AN ATTRACTIVE SIGHT.

The Carnival Fancy Drive in Old French Quebec.

CHANTICLEER LEADS THE VAN

Followed in a Gorgeous Procession by Characteristic Representations Borrowed from the Scenes of Antiquity—Fully 40,000 People View It.

Quebec, Feb. 1.—Quebec is again in tiptop order after the last storm. The flags on the fort and redoubts have been replaced and a general toilet has been given to the different exhibitions about town. The city streets have been cleared of snow banks and all signs of the last terrific storm. The streets are now filled with the throngs of people visiting the illuminated monuments of ice, the Equinax huts, the sugary and representations of establishments of gone-by centuries.

Yesterday the members of the Press Committee assembled at the Garrison Club, which is one of the most important of the press from America and Canada to a luncheon. Two ladies honored the hospitable occasion by their presence. They were Miss Garrison, of the Chicago Tribune, and Faith Fenton, of the Toronto Empire.

At night the citizens' ball was inaugurated. This ball, which is one of the most important features of the carnival, is given in honor of their Excellencies Lord and Lady Aberdeen. Their Excellencies on arrival were greeted by the strains of the pibroch. After which the band played the National Anthem.

Quebec, Feb. 2.—The carnival features of the carnival, took place yesterday afternoon. The weather was clear and cool, a better day could not be wished for such a parade. The streets were clear from the great amount of snow that had fallen during Tuesday's storm. A tremendously large wooden rooster headed the procession. Then came the fire brigade, headed by chief driving four in hand, followed by a line of ice coaches with an American gentleman passenger with a plug hat and a French coachman with a top hat. The fire brigade in two detachments followed. The first detachment represented the brigade before a fire, the men and apparatus being in a first-rate condition. The second detachment represented the brigade after a fire, the firemen being covered with ice and dirt, as were also the hose and ladders, and every appliance told of hard work.

The Quebec Snowshoe Club followed with an allegorical car representing a tower covered with an immense quantity of red and white. On the cars were seated members with bagpipes and drums, the members of the club following. Then came the Queen's Snowshoe Club with an allegorical car representing a more natural one could hardly be imagined. The Queen's own Canadian Hussars were there too. Their car, which was driven by eight horses each mounting a driver, was ornamented with cavalry accoutrements.

The medical students had a car of their own. It was an immense mortar with all the accessories of the medical profession. The "Grande Hermine," a fine specimen of the ship in which Jacques Cartier discovered Canada, was the next car in turn. The car bore the inscription "A.D. 1492." The most interesting of all the cars was that of the Indians with their car. Old Chief Bestien and his old squaw, with his sons and daughters and grandchildren, were seated in all the glory of feathers, smoking the pipe of peace and singing tribal lamentations. The Emerald Snowshoe Club followed, each with individual claims to the attention of the onlookers.

A cable dated from 1734 all tied up with rope and leather, was the next feature of the fancy drive.

The 9th Battalion car was certainly the most interesting of the whole scene. It represented a Northwest campaign scene. In the center of the car a crowd of Black-foot Indians was to be seen, and around a log fire. A soldier's tent was erected in the rear of the car, at the entrance of which a sentry with fixed sword mounted guard. Around the Indians were rods with all sorts of game and trophies. Meanwhile the ice fort had been set aglow.

A car representing an immense toap was one of the sights. This car bore the representation of "Le café au carnaval."

The procession was the most perfect of any kind ever seen in America, at least so said people from all over the world, and it is almost impossible to describe all the sights and scenes in the procession.

At the close of the parade the Canadian style all being old-timed musicians and bonny riders, fiddlers and cowboys, and a band of military music.

Quebec, Feb. 3.—Last night was the concluding point of the carnival features. Eighty thousand people were assembled within the radius of a mile. The search lights placed in the towers of the redoubts were thrown abroad, searching for the approaching enemy. Twelve snowshoe clubs were lined on either side of the Parliament square. Every snowshoe was prepared for the fray with Roman candles, rockets, and bonfires. Meanwhile the ice fort had been set aglow.

The interior was ablaze with Bengal fires, which reflected through the transparent walls of the fort and whilst the right wing was being illuminated with powerful green fires the left wing was blazing with red. The main tower was searchingly glowing with the azure of the heavens. At 8.45 p.m. the Parliament buildings. The No. 1 redoubt gave the alarm and artillery was massed on the left hand and the right hand and the right wing was kept pouring towards the enemy.

Now thousands of shells were shot to the sky where after succession they exploded with terrific report sliding downwards in abundance. The snowshoes now took position at the foot of the ice fort. Every man being armed with the necessary ammunition, directed his weapons toward the fort.

Clergymen Arrived. SUSSEX, N.B., Feb. 1.—Quite a sensation was caused here yesterday by the arrival of Rev. Mr. Crook, a Baptist minister, at the instance of Justice Robert Morrison, who charges Grant with detaching his character by writing and having caused to be published libellous statements. He was placed in custody for the night, but was admitted to bail this morning.
