

Finds Skull of Man Believed to Be A Million Years Old

Patagonian Discovery Arouses Keen Interest as Possibly Upsetting Scientists' Views Regarding Antiquity of Men.

(Canadian Press)
Buenos Aires, Feb. 27.—Discovery of a fossilized human skull of the tertiary period was announced yesterday by Dr. J. G. Wolf, who has just returned after two years of exploration in Patagonia on behalf of the Plata Museum. He declared the fossilization was that of tertiary sandstone and that there was no doubt it was formerly the skull of a human being, not an accidental formation.

The lower jaw is missing but otherwise the skull is almost perfect. The eye sockets, and what is still more convincing, the sockets of the teeth in the upper jaw, are clearly defined. The cranium is long and oval, and the forehead extremely low and sloping.

Dr. Wolf formerly was attached to the division on anthropology of the Canadian Geological Survey. He went to Patagonia primarily to study the language and mythology of the Indians and found the skull in the possession of a white settler on the Andean slope, who picked it up some years ago and kept it as a curiosity, not realizing its scientific value.

Dr. Wolf said he had left the fossil in the possession of the settler whose property it was, and that he had submitted data to the Plata Museum for such action as the museum cares to take to obtain it.

Found Old Town.
The scientist also announced the discovery of ruins of an ancient fortified town in the heretofore unexplored region north of Lake Cardiel, in the territory of Santa Cruz, which he believes to be remnants of a civilization probably earlier than that of the Peruvian Incas. Sections of walls forty-five feet in height, built of blocks of three cubic feet, cut out of basalt are still standing. The walls extend for 150 yards between hills which serve as buttresses. Within are the ruins of habitations.

Dr. Wolf said the fact that the walls contained arches indicated that their builders had reached a comparatively high state of civilization and intellectual attainment. The walls were also carved with strange hieratic inscriptions differing from the Aztec, Inca or the Chibcheo in Colombia.

He noted one carving in which appeared the representation of an animal resembling the extinct glyptodon. He roughly estimated the age of the ruins at from 2,000 to 3,000 years.

Some distance farther south he found what was perhaps an ancient thoroughfare along which for more than a mile the rocks were covered with similar inscriptions.

Dr. Wolf plans to return to Patagonia next month to search for the "enchanted city" of Patagonian Indian mythology, supposed to be situated in the Andes. He believed that this place, which the Indians refer to as the home of the Sun God, will prove to be the ruins of another ancient city.

"The fossilized skull is, of course, that of a man who lived some millions of years ago," said Dr. Wolf. The people who lived in the fortified town were comparatively modern, reckoned by the age of modern man."

Upset Scientific Views.
New York, Feb. 27.—The fossilized human skull, found in Patagonia by Dr. J. G. Wolf, will, if it proves authentic, antedate by hundreds of thousands of years any human relic thus discovered, so Dr. Franz Boas, anthropologist at Columbia University and world-famous scientist, declared last night.

It will be even older, possibly 500,000 years, said Dr. Boas, than the skull of an erect man ape, known as the Pithecanthropus erectus, itself 500,000 years old, which was found in Java twenty-nine years ago.

"It is definitely established that man existed in the Tertiary Period, it will upset all accepted scientific views regarding the American Continent and the antiquity of man," said Dr. Boas.

"This discovery, which seems almost too marvelous to be true, will throw light upon this hitherto unknown period," Dr. Boas said. "So far, scientists have merely speculated upon the possible existence of man in the Tertiary Period, although traces pointing to the existence of a man-like animal have been found on various rocks."

Carroll Players Well Received.
Stock Company at the Opera House Make Pleading Impression at Opening Performance.

Playing to a well-filled house last evening at the Opera House the F. James Carroll players made their bow to St. John in Belasco's play, "Polly With a Past." The opening of the dramatic season was under the distinguished patronage of Lieutenant-Governor William Pugsley and Mrs. Pugsley, and, appreciating the honor done them, the players strove to please.

Miss Canada and her mother, Mrs. F. R. Blair, were present, and her arrival was greeted by the orchestra playing "O Canada." When the gubernatorial party arrived "God Save the King" was played. His Honor was attended by Lieut.-Col. Alexander McMillan, A. D. C.

J. A. Kraker, manager of the Opera House, introduced Mr. Carroll, head of the company, who in turn introduced the members of the cast, each appearing before the curtain and making a few remarks.

W. S. Fisher, president of the Associated Charities, for the benefit of whom the first performance was given, gave a brief address, expressing the appreciation of the association for what had been done for them and paying tribute to the work of the ladies of the board and of other organizations. He referred to the presence of the Lieutenant-Governor and his wife as a welcome to Miss Canada, and paid a graceful tribute to her maidenly modesty. He spoke of the untiring efforts of Miss Grace Robertson, secretary of the Associated Charities, and thanked the press for what it had done to make the evening a success.

The Play.
The play itself centred around the old story of a young man fancying himself desperately in love with a girl who did not return the affection. A scheme was evolved whereby it was planned to arouse the jealousy of the girl by engaging another girl, reputed to have had a gay past, to fall in love with him. The result was what might be expected. The forlorn lover felt head over heels in love with the seductive girl, and Girl No. 1 was counted out.

Lillian Foster as Polly Shannon made the hit of the evening. Pretty, vivacious and ready of tongue, she had the audience with her from the start. Her interpretation of her lines bespoke engagements in wider fields, and the audience gave her warm support.

Frank McHugh as Rex Van Zile, the lover, was very successful in his part. His facial control was excellent, and he showed a versatility of which his earlier actions gave no indication.

Clay Collum and Harry Richardson, played by Jerry O'Day and Leslie Adams, were two young men who framed up the arrangements whereby the lover was to get into the good graces of his loved one. Miss Gwendoline Williams as Mrs. Clementine Davis played the part of the mother of the girl who spurned the love of her son.

Sylvia Farness played the part of Myrtle Davis, who was so much interested in reform of various sorts that she let the love of one who wished to be her hero slip away from her. She, one of her converts from drunkenness, was well played by Maurice Clark. Parker, a maid, was played by Helen Howard. Doris Kellon, as Mrs. Van Zile, was rather stiff in her part, although she had a difficult role to handle. Malcolm Arthur as Commendante Barker proved a very amusing would-be master, and excited much merriment by his attempts to make engagements with the leading lady.

Prentice Van Zile was played by Charles Howard Stevens, and Mr. Stevens handled his part well. Though it was short, he made the best of it and displayed great ease in his lines. A Stranger was played by John Gordon very acceptably.

A synopsis note was introduced into the play of last evening when between the second and third acts flowers were presented over the footlights to the lady members of the cast. The stage settings were excellent and evoked many remarks of commendation from the audience.

The cast of characters was as follows:

KILLED IN LEAP FROM NINTH STORY

While Suffering from Nervous Trouble, Wife of N. Y. Manager of Western Electric Co. Takes Life

New York, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Bessie Johnston, fifty-three years old, whose husband, James W. Johnston, is treasurer of the Western Electric Company, took advantage of the momentary absence of her nurse, forced the window of her apartment on the ninth floor of 1078 Park Avenue, although it had been nailed down to prevent just such an occurrence, and leaped to the court yard below. She died instantly.

The Johnston apartment is on the corner of Eighty-eighth street and Park Avenue, one of the fashionable residential districts in the city. In the summer the Johnstons live at Montclair, N. J.

Mrs. Johnston had been ill for months, and for six weeks had been suffering from a nervous breakdown. During that time she had been kept to her bed under the care of Dr. Hubert Howe, the family physician, who ordered a nurse to be in constant attendance. Mrs. Johnston's mental depression developed a tendency toward self-destruction, and as a result everything with which she might harm herself had been removed from her room and all the windows of the apartment nailed down.

Mrs. Johnston had become quite weak from her illness and had to be assisted whenever she left her bed. In view of this fact, Miss Annie Rust, the nurse, felt little hesitation about leaving her patient for a moment when the doorbell of the apartment rang. She hastened to the door, leaving Mrs. Johnston's room open.

Miss Rust said that she had been absent only two minutes when she returned to the sick room to see Mrs. Johnston climbing over the window sill. Before she could reach her patient she had thrown herself out into space. It is believed that for the moment she had gained an increase of strength, which enabled her to force the window.

Mr. Johnston was at home at the time of the tragedy, but a daughter was out of the city. Dr. Howe, who was called immediately, notified the office of the Medical Examiner.

The foe of film
Your teeth are coated with a vicious film. No ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat it. So it clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Most tooth troubles, most dingy teeth, are due to that clinging film.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look cloudy. It forms the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it.
