

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

MAGIC BAKING POWDER contains no alum or egg albumen and is guaranteed to be composed of the ingredients printed on the label—and none other. Made in Canada By Canadians For Canadians

NEW INDUSTRY FOR WATERLOO

Stamping Works Proposition Considered. A special meeting of the town Council was held last night having been called to discuss an industrial proposition and so favorably did the Councilors look on the project that it is pretty nearly definite that the factory will be located here. The industry in question is a stamping works and they will employ from the start from 30 to 50 men. The men behind the movement are local citizens of high standing and mean business. They ask for a free site, a fixed assessment for a number of years and a loan from the town. The discussion was made out of the purest of meats at very lowest possible prices. Best boiling and stewing beef, 12¢; to 14¢ per lb., choice rolled ribs and rumps 25 cents or 18¢, choice Roast beef, 15 cents to 18¢, per lb. Sirloin roasts and steaks 28 cents to 30 cents per lb. Special prices on all meats during the week. Phone 284, 80 King street, Waterloo. 1t.

No Objection to Bill Board. Mr. Leslie who is erecting a billboard on King street north of the Hotel Erwald was present and informed the Council that the North wing as intended would not be erected as it would shut off the view of the parties living on the corner. He wished to conform with all the bylaws in connection with the erection of advertising boards. The Council was no reason why the idea as outlined by Mr. Leslie should not be granted and the board will be erected with the exception of the North wing. Reeve Bolender brought to the attention of the Council of cases in town where the necessities of life were badly needed. He had visited the home but did not feel that he should take action alone. After explaining the circumstances he was instructed to have the necessities sent to tide them over for the time being or until more suitable arrangements can be made. Adjournment was made at 9.45 o'clock.

MR. ART WISMER ON VISIT

Mr. Arthur Wismer of Edmonton, Alta., a former Waterloo boy was a welcome visitor in town this morning stopping off to renew old acquaintances for a few hours. Mr. Wismer is on his way to Elkhart to visit his old home. "Art" since going west some 10 years ago has prospered and has a large horse sales stable establishment and carting business in the western city which he thinks is the finest in Canada. When he left for the East two weeks ago they had their first taste of winter considerable snow being on the ground which was frozen over. In regard to the past seasons crops Mr. Wismer says they were fine. Everyone is prosperous and the future of the west looks bright and promising. While he is a busy man he hopes to spend a few weeks in the east visiting friends before returning home.

The lecture was illustrated which helped materially in bringing before the eyes of the audience the thought explained by the speaker. A number of local selections by a double quartette of St. John's Lutheran church choir members added greatly to the enjoyment of the evening.

EYES TURN ON MARSHALL

Washington, D.C., Oct. 24.—When James A. Garfield was lying at Elberon, the question of disability was raised, and although the nation was without a President for purposes, for weeks in the block can not be necessary, without a President capable of performing the functions of his office, the suggestion that he be superseded, even at interim, was hushed by an outburst of public indignation. But times have changed since the early '80s, as is evidenced by the freedom with which the illness of President Wilson and the possibility that it may become necessary for the Vice President to assume the functions of the Presidency are now being discussed in Washington. In the entire history of the nation there has never been a situation that exactly parallels that which exists today, and it is this lack of precedent that has made the present situation a subject of lively discussion.

The United States Constitution has been found adapted to every situation and contingency with which the nation, throughout its history, has been confronted. The present situation or any turn it may take, is amply provided for in Article 11, Section 6, which says: "In case of the removal of the President from office, or of his death, resignation, or inability to discharge the powers and duties of the said office, the same shall devolve on the Vice President."

Mr. Marshall has had about as long experience in the Vice Presidency as any man in the history of the Federal government, but this experience would avail him little should he be called upon to take up the duties of chief executive of the nation. Theoretically, he stands second in the executive branch of the government but between the first and second places there is and always has existed a vast gulf. It has never been the practice for Presidents to throw any of the burdens of their office upon the Vice President. The relations between President Wilson and Vice President Marshall have probably been as close and cordial as those that have existed between any President and Vice President, but at the same time Mr. Wilson has not to any noticeable degree altered the custom of the past by consulting the Vice President when great issues were at stake.

There is no similarity between the offices of President and Vice President. The Presidency involves the hardest kind of work, while the Vice Presidency involves very little work. Only two real tasks devolve upon the Vice President—that of presiding over the Senate, where he is allowed to vote in case there is a tie, and that of chancellor of the Smithsonian Institution.
