I have not the slightest hesitation in replying that it will—anything will be believed of the present Ministry that the organs of the Party put forward.

Don't suppose that the change in size precurses any alteration in the Globe's general style.

It is run by a joint stock company, which is Brown, but he would scorn the idea of limited lie-ability. His ability in that direction is unlimited.

Finally, one of the warblers commenced to sing something about "Strike the Lyre," whereat George instinctively put himself into a defensive attitude and SINGER AND HOWE, Family and Manufacturing. ooked around to see if anybody was go-ng to put a head on him.

"You have reduced the size of the Globe," said I, as he was carefully examining my petitions to see if the signatures were sufficiently dissimilar.

"Yes," said he, trying to seem happy.

"Oh, yes. There is fortunately less pressure on our columns. We have resumed our normal form. We always hoped to do so. We always intended to cut down our advertising space, and have at las been enabled to curtail it."

"If don't wonder at it," said I. "The Globe has always been so dogmatic, it is not surprising that it is now cur-tailed."

"Here are some more petition blanks said he, appearing anxious to change the subject. "Rush them in as fact as you can. I find it quite a waste of time try ing to obtain genuine signatures.
