Story of Destruc- AUSTRIAN SUB tion by a Survivor -- Majority of Crew Rescued by a Norwegian Vessel-Ship Was Sunk Off the Poruguese Coast

By Courier Leased Wire London, Nov. 7.—(New York Times cable)—A Daily Chronicle despatch from Barry, Wales,

The officers and crew of the United States Steamer Lanao were landed by the Norwegian vessel Tromp at Barry Saturday night. The Lanao was bound from Manila to Havre with a from Manila to Havre with a cargo of rice. Captain Mainland, commander; G. Godinez, chief officer and William Munson, chief engineer of the Lanao, were seen by me to-night and told me the story of their adventures.

"On the evening of October 20," said Mainland, "we were pasing St. Vincent on the Portutered a German submarine. When we sighted her she was engaged in sinking a Norwegian vessel. She afterward endeavored to sink an English ship,but was drawe off by the guns of the latter. We slackened speed and stood by the Norwegian steam-ship in case it should be possible to save any of the crew. "The submarine, which seemed about 200 feet long fired three warning shots across our bow. This, we undestood as a signal that they wished us to stand by and communicate with them. Chief officer Godinez and four of the crew rowed over in one of our boats, went aboard the submarine. He treated them with every courtesy. The com-mander of the submarine, who spoke excellent English said he had orders to sink all ships of whatever nationality, carrying contraband for the allies. He regretted that he was compelled do this, but he informed us his orders were imperative.

"He sent an officer and four sailors from the submarine, who ord-ered us to get into the ship's boats he placed a bomb in the engineroom of my ship. A terrible explosion followed, after we left the ship, but I did not see her sink The Gerbut I did not see her sink The Gerwar activities and developments that but I did not see her sink The Germans took away every article of value belonging to the ship, including the picture of my wife. They carried off the sextant and barometer. The submarine cruised about for come time and finally the contract of the contrac some time and finally the conmander put us aboard the Norwe; ian steamer Tromp, which brought us to Barry. We saw no more of the German vessel after we left. Additional particulars of the sinking of the Lanzo are given by the chief engineer of the vessel in a despatch to The Chronicle, from Car-

"When we were about twenty-nine miles off the coast of Portugal diff, as follows: a German submarine fired three shots across our bows. It was dark at the time. Chief Officer Godin-x was rowed to the submarine in or-der to take the ship's papers and also to ascertain why the vessel had been stopped. He was detained on the submarine, the commander which sent an officer to tell us we must abandon our ship and get into our boat. We did this and then a
