We have at various times advocated the introduction of Manufactories into this Town, and we are happy to learn that there is a prospect of our suggestions being carried into effect. A person acquainted with making axes and other edge tools, has within a few days seen looking up a site for that parpose; and it is not unlikely that a Sosp and Candle Manufactory will be established during the summer. There is also some intention of erecting the necessary machinery, &c. for the manufacture of Boots and Shoes, which we learn can be sold as low as they are purchased in the United States market.

The revolution in Hayti is nearly complete. The Emperor Soulouque is abandonby the army, and even by some members of his own order of nobility. General Gef-frad has a force of 18,000 men, or more than sufficient to overcome any opposition of the Emperor or his friends.
