Aeroplane Control Gives Flier Use of Both Hands.
Tests lately conducted at the Ranton, Illinois, flying field with a new aeroplane control that gives a pilot free use of his hands have been acclaimed highly gratifying. The device enables a craft to be manoeuvred by movement of the knees so that in an encounter, an airman may reload a pistol or machine gun, operate a fire extinguisher, or do other necessary things without having to keep one hand on the wheel—From the January Popular Mechanics Magazine
