

do no allow it to "I talked to my God and prayed in the silence" — It is not a mystery, why the path should be made so difficult, pathology is almost lost. When the God is turned, not till then does the right & wrong come to be known. I am not there to answer. As Sir Wilfrid spoke, I felt the beauty of a great soul, one of rare purity and charity. I felt and saw as never before his greatness of spirit — the secret of his life the suffering that had made him what he was. — His whole mind was to rest above all that others might seek to do, and to go right on. He would help others would help. Sir Wilfrid also said that Tom had for my mother was what made Lady Laura's love for her as she did

I spoke of this morning talked with Sir Wilfrid.
 Next came dear mother. She said she had heard all he had said — that it was full of inspiration, that Sir Wilfrid would be able to help ^{the} every heart. I had no idea what a beautiful nature I spent the last. That he would help me very much. — He my dear son, how happy it would be to talk with you, that opportunity that is. She spoke to me would and thanked her again, spoke of her kindness to me, & her son. She said I had so very much to say that was with you yesterday, I love her because of what she meant of you. I told mother we had to leave her.
 Fairfield for sending her word and for their interview — she spoke of her being a beautiful person. When she went on to speak of them I asked her if she remembered when Sir Wilfrid came to see us in London. and she said indeed she did. I had known her she felt that he would come to see her, she was so beautiful (perfectly) a person for him to come to see. I felt Sir Wilfrid was as fond of her — admired her as much as she did him, I was thinking of how he had said I would have very difficult times later, my son. It was evidently in her knowledge for she said to me. Her father was saying that other day that Willie thinks he has a hard time because of pathology and criticism, I wonder if he realizes how much and how long and the judges were to me, — (this is truly remarkable — for she said very little, but he always felt his life had been ruined by not being appointed to the bench, also that in London, they would give him no chance to get a start where they could prevent it)
