The Countess Tolstoi

(Montreal Witness)

A noble woman is Sophia Behra, the daughter of a Moscow physician, whom Count Tolstoi married in 1882, when he was a young man of thirty-four and she a girl of eighteen. She has remained a member of the Orthodox church, but did not fear when the Count was excommunicated to address a fiery rebuke to the patriarchal synod. Upon her has rested the whole burden of the management of the household, both on the estate and in Moscow. She has controlled, directed, managed everything. She has borne him this teen children, all of whom she has nursed herself, besides acting as their teacher until their tenth year. In addition to her household cares, she has worked laboriously as copyist and translator for her husband. She has for years copied his ill-fated manuscript for the printer, "War and Peace," which he revised again and again, she copied no fewer than seven times. Another work she copied no less than sixteen times, and then translated it into French. A Russian author says: "She cares for him like an indefatigable nurse, makes his clothes with her own hands, and only parts from him for the briefest time possible."

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

THE right use of money is to accomplish what you wish with it.—Mary Lyons, founder of Mt. Holyoke.

Do you know I wish I were clever enough to edit a woman's dictionary containing some of the words that the feminine sex seems to need to have defined.

"Extravagance" and "economy," for instance.

On a little fifty-mile train trip that I took yesterday, I counted four women on the train wearing white gloves.

They were not dressed expensively—you could have bought every stitch any one of them had on, from aigrette to pump, and from skin to coat, for a hundred dollars and yet, were I a man with a moderate income looking for a reasonably economical wife, these are the sort of women I would at once place as impossible.

Why?

Because, using the word in its right meaning, I consider that those white gloves represented more extravagance than far larger expenditures, a twenty-dollar willow plume or eight-dollar shoes, for instance.

For my idea of sartorial extravagance is not, as so many women consider it, just spending a lot of money on your clothes. Nor do I think economy conversely is spending very little money.

I think extravagance is spending your money without getting good value for it, and economy is the converse.

To sum up in Mary Lyons's words:

"The right use of money is to accomplish what you wish with it."

White gloves cost more than dark gloves in initial outlay, in greater fragility, and in cleaning expense whether of time or money.

Used for everyday wear, on a train or shopping excursion, they are both bad taste and unattractive, because even if they are perfectly fresh, when they are put on they will be badly soiled by the time they are taken off.

Presumably those women spent more money to clothe themselves in white gloves in order to look extra well. They most emphatically did not accomplish what they wished with their outlay. Therefore, I call them extravagant.

I'm not writing all this to inveigh against the habit of wearing white gloves on all occasions. I have no especial grudge against white gloves. I simply take them as typical of the hundred and one little ways in which the American woman, especially that class of her who can least afford it, is extravagant.

She buys fragile and delicately colored materials for everyday wear; she buys ultra styles in cheap grade when she ought to buy a two season style in a better grade; she purchases elaborate and unsuitable accessories, such as white gloves and fragile furs.

As a consequence she looks well dressed for a brief time and very poorly dressed for a very long time. She is spending her money to be well dressed and because of her lack of judgment she fails of her object.

And that's what I call extravagance, money spent without judgment.

Don't you?

And don't you think it would be a grand idea if this kind of women could have Mary Lyons's definition pasted over their dressers, or better still, printed on their pay envelopes.

"The right use of money is to accomplish what you wish with it."

Daily Hints for the Cook

COCOANUT CREAM COOKIES.
Two eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup thick cream, 12 cup shredded coconut, 3 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. Beat eggs until light, add sugar gradually, coconut cream and flour mixed and sifted with baking powder and salt. Chill thoroughly, roll on flour board, pat and roll one-half inch thick. Sprinkle with coconut, roll one-fourth inch thick, and shape with a small round cutter, first dipped in flour. Bake on a buttered sheet in a moderate oven.

BAKED APPLES.
Core and pare the apples. Put a little sugar, water and lemon juice into a baking dish with the apples and bake until tender, but not broken. Remove to a serving dish, fill the centers with jelly or marmalade and pour the liquid from the baking dish over them. Make a meringue with the whites of two eggs and four table-spoons of sugar and flavor with lemon and vanilla. Press the meringue on the tops of the apples, using a pastry bag and stab tube or drop from tip of spoon. Bake in a moderate oven about eight minutes. Garnish with jelly.

ONE EGG MUFFINS.
Beat to a light cream one-quarter of a cup of butter, one-quarter of a cup of sugar and one egg; add three-quarters of a cup of sweet milk and two cups of flour sifted with one teaspoon of cream of tartar and one-half of soda. Bake in a hot oven. Use pastry flour. This will make 10 muffins.

DR. A. W. CHASE'S CATARRH POWDER 25c.
To cure catarrh of the bladder, urethra, prostate, etc., use this powder. It is a powerful antiseptic and permanently cures catarrh and all other urinary troubles. All druggists and chemists sell it. Acceptance for Mails, U. S. Post Office, St. John, N. B., Canada.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE.
One-half scant cup butter, one cup sugar, one-half cup milk, 1 1/2 cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, whites of four eggs, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup raisins, seeded and cut in pieces, two ounces citron thinly sliced and cut in strips and one-third cup walnut meats cut into pieces. In making mixture reserve one tablespoonful of flour to use for dredging fruit. Measure dry ingredients and sift together. Cream butter and sugar; add egg whites, beaten light, then milk. Flavor and then flour with baking powder sifted in. Dredge fruit and add.

GERMAN PANCAKES.
One quart of sour milk, two level teaspoons of soda, two well-beaten eggs, half a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of melted butter, enough flour to make a smooth batter. It should not be too thick. Beat hard five minutes. Bake in large pancakes, spread with butter and then with cherry butter or marmalade or with peach marmalade. Sprinkle with powdered sugar and roll up like jelly roll. Serve hot.

PEANUT COOKIES.
Cream one fourth cup of butter with the half cup of sugar, add the beaten yolk of two eggs and beat thoroughly. Mix one cup of flour, one half teaspoon of baking powder, add to the first mixture in alternation with one fourth cup of milk, add one teaspoon of lemon juice and two cups of chopped peanuts. When well beaten draw from top of spoon on buttered pan, place three halves of nuts on each and bake in a moderate oven until light brown.

PASTRY FOR PIES.
One cup of butter, 1 cup of lard, 6 cups of flour, chow fine, wet and salt it. This will make four pies. Chopping makes it flaky. The less the hands touch it the better it will be. Use very little water.

THE AGE EXTRAVAGANT

Rev. Dr. Cameron, in Ottawa Baptist Church, Prophesizes Revolution

(Ottawa Journal.)

"We have little knowledge how the Socialist movement is growing in this country, nor how many secret societies there are in Ottawa, and before we realize it there will be a revolution over the extravagance of the age. The revolution will be against oppression and over taxation."

Rev. Dr. Cameron, of the First Baptist Church, made this statement in his sermon last night on "The Extravagance of the Age."

Dr. Cameron enumerated some general examples to prove that the present generation is giving way to gross waste and unnecessary extravagance. "Many homes to-day are like palaces such as the kings of Great Britain never lived in. Instead of spending so much in this respect it would be better to save money to be spent in sending the good to all nations."

"Then we are extravagant in our dress. I believe in dressing as becomes one's station in life, but modern fashions lead many into financial ruin and disaster."

"We must insist on lower taxation," he said, "or there will be little hope for our laboring classes. As it is, Canada is the poorest country in the world to live in. We are being taxed into poverty."

She was only 3 years old, and it was her first visit to a number of relatives, Aunts, uncles and cousins crowded around her, and kissed her over and over again.

A story of a little maiden who finally asserted her rights is related in a western paper.

DANCING AS CURE

Awakens Slumbering Intelligence, Says Asylum Superintendent

The latest cure for feeble-mindedness is dancing. It was declared by Dr. Farries, an asylum superintendent, at a conference, at Birmingham last week that nothing gives the feeble-minded child more confidence or induces better behavior than dancing. He saw no reason for separating the sexes; on the contrary he believed in their enjoyment of each other's society.

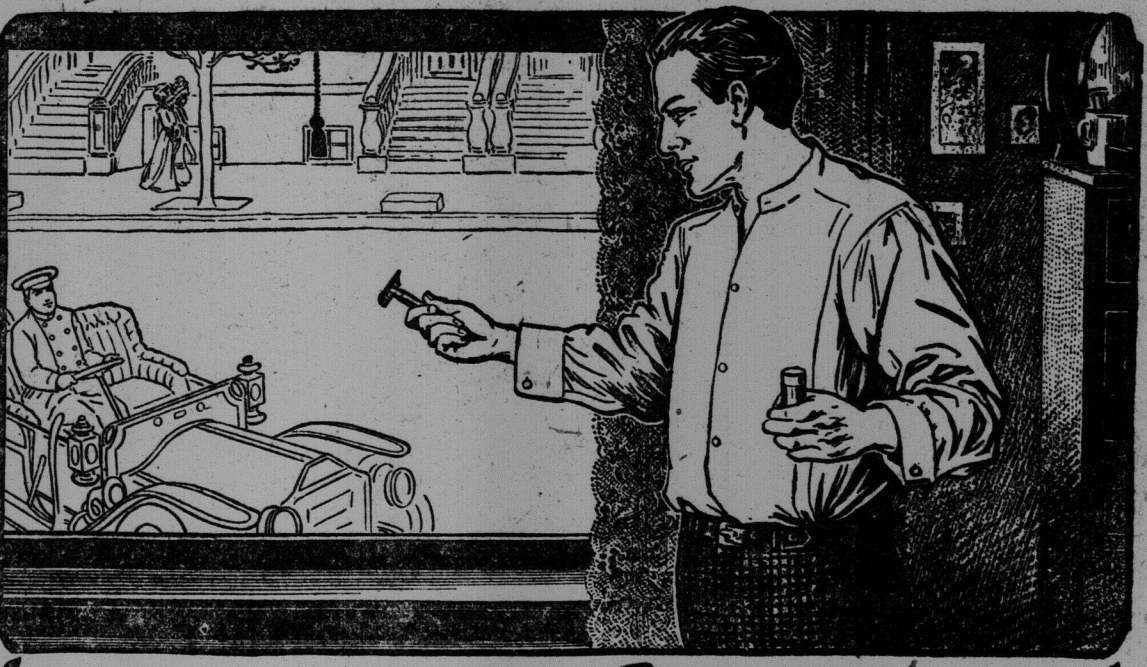

"Dancing," he said, "is a word which occupies a prominent position on my time tables."

His audience laughed, but the doctor was serious. His experience was, he said, that dancing awakened slumbering intelligence and brought intellectual life and proper understanding to minds previously or merely vacant.

"Nothing," he said, "gives them many thoughts more quickly."

Crickets and football had proved a complete failure, but since the introduction of dancing the imbecile children in his institution had shown an awakening of interest in this and other pastimes.

She stood it patiently, and gave every kiss that was asked for without demur. After a while, when she had run the gamut of affectionate relatives, Uncle Tom said, "Now, baby, I'll take you out to see the cow!"

"Just a minute, Jackson!"
