CANADA IS MY HOME.

I'm but a stranger here, Canada is my home, Africa is a desert drear, Canada is my home, Hunger and sorrow stand Round me on every hand, Canada is my fatherland, Canada is my home.

What though the war may rage, Canada is my home, Short is my soldiering, Canada is my home, And time's wild stormy blast soon will be o'er and past, shall reach home at last,

There at my parents' side, Canada is my home, shall be glorified; Canada is my home. There are the loved ones dear, Those I love most and best, And there I too shall rest, Canada is my home.

Therefore I'll murmur not, Canada is my home,
Whate'er my earthly lot,
Canada id my home,
For I shall surely stand, There at my parents' side-Canada is my fatherland, Canada is my home,

Why Railway Builders Charged Ten Thou and Dollars Per Mile Extra.

Brussels, June 13 .- The action of the Transvaal Government against the Franko-Belgian Company, which constructed the Kooms-Biselate railway, was begun yesterday. The company is charged with fraud in demanding £9,-600 per mile, whereas the cost was only £7,200. The defence put forward by the company is that the dif-ference was spent in the bribery of the receivers of the road; including President Kruger and his son-in-law, Eloff. The company's representative at Pretoria admitted that he presented car-riages to twenty-two of the twenty-four members of the Transvaal Volkspresents were made out of his own Painted by the Latest Famine Situation in Indian Districts.

London, June 13. - The famine in India grows worse. The Standard's Simla correspondent, in a mail letter, says: "It would be rash to assume from the almost stationary relief fizures that the corners will soon be turned. So devastating has been the cholera outbreak, so enormous the mortality and so blind the terror inspired by this black death, that the famine relief camps in Bombay presidency, which contained thousands of workers, meit away and are left empty in the course of a couple of days.

"Terrible stories come from Dohad. There the family is at its worst, and now the cholera has arrived to com-plete the work. An eye-witness says: As we walked through the quiet streets we saw deserted homes and dead bodies. One of the bravest acts was a little girl about 7 attempting to care for two little brothers after the mother had given up all hope and lain down near them to die. She was feed-ing a fire which burned beneath a broken pot in which simmered the al most rotten feet and bones of some dead animal."

BELLE BOYD DEAD

The Famous Female Spy Succumbs to Heart Disease

Kilbourne, Wis., June 12.-Belle Boyd; the famous confederate spy during the civil war, died here last night from heart disease, aged 57 years. She was here on a lecturing tour, i Belle Boyd's father held a place under the federal government at Washington before the war. She was a sharp-featured, black-eyed woman of 25, with a dash of manner, a quickness of retort, and an utter abandon of manner and bearing which often carried her over the boundary of modesty. She carried a revolver in her-belt, rode a spirited horse, and easily ingratiated herself into the attentions of young Union officers, from whom she would extract valuable military information. She also had in military information. She also had in the valley of Virginia a sisterhood of coadjutors who reported to her frequently—ladies who had the good sense not to make themselves so conspicuous as she was, and whose services were unknown, except to her, and were therefore effective. She went to Eng-land after the war and married. When her husband died she went on the stage. In the early 70's she married again. Of late years she has lectured.

In the current number of the British Medical Journal, Frederick Treves writes a vivid description of the light at Colenso, and of the manner in which Major Baptie won the Viccria Cross. He observes. The batteries were moving towards the river with the usual British unconcern, and in the quiet of a sum-mer's morning. Suddenly there was poured upon them from the shelter of a mimosa wood such a torrent of ead that in a few moments was scarcely a horse or a man stand-ing. The men faced the wood as only the British soldier can face death. * * Near by the guns was a donga, and into this many of the wounded had crawled. The galloper who took up the news of the disaster, reported the need of help for the injured. To this call Major Baptie at once responded as a volun-teer. He rode down to this inferno, He might as well have ridden before a row of targets during the smartest moment of rifle practice. Three times was his horse shot under him before he reached the donga. Here, in the face of a galling fire, he drag-ged the wounded into shelter, and a little later he ventured out under a rain of lead to bring in Lieut. Roberts, who was lying in the open desperately wounded. For some seven hours Baptie kept by the wounded in the shallow donga, no one daring to lift a hand above the edge of the dip. He alone had a water bottle, and he doled out what water he had in a 60-minim measuring glass. He also was able to relieve pain by morphine, and he sheltered poor Rob-erts' face from the scorching sun by holding above it a letter he chanced

One of the woodsmen had told me of a waterfall on a trout stream of considerable size, says W. J. Stillman in The Atlantic, which emptied into a lake near by us, and, in the hope of finding a subject on it, I took the boat one afternoon and began to follow the course of the stream up from the mouth. After a haif mile of clear and navigable water it became so clogged with fallen trees that more lifting than paddling was required, and as its course was extremely tortuous I oc casionally got out and examined the vicinity of the stream bed and the cours above, if, perchance, there might be better navigation beyond.
