonoltke's tactics at Sadowa. This nearly succeeded, but not quite. The Roumanians dodged the trap. The next scheme was in full swing last week. It was an attempt against the Roumanian second army. In the operation they attempted to break thru into Moldavia by way of the Gyimes Pass. The attack there, being launched with a large force, was carried as far as Agas by its momentum. Then the Roumanians launched a counter-attack, which resulted in the defeat of the German force and their repulse beyond the frontier. As soon as this plan failed, Von Falkenhayn has adopted another in the form of a renewed offensive against the Roumanian first army on its northern front. The most serious point is the Fredeal Pass. The Teutons have also gained ground in the Vulcan. The battle there is probably near its crisis.

In the Dobruja Von Mackensen has gained Cernavoda and the Russians and Roumanians are retreating northward. This is not such a critical front as the front in the Transylvanian Alps and the Carpathians, for Von Mackensen is not in a position to cross the Danube, and should he be taken in at any time, once the German attack from Transylvania is repelled, by an allied crossing of the Danube and the cutting of the railway that connects Sofia with Ruschuk and Yarna. His venture into the Dobruja is, therefore, a gamble on the success of the main attack from Transylvania. If that main attack falls Von Mackensen will find his position untenable. As the battle is raging in the Transylvanian passes and has not reached a decision, it would be folly either to cry defeat or to claim victory.

As seen by Petrograd, the loss of Constanza to Roumania, the serious, must not be supposed to portend a catastrophe. The Russians and Roumanians have retired to a line north of the railway and they are still holding the Cerna force of ten divisions on a thirty-mile front. The Russian have succeeded paths to prevent the despatch of troops to assist Roumania and it may yet take some time for their full influence on the campaign to be felt.

In the Macedonian theatre of the war Italian cavalry, operating from the Albanian coast, has established contact with the allied right wing. It west and south, in somewhat the same fashion that Serbia was attacked a year ago.

From information found in intercepted letters, the British Government has discovered plans for a German submarine campaign off the coast of the United States. A ship called the Willahad was to hover in American waters and act as a wireless station for the submarines. This vessel sailed from Boston with three months provisions for a three-month cruise. Another ship, the Kohn, was still lying at Boston when the Willahad sailed. The Willahad is now tied up as a submarine receiver at New London.

MILITARY TRAINING IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Management Committee of Education Board Adopts Recommendation.

LIVELY DISCUSSION

Trustees in Minority Say It Will Destroy Initiative—Form Cadet Corps.

"Carried four-three." This was the oft-repeated phrase at yesterday's meeting of the management committee of the board of education, and was heard after each of the several clauses of the report of the sub-committee which favored physical, cultural, and military training in Toronto schools was moved for adoption. Harmony by no means reigns in the management committee when it comes to the question of military training for pupils in the public schools. Chairman Houston, Trustees McTaggart and Dr. Hunter yesterday took up the cudgels against the suggestions of the sub-committee on the ground that military training for young children was decidedly inadvisable, it destroyed initiative and even in the case of the young boys for children of immature years. These three constituted the minority in the matter of physical, cultural, and military training. The majority, however, were supported by Trustees H. Shaw, the chairman of the sub-committee, Steele, Brown and Hopwood.

The committee held a conference with the Canada Defence League, Col. T. Hamilton Merritt, Lt.-Col. Gallows, Rev. Crawford Brown and Capt. (Rev.) W. A. Cameron and their suggestions mainly resulted from this. Trustee McTaggart was greatly in favor of physical, cultural, or physical training, but raised strenuous objections to military training. The need of physical culture classes for young children in the public schools was demonstrated in the large numbers of men rejected when applying for service in overseas service at one time in this city.

Col. Royce stated that he would command the new O.O.R. overseas battalion, and that Lt.-Col. Sidney W. Band, commander of the Queen's Own, would be his second in command. The work of taking the names of the men on the floor of the armories stepped forward. Never since the start of the war has such a large body of men volunteered for overseas service at one time in this city.

When at last night's parade of the Queen's Own Rifles, Lt.-Col. G. C. Royce announced to a conference held at the Military Institute yesterday and attended by Major-General Logie and the commanding officers of the city militia regiments. The plan of raising overseas battalions "regimentally" was regarded by the conference as the most efficient method. It is very probable that in raising battalions from now on in Toronto each new unit authorized will be given the whole city to recruit in without competition, until it is up to strength.

YORK TOWNSHIP OVERHEAD CROSSING

Parties Interested in C. N. R. "Cut-Off" Line Hold Conference on Matter.

The suggested crossing of the Canadian Northern "cut-off" line from Lunenburg to a point on the main line C.P.R. near Dunsmuir over the Lawrence advertisement is causing a lot of discussion. Yesterday a conference was held at the office of the Dominion Railway Board, Canadian Northern and York Township, to discuss the proposed crossing, and when the proposed route, met on the ground and a long and informal conference followed.

Settlement Comes as Great Relief to Winnipeg Business Men.

Winnipeg, Oct. 25.—Nothing new developed this afternoon in regard to the terms of settlement of the dispute between the Canadian Pacific Railway and its employees, which came within an ace of tying up the railway system from coast to coast and was only brought to a happy conclusion by the eleventh-hour mediation of the Dominion Government as represented by George C. Robertson of Welland, Ont., vice-president of the Order of Railway Men.

The new schedule is neither drafted in full nor signed and work on this morning. It is understood that the company will issue no statement until all lines of the railway have been reopened. The settlement, which they say is in the nature of a compromise, there having been strong feeling on either side, but with the net result that they feel that they can confidently recommend it to the acceptance of their fellow employees.

Announcement of the settlement caused great relief in business circles here, where a tie-up of the heavy rail lines would have meant a loss of what are passing thru here daily to the head of the lakes in the annual rush before the close of navigation, and the crippling of the premier transportation system would have been a bad blow to western industry.

Anyone interested may secure a card of admission from any regular osteopathic practitioner in the province.

Wilson Poor Match for Welsh Bout Stopped in Seventh

Special to The Toronto World. Montreal, Oct. 25.—Bobby Wilson proved a poor match for Freddie Welsh, who was defeated by the latter in the seventh round of a fight between the Canadian Hockey Club and the Boston Bruins. Wilson was fighting a man that was out of his class, and it was always apparent that the termination of the bout was only a question of time. The odd came in the seventh round, when Wilson was shown a little of his wares. The world's champion started to go after his opponent in the sixth round, and after landing repeatedly to the face and body in the seventh, referee Billy Roche stopped the bout.
