being duly sworn, is examined by the prosecutor.
 I have been employed as warden at the Detention Barracks, York Point Barracks, Esquimalt B.C., since 1918. I take 24-hour shifts alternately with the accused, starting at 9 a.m. each day. The rules of the detention barracks are that prisoners are allowed to have visitors once every two weeks. They are not allowed visitors during the first two weeks of their confinement unless special authority is given. No. He may also, by getting the permission of the Garrison Adjutant, have a visitor during his first two weeks. It has been the custom in this station to allow visitors once a week, at the discretion of the warden, after an accused has completed the first two weeks of his sentence. Prisoners interview visitors in the warden's office or warden's room, in the presence of a ~~warden~~ warden. I have never known of a case where a visitor has allowed in a prisoner's cell. I am of no occasion on which a prisoner has allowed to see the same visitor twice in one day. The normal visiting day is between the hours of 2 p.m. and 5 p.m.
