QUEEN'S RINK AND HOCKEY.

Manager F. G. Spencer Takes Charge Tomorrow—A Good Programme.

F. G. Spencer will assume control of the Queen's Rink tomorrow, and will immediately have the place cleaned and repairs made so that everything will be in readiness for the season's sport, as soon as the weather is cold enough.

Mr. Spencer expects to have ice on the rink about the 20th of December. The arrangements with regard to hockey have been about completed. Mr. Spencer says if ten teams can be procured, to take fifteen tickets each, he will agree to let them play on Wednesdays and Fridays, providing there is nothing else of importance on those nights.

It is probable that a cup will be offered for the team in the senior league winning the most games, and also medals offered for the individual players of the team.

There seems to be considerable interest taken in hockey this season and the prospects are that it will boom, as in the old days, when St. John could compete against any of them.

Besides the city teams, it is probable that Rothesay college will be represented this season, as they are endeavoring to make arrangements with Mr. Spencer to that end.

AT THE OPERA HOUSE.

The New Dominion will be presented for the last time at the Opera House this evening. It is one of the prettiest plays ever written and affords ample scope for the members of the Dalley company to show their versatility. The Dalley company will lay off the first three days of next week to give way to another company.

THE LOVERS ARE HEART BROKEN.

She is Held at the St. John Detention Hospital, a Victim of Trachoma—They Met After Eight Years, Only to Say Farewell.

Toorvanda M. Giragies is in the detention hospital at Sand Point, pronounced by the medical authorities to be a victim of that dread disease trachoma. Her affianced, John Kevorkin who has waited patiently for the past eight years for the girl he loved in his native home in Ararat, left St. John last night for his home in Providence, R. I., doubtful if he will ever see his betrothed again.

Yesterday afternoon for the first time in almost a decade he was permitted to see the girl, and the circumstances surrounding that meeting, were indeed pathetic.

He gazed at her from a distance, and notwithstanding her affliction and the barrier which has presented itself to her anticipated conjugal bliss, a new flame kindled the old love and the incident was a most pathetic one.

A Times reporter had a talk with the unfortunate lover, who like his fiancée is heart broken. As he spoke of his troubles he frowned down his dusky cheeks and referring to his case he said:—

"I am sad at heart. To think that after eight years of waiting I should come here and find my love kept from me. It is very hard. I have worked and saved in order to give her a happy home, where she would never have any more trouble or worry. I love her, and would marry her now if the authorities would let me, but they have laws and these laws must be obeyed."

"For the past four years I have been doing everything possible to get her out of Turkey, but as I told you yesterday the Turkish government will not let me, but they have laws and these laws must be obeyed."

"I had to get my friends in Providence to use their influence with the Turkish consul at Washington, and even after I got his backing, which took many months, I had to pay the Turkish government $80 for her passport. I also sent her $120 to pay her fare out, but the meeting of his fiancée was not, but they have laws and these laws must be obeyed."

only take some with me. This is certainly a great disappointment for me." According to further statements made by Kevorkin there is a lot of red tape business in connection with immigrants coming from Turkey. Kevorkin says he is a naturalized American citizen, but it has taken him four years to get his fiancée from her native home. He had to enlist the services of the American government in his behalf and their action has been very dilatory, to say the least. Kevorkin talks good English, and is an exceptionally clever type of the Armenian race.

A Times reporter today interviewed Dr. Ellis at Sand Point. Dr. Ellis is in charge of the detention hospital. He states that this case is exclusively in the hands of the American immigration commission, as to whether he shall be allowed to enter the United States. It was up to the immigration commission to take action and until they do so she will be held in the detention hospital here.

Some of the United States immigration agents said that as the case was a mild one, she would probably be allowed to proceed to her destination if a complete recovery took place.

Dr. Ellis when asked as to the character of the disease said that it is mildly contagious.

As to how long it might take for recovery it was stated by officials that the length of time could not be determined.

For the present pending future developments, Toorvanda M. Giragies will remain in the detention hospital. In case the American officials do not take action and the girl has to remain here she would probably be deported unless she was able to pay for her treatment while in the detention hospital.

In connection with this latter situation Kevorkin told a Times reporter last evening that he had left for his home in Providence, and was willing to pay many times that amount over, if he could have his fiancée with him. The outcome will be awaited with interest.
