The Man In The Street

Question of the moment. Got your tax bill yet?

And another q. o. t. m.—"How'd you like it?"

The best way to speak of Przemysl is to say that the Austrians won a victory unpronounced.

In Our Letter Box.

To the Man in the Street:

Dear Sir—There is just one suggestion I would like to add to those advanced for Town Planning and Civic Improvement: Let there be Windows Washing Day, in addition to a Clean-Up Day, so that the windows in some houses and stores, may look more like windows than side streets where the watering cart pays no visit.

Yours,
I. V. SEENEM.

Grand Lake's On The Map!

The city still owes a debt to the rural parts. I. C. R. Pollockman Roberts said to City Detective Worell in police court yesterday, "You may be from Scotland Yard, but I'm from Grand Lake."

It seems hard to believe that the Kaiser wishes to entomb Holland in the war. He should know the force of the old song, "It takes the Dutch to beat the Dutch," and he has no Irishmen with him.

And if the Roumanians come in, they probably feel that they can put more Roum in Roumania by doing so.

Self-Denial Day.

Many a June bridegroom is glad he wasn't married on Thursday, as some of his friends might say he had given up too much.

"Severe earth tremors recorded at New York," says local headline. This was on the same day that Von Bernstorff was interviewing Wilson.

A Deep Study.

The Germans may now believe that there's more to this submarine warfare than appears on the surface. One of their transports in the Sea of Marmona was torpedoed this week.

Watford Waiting.

Indianian residents are still daily expecting to see men put to work with that extra $100 on Victoria Square. Meanwhile they are being kept busy with a choice assortment of decayed vegetables, over-ripe fruit, and other matters. A peddler of such refuse is contributing refuse to the "dump," that looked as though it had lain in his hands since last fall, thus varying the quota brought forth by spring.

Entomologists could secure some rare specimens on the "square," so-called.

Who Saw It First?

"On The Side," in Toronto News, June 11: "Many a man who in his youth was taught courtesy and kindness has become a brackman a branch line."

"Jewels and Junk," in Standard, June 4:—"You can't always tell many a man who, in his youth, was taught courtesy and kindness has lived to become a brackman."

News head says "Motor boat on rocks," but probably many a motor boat owner is having a hard course steering clear of them this summer.

No, You Say It—We're Too Polite!

"In running the public works department," says Commissioner Potts, thus removing the suggestion of a commission to investigate the Union street railway atrocity.

And of course there's such a thing as running the public works department, but it's a big job to run the public works department, the city public, and the railway company as well.

And those who use the Haymarket "white" line, feel that they have something to "rall" about.

Reward of Modesty.

A young city lawyer had occasion to go up river this week to see a man of legal business. He had some dealings previously with the same chap and so, when the countryman asked "Are you the same fellow I did some business with a couple of years ago?" he modestly answered, "No, that was my brother."

"Well, he may be your brother and he may be all right, but let me tell you he is an awful liar," was the somewhat disconcerting answer.

Imagination's Limit.

Another yarn which came down the line this week deals also with characters. The farmer and his wife had retired for the night when the old man began to hear some unusual sounds outside the house.

"Lissie," he said, "Them hens is out again; you must have forgotten to lock 'em up."

"No, Thomas," his wife replied, "I locked them up all right. It must be your imagination."

"Imagination be blowed!" he said. "Imagination can't sit on the fence and crow."

DRAFT FROM 28TH TO ENGLAND

A draft of one officer and between forty and fifty members of the 28th Field Battery is being organized to go to England as reinforcements. Major Randolph Crocker, the officer commanding the 28th Battery, called for volunteers, and practically every member of the battery at once offered. The dispatching of this draft will open up practically fifty vacancies in the 28th, and thus an opportunity will be given those on the waiting list who want to join the unit an opportunity to enlist.

FLOWERS IN WINDOWS OF BUSINESS HOUSES

Here is Suggestion For Beautifying of City

It is Likely To Be Taken Up For Discussion in Retail Merchants Association—Householders and All Might Co-operate

Here is an idea, new to St. John, which might be employed to add beauty and distinction to the city streets. It is a suggestion that business houses as well as householders, should use window displays of flowers to add to the attractiveness of the city's appearance.

In a city hewn out of solid rock, where each estate has been valuable to spare for garden plots, lawns or other signs of greenery in the streets, something else is needed to give places for the purpose of removing the bareness of the appearance of most of the city streets. If the residential sections had a little more grass these things might not be missed in the business section. As it is the central part of the city, and even some of the outlying districts, have a bleak appearance which does not impress strangers favorably.

A campaign for the beautifying of the city by the use of flowers grown in window boxes has been suggested in order to improve conditions. The suggestion is that every householder secure such boxes and use them on their window sills and that business houses co-operate and place the boxes in the upper windows of their buildings. The cost would be small, the amount of attention required insignificant, but the difference in the general appearance of the city would be marked. Not only would the gayly colored flowers add a bit of brightness to the city streets but they would give visitors the impression that this is a city with sufficient pride in itself to pay some attention to appearances.

The experiment has been tried in several cities in the United States with great success and there can be few cities in which such an undertaking would be more appreciated than in St. John.

N. C. Cameron, secretary of the Retail Merchants' Association, is an enthusiast on this subject and is now preparing boxes for the windows of his offices in Prince William street, partly for his own satisfaction and partly to show others what it would look like. Other members of the association are interested in the idea and it is probable that the matter will be up for discussion by the next meeting of the association next week.

Imagine looking up King street or Prince William street and seeing instead of the rows of plain brick and stone buildings with nothing to ornament them but the festoons or electric light and telephone wires, every building gay with flowering plants. It would make a difference, wouldn't it?

PATRIOTIC TEA AT STONEYCROFT

An Event of Next Week at the Popular Tea House Two Miles Beyond Robtsey

If one of the old time roysters of the pre-railway days, whose occasional habit it was to drive out to the Eleven Mile House for supper with some friends, were to come back and seek to live over again the old days, would find some changes. In the first place, he would probably go out in an automobile. Then he would not recognize his old haunts as he was whirled along the Marsh Road, past Glen Falls, Renforth, Riverside, and Prince Edward Falls, with the endless vista of summer cottages. And when he reached the Eleven Mile House, two miles beyond Robtsey, on the Hampton Road, he would find the ancient hostel of that name, known so well to all travelers of those days, converted into the Stoneycroft Tea House of today, serving refreshments to automobile parties, with none of the atmosphere of the days of old.

More than forty years ago the late D. Magee purchased what had been the Eleven Mile House, with its farms of over a hundred acres, and used it as a summer home. Members of the family now live there all the year round, and Harry Magee cultivates the farm, and is gradually establishing a fine hennery. Two years ago Harry opened tea rooms in the spacious old house, and it has become well beloved of motorists and others who pass that way, and famous for its home-cooked and pleasant country atmosphere. The view from the grounds across the valley to Robtsey and the Kennebecasis is very fine, and there is a pleasant walk through the field and a large grove to the pretty lake nearby. It is the habit of those who know and appreciate the place to telephone ahead, and then motor out from the city for supper and return during the evening.

On Thursday evening of next week there will be a Patriotic Tea at Stoneycroft, the total proceeds to go for patriotic purposes. Some of their neighbors are assisting the Misses Magee, and a large attendance is expected, not only of people from Quispamsis and that section, but from Robtsey and the city. Many who have not been visitors in the past will no doubt take advantage of this opportunity for a delightful outing. Stoneycroft is close beside the road, with printed signs on either side. It is about one mile from Quispamsis station.
